The bridegroom is a draftsman with Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Co. The bride is employed at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District office.

Daughter of Lightkeeper Pays Visit to Charlevoix

Mrs. Leota Goeman of Villa Park, Ill., paid a nostalgic visit to Charlevoix last Thursday.

Mrs. Goeman lived in Charlevoix from 1935 until 1940 when her father, the late Ernest Hutzler, was keeper of the Charlevoix light for the U.S. Lighthouse Service.

The Hutzlers lived at 103 Park-ave., the home now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hoffmann. The house was the traditional residence of Charlevoix lightkeepers.

Mrs. Goeman recalls that the light was converted from kerosene to electricity while her family lived in Charlevoix and a bell in the tower which formerly clanged the fog warning was changed to the air horn.

The air horn was replaced this summer by an electronic buzzer that is less costly to operate, although it cannot be heard as far out on the lake.

Hutzler worked the Northport light until his retirement. He died in Chicago in 1970 and is buried at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

June-January Romance Next Theatre Offering

"Forty Carats", the fall production of Little Traverse Civic Theatre in Petoskey, is well into rehearsal and is scheduled for presentation on Nov. 1, 2, 3, 9 and 10 in the Petoskey High School Auditorium.

The hilarious comedy, which had a long successful run on Broadway concerns an attractive, sophisticated business woman who is being courted by an attractive young man of 22.

Their romance begins in the fabulous Greek Islands and continues at her Manhattan apartment. She is surrounded by riotous characters, her ex-husband, her, out-spoken mother, her secretary, and her almost grown daughter, who has caught the eye of an older man-of-the-world.

Charlevoix's Liane Christensen plays the role of the daughter, her first appearance with Little Traverse Civic Theater. Liane, who is Mrs. Alan Christensen, recently moved to Charlevoix from a country home near Gaylord, and originally comes from Montana. She is the mother of two small daughters, and is performing beautifully in rehearsals as Frina Stanley.

The theatre group plans an Opening Night Back-Stage Punch Party, during which the audience is invited to tour the stage after the performance.

Tickets are available on a reserved basis at Volume I in Petoskey, with proceeds going to the Little Traverse Civic Theatre Building Fund.

121 Cards of Thanks

UNTIL YOU HAVE occasion to need something, you are not aware of what is available. That is why I only recently became aware of the fine doctors and hospital facilities available to me and all others who live in the Charlevoix area. It wasn't until I was a patient at the Charlevoix Area Hospital that I came to appreciate these things. I especially want to mention Dr. Custer and Dr. Lignell and the entire hospital staff for the fine personal care I received from them all. I also would like to thank all those who remembered me with prayers, flowers and other gifts, cards and good wishes while I was hospitalized. When you are 83 years old you truly appreciate all these things. Pete Scott

During his six weeks at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Texas, he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

The airman was graduated in 1973 from Central Lake High School.

Ask Senator GRIFFIN

When I started high school this year, I made friends with some new kids, who get "high on quoludes." I can't ask my parents about methaqualane, so I wonder if you can provide any facts. My friends don't think they are doing anything illegal, but isn't it against the law to use methaqualane?

—R. R., Detroit

Your letter is a timely and important one, and I hope the information I have will help you and your friends.

The use of methaqualone without a doctor's prescription is indeed illegal. Methaqualone is an addictive and dangerous drug which has ruined the future of too many young users. Because of its harmful effects, the drug has been placed under strict control by the Drug Enforcement Administration.

For additional information concerning dangerous drugs and what can happen to those who use them, write to the Drug Enforcement Administration, 1405 I Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20537. Incidentally, I hope you will decide to discuss this subject with your folks, even if it means that you may have to choose some different friends.

I am a Vietnam War veteran eager to get started in my own business. I would like to know if there is any help for Vietnam vets like me?

—C. B., Detroit

The Economic Opportunity Loan program administered by the Small Business Administration may be just what you're looking for. A special effort is being made to help Vietnam-era veterans who desire to enter the nation's economic mainstream by going into sound business ventures.

Under the EOL program, loans up to $50,000 with maturities up to 15 years, are available to qualified veterans who cannot obtain financial assistance at reasonable terms through regular commercial channels.

Rayders Whip Ramblers, Meet Northmen Friday

The Red Rayders out-played the Boyne City Ramblers by a score of 48-22 Friday night, with the scoreboard changing as fast as it does during a cage contest.

The victory was the second for Charlevoix in Michigan-Huron Shores Conference play, against two losses.

This Friday, Charlevoix plays at Petoskey. The Northmen are undefeated for the season.

In other conference action over the weekend, Petoskey blanked Grayling 32-0; St. Ignace ruined Cheboygan, 28-0; and Gaylord squeaked past Rogers City, 16-14.

This weekend Grayling will travel to Boyne City, Gaylord plays at St. Ignace and Cheboygan takes on Rogers City, at Rogers City.

In the Rambler-Rayder game, Charlevoix scored with 10:36 on the clock in the first period on a 32-yard run by Randy Faust. The conversion was good.

Boyne came back with a 10-yard TD run by Brian Fultz and a two-point conversion by Terry Elzinga, giving Boyne an 8-7 edge.

But Faust came back with a 22-yard TD run and Mike Streeter passed to Kevin Martin for a 15-8 Rayder lead.

In the second period, Fultz scored again for the Ramblers, with an extra point pass to Elzinga, putting Boyne City on top again, 16-15. But seconds later, Martin scored on a 42-yard run followed quickly by another marker by Streeter. A conversion kick by Faust gave the Rayders a 28-16 lead at the half.

Streeter scored again in the third period on a 52-yard run, followed shortly by another Rambler TD by Fultz.

In the finale, Dan Greene scored six points for the Rayders on a four-yard run, with Faust kicking the conversion.

Bob Alger completed the Charlevoix scoring with a six-yard sprint, with six minutes left on the clock.

Sinfonia First In New Concert Series

On Saturday, Oct. 20, the Northern Michigan Community Concert Association will open its 1973-1974 season, presenting the English Sinfonia.

The concert will be held as always, in the Petoskey Middle School Auditorium (formerly the Junior High Auditorium) at 8:30 p.m.

Formed in 1961 by its conductor, Neville Dilkes, the English Sinfonia has been adopted by the City of Nottingham, now its permanent home, from whom (together with John Player and the Songs of Nottingham) the ensemble receives generous financial support.

The English Sinfonia's musical activity extends, however, throughout England, and through its tours, its frequent visits to London's Queen Elizabeth Hall and its recording for E.M.I. the Sinfonia has developed a name for itself as "a first-class orchestra, able to challenge the country's best" (Financial Times, London) with "playing of real finish and distinction." (Daily Telegraph, London).

In addition to an extensive repertoire of Baroque and 19th century works, the English Sinfonia, as befits its name, gives special emphasis to English music of both past and present.

Neville Dilkes, the highly gifted young British conductor, in the space of a few years has established himself as one of the most active and successful of the younger generation of British-born conductors.

In addition to his busy schedule as Music Director of the SINFONIA which he himself founded in 1961, he has conducted the City of Birmingham and Bournemouth Symphony Orchestras, the Ulster and Radio Telefis Eireann Orchestras, and has appeared with orchestras in Russia, Belgium, Denmark, France and Germany, always as conductor.

A RECORD CROWD turned out for the annual Color Cruise sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce on Sunday. Eight persons were turned away when it was discovered that the trip had been over sold. There wasn't even room aboard for the volunteer band. The Beaver Islander took cruisers to Boyne City and returned under sunny fall skies.

Put and Took Hunting

By JIM FITZGERALD

During the next war, the casualty lists should be written by the guy currently in charge of euphemisms for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

It wouldn't be necessary for grieving parents to explain the empty seat at the dinner table by using such raw words as: "Johnny was drafted and killed."

Instead, they could say: "Johnny was put and took."

That has a flip, even charming ring to it. Nothing bloody. To an uninformed guest, it could sound as if Johnny might show up in time for dessert. No sense giving anyone indigestion by saying something indelicate, such as: "Johnny is as dead as that pheasant you just ate."

Pheasants are what turned me on this week. The DNR has begun a new program in which pheasants are bred at a hatchery and then trucked to game areas and freed to be shot by eager hunters.

The DNR calls this the "put-and-take hunting season."

According to the DNR, a hunter never kills a bird or a deer. He "harvests" it. The well-dressed hunter should wear bib-top overalls, carry a pitchfork and drive an Allis-Chalmers tractor. Back on the farm, the hired man is shooting wheat.

"Where I live, the put-and-take season got off to a rousing start. On Friday, 250 pheasants arrived by truck. (No hunting is allowed on Fridays, for fear the hunters will shoot at the truck as it crosses the city limits.) The birds were released in a designated hunting area the size of a few city blocks. On Saturday and Sunday, the DNR reported 3,500 hunters came after the 250 pheasants.

The hunters didn't have much room for maneuvering. They had to advance on the enemy in lock-step, after practicing close-order drill in the parking lot. Each pheasant was offered a cigarette and blindfolded. Not one bird escaped. Thus the brave hunters were able to secure the area until next weekend when another invasion of pheasants will surely be fought off, no matter how high the cost.

One of the hunters too exception to my cynical attitude (I had asked him if nuclear weapons were allowed on Sunday). "The birds are bred to be shot," he explained. "It's a sport. It gets a man out into the woods and fresh air and gives him a chance to breathe and improve his marksmanship."

Oh sure. Put down that gun. I'm not really dumb enough to equate a pheasant with Johnny Soldier. I was just funning around. Pheasants aren't human beings. They are dumb animals, so why not breed them for no other reason than to shoot them?

Except a cock pheasant is about the prettiest bird you'll ever see fly across a country road. And I keep wondering if something in a bird's head doesn't think: "Hey, that hurts!" when a hunk of lead tears through its wing. I even wonder if a luckier pheasant feels bad, maybe mourns a little, when his buddy is blasted out of the sky.

Isn't that silly? Human beings should be too smart to think dumb things like that. As any red-blooded harvester will tell you, I should be put and took.

WISH I'D SAID THAT

"When it comes to time payments, you have to get money up before you can get it down." Duane C. Griggs, New London (Iowa) Journal

"Drive carefully. You can never tell when life might be worth living again." Lee R. Call, Star Valley (Wyo.) Independent.

Big Earnings Increase Seen By Medusa

Robert W. Fort, president of Medusa Corporation, reports that Medusa expects third quarter earnings will be materially above the $1.50 per share reported last year in the same quarter.

Part of the gain is relief from the very unfavorable weather experienced in 1972.

Fort indicated that earnings should exceed the $1.72 per share reported for the third quarter of 1971 (which was later restated on a pooling of interests basis to $1.69 per share).

Baker Drills

Ironton

Mrs. Ross Alexander
547-9878

Lyle Walker has returned home after being a medical patient in Little Traverse Hospital.

Wilsons' boat house is being raised by the new owners because of the high water.

Richard Olsheve of Detroit was a guest last weekend of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Olsheve.

Edward Hammond of East Jordan had charge of the morning church service last Sunday. This Sunday Rev. James Larsen of Boyne City will be the guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Shadko and Mrs. J.E. Lockyer of Charlevoix and Mrs. Minnie Myers and guest, Mrs. E. Henning, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwards on Wickersham-rd. Monday.

The ferry operators report that the water level has gone down about eight inches.

Mr. and Mrs. David Murrey (Francie Richardson) and infant son Scott Richard of Bedford, N.H., were callers Sunday afternoon at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stowe and Mrs. Lydia Coblentz on Ferry-rd. They had been guests of friends on the Belvedere over the weekend.

Mrs. Marie White has returned to her home in Paris, Ky., after spending the summer in her local home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fisher of Plymouth, Mich., were guests over the weekend at the mobile home on Washington-st. of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Brounie Podskalny and family. Also other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Fortney and son David, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Troyier of Plymouth and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hoff of Lavonia and daughter Karen and Mr. George Kurtz of Conway. This occasion was the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Roy Fisher.

Mrs. Mary Trayte is spending the winter in Fort Meyers, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pelkins of Detroit were guests last weekend at the home of the former's father, Elwyn Johnson and Mrs. Johnson.

The church was the scene of a wedding Saturday at five o'clock of Connie Smith daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Smith, former local residents and Sherman Chamberlain of Grosse Pointe Woods. Rev. William Harmon officiated at the double-ring service. A reception was held at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix. They have the congratulations and best wishes of their Ironton friends.

After driving to Mackinaw City Sunday to see the colors, the Sam Alexanders and Ross Alexanders decided they should have stayed home. The maples and oaks of the Ironton area are far more colorful than the birch, poplar and evergreens near the Straits.

Ole Nielsen has returned home after having surgery at Lockwood-MacDonald Hospital. He has the best wishes of his friends in the area.

Boyne Chamber Starts Campaign

Tom Sullivan of the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce reports that a drive is under way to sign up all former members who have not paid their dues for the year.

He and Dr. Tom Neumann, a member of the board of directors, have met with considerable success during their door-to-door solicitation.

"Some members paid us 'right on the spot' and other followed up right away with their checks," Sullivan reports.

A list of paid-up members will appear in the next Chamber bulletin.

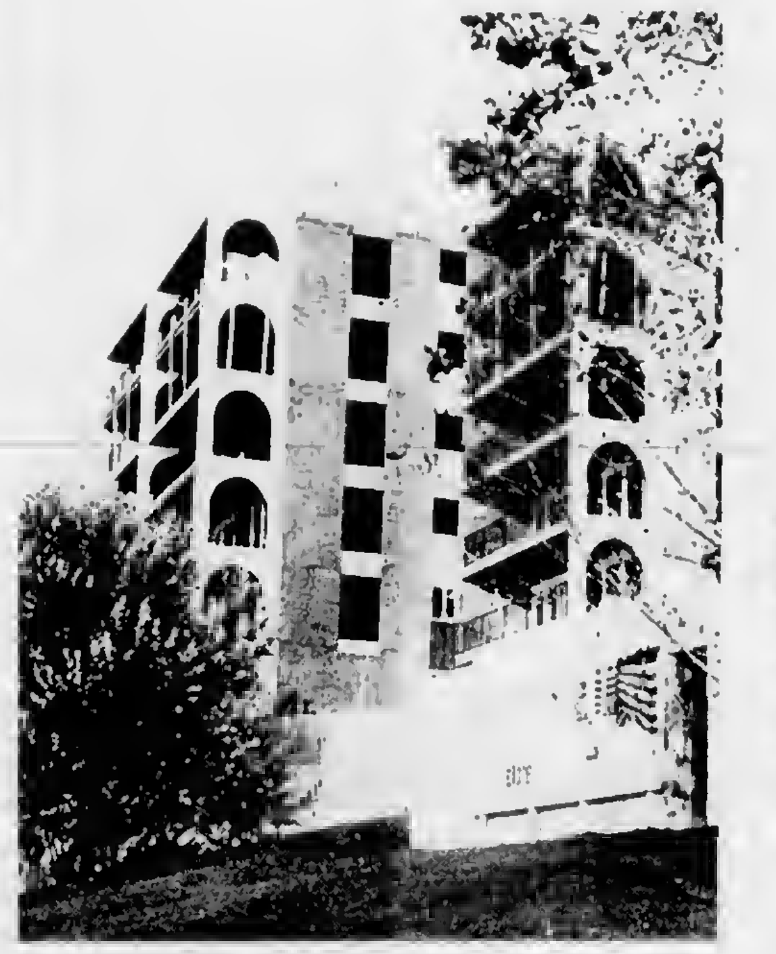
Sullivan says the Fall Festival planned by the Boyne City Jaycees has been postponed because there just wasn't time to get organized. A real wing-ding is promised for next year.

The chamber also has purchased a quantity of Christmas decorations to dress up the downtown section over the holidays, including evergreen trees and rugged, all-weather trimming.

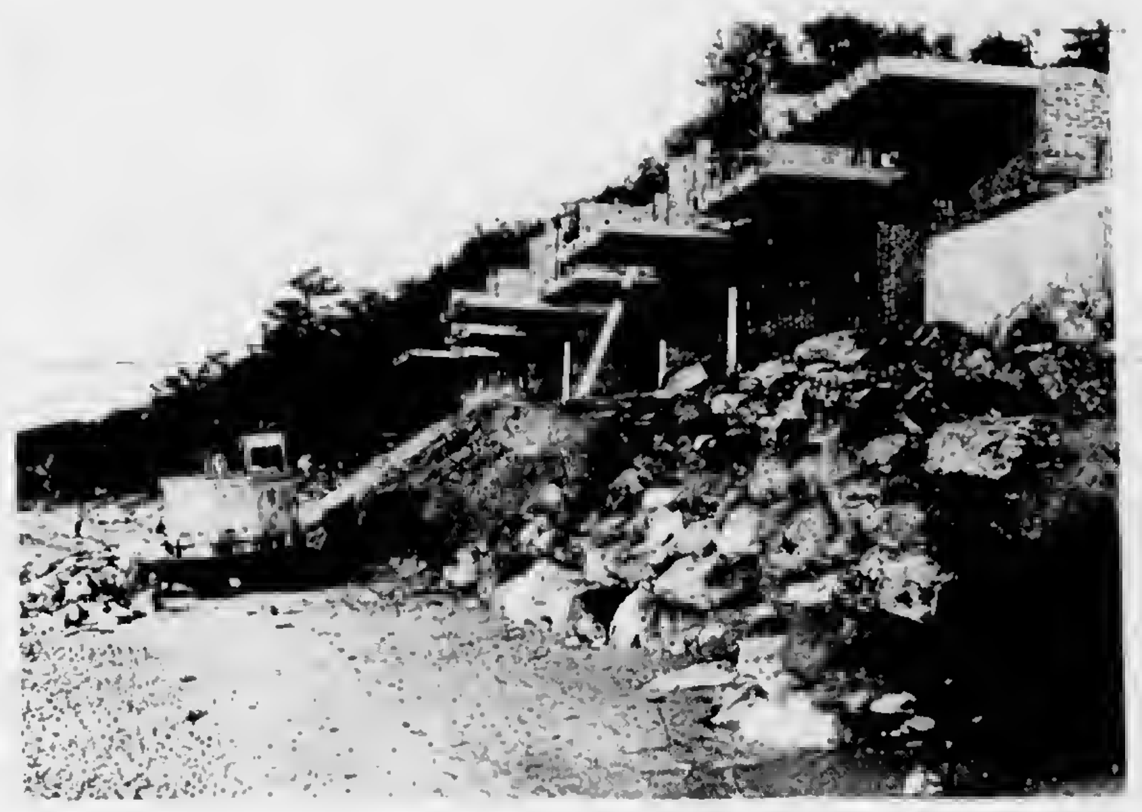
Boyne City firemen have agreed to put up and take down the decorations.

Sullivan reports that among the upcoming activities in Boyne City is the Eta Nu Charity Ball Oct. 27 and the Lion's Club Snowmobile Show Oct. 27 and 28.

The Condos Are Coming



LA CROFT condominium on Michigan-ave. is rapidly nearing completion. Developer Ralph Hess reports that most of the heavy equipment will be moved off the site this week after completion of the final story. The first owners are expected to move in in January. This picture was taken from the Lake Michigan shore, just below the swimming pool.



ALTHOUGH not much of the Dunes condominium is visible yet from Michigan-ave., there is plenty to see on the Lake Michigan shore. The front of the building is being butressed against Lake Michigan wave action by huge boulders dredged from the lake bottom.

Now: An official program that can cut heating costs up to 17% and conserve Natural Gas.

If you're like most people, holding down heating bills is an idea that hits you right where you live. And, chances are, you'd like to help save Natural Gas, too. Especially during this time of energy shortages. Now there's an official program that supports both of these objectives. It was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is simply this: Installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. A recent White House study found that "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses." "Such improved insulation," the government said, "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution."

The Michigan Public Service Commission agrees with this conclusion. It has supported a study prepared by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company which found that Michigan homeowners can achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by adding six inches of insulation to their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works. First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project—and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation and hold down your heating bills. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100. Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows you just how to do the job. Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you.

Our insulation program is easy on your budget, too. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed—then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges. Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Library notes

On May 7, 1915, the German U-boat 20 torpedoed and sank the "unarmed" passenger liner Lusitania off the southwest coast of Ireland, killing some 1,200 men, women and children, many of them Americans.

The world raged at the barbarity of the Kaiser and the German people, and the act did much to precipate the latter entrance of the United States into World War I.

But the real truth of the disaster has never been revealed. With meticulous documentation, London Sunday Times correspondent Colin Simpson unearths a record of arrogance, ignorance and expediency that indicts dozens of high government officials in both England and America. If there was ever of incompetence, irresponsibility and a massive cover-up, this is it. "The lusitania" makes absorbing reading, and the numerous photographs add stark realism to one of the most fateful of all disasters at sea.

We frequently have patrons who come in with one request. They don't want a new book or a popular book or a famous book, they simply want a funny book. A book with a chuckle! "The Raid on the Villa Joyosa" by Robert Hopkins is just such a book. It is rip-roaring, completely silly tale about a born loser and three sinister sharpies who become involved in a wildly ingenious plot that cons the jet set and fleeces the beautiful people from London to Spain.

"Curse of the Kings" is the new Victoria Holt book, and that's about all we have to say. One of the world's most popular authors, Miss Holt blends her mastery of romance and suspense with the adventure of a search for ancient treasurers in the land of the Pharaohs. For centuries, the Pharaohs' tombs had been haunted by a curse: whoever disturbed the sleep of the kings would die.

But surely a scientific expedition could not hindered by an ancient supersitution. Or at least so Judith Osmond believes! This exciting new novel demands one sitting. It isn't the sort of book a reader can put down and pick up again. It is absorbing and exciting right up to the very end.

Catherine Cookson has written more than 30 popular books. Her reputation is world-wide, with translations in eight languages. "The Mallen Streak" is the first of a trilogy that will follow the lives of the Mallens through three generations. Thomas Mallen of High Banks Hall had many sons, all except one, illegitimate. But to each of them he passed his mark–a distinctive flash of white hair running down to the left temple and known as the Mallen Streak. It was said in the surrounding countryside that those who bore the Streak did not die old or in their beds. This is a powerful and compulsively readable novel, a wonderful example of accurate warmly-felt historical fiction.

Nixon's 'Dear Ted' Note Leaves Us In Quandary

President Nixon's high praises of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew after receiving Agnew's resignation last Wednesday has left the nation in a quandary.

Agnew has admitted cheating on his income tax and accepting kickback's from contractors in exchange for government jobs -- both felonies which could carry heavy jail penalties.

However minutes after receiving Agnew's resignation, the President wrote "Ted" a personal note lauding him for his "courage and candor."

"Your strong patriotism, and your profound dedication to the welfare of the nation, have been an inspiration to all who have served with you as well as to millions of others throughout the country...I hope that you and your family will be sustained the days ahead by a well-justified pride in all that you have contributed to the nation by your years of service as vice-president."

Holy Moses!

Here the man has admitted cheating on his income tax and accepting kickbacks in open court and the President claims that the same man has served as an inspiration to millions of others.

If such criminal acts are openly lauded and endorsed by the President, where does that leave the rest of us who sweat blood every spring trying to be as srcupulously honest as humanly possible in the preparation of our own income tax returns?

The President didn't have one word of criticism of the vice president for the crimes he had admitted. There was no chastisement. Not even a mild slap on the wrist.

The President said he was "saddened by the course of events," but the only impression he left is that he was sorry Agnew was caught.

The President's unstinting praise of his former vice-president can mean only one thing:

This country has embarked upon a new course in which crime and corruption among public officials is not only to be tolerated but actually condoned by the executive branch.

The real crime of the Agnew affair is not the fact that we have had a cheat and a crook occupying the second highest chair in the land for the past five years, but that President Nixon apparently sees nothing wrong with such behavior.

In fact, the whole Nixon team has become so suspect in recent months, with former Attorney General John Mitchell and Maurice Stans under indictment and other close Nixon associates being forced to resign because of their participation in the Watergate burglary, that we seriously doubt that the Nixon administration can provide any kind of effective leadership for the county during the three-plus years remaining in his term.

Whether we realize it or not, these are probably the blackest days in the nation's two-hundred year history, surpassing in gravity the halocaust of the Civil War and the touch-and-go conditions following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, when our survival as a nation of freemen was in the hands of the gods.

Our only hope now is that President Nixon sees fit to nominate a vice president who will provide the spiritual and moral leadership that have been so sorely lacking during his own years in office.

Then we hope, in the best interests of the country, that he will follow the lead of his beloved second-in-command and step down before Congress is forced to make that decision for him.

Senator Bob Davis

DIRECT LINE

Q. What happens when a new fiscal year starts and appropriation bills haven't passed?

A. State services don't come to a grinding halt. Schools don't close. Welfare recipients don't find their checks stopped.

Because of action taken by the Senate last week, followed by House approval, agencies of government were given authority to continue operating at their present levels until the 1973-74 budget package is finally approved.

When that final approval comes will depend upon developments next week when, it is hoped, all differences on budget bills between the Senate and the House of Representatives will be resolved and the Legislature can go into recess until next fall.

A combination of things – but primarily prolonged discussion in the House of Representatives over a school aid formula – can be blamed for failure to meet the June 30 fiscal year-end deadline.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump Jr.

Rocking on the weatherbeaten porch clinging desperately to his tarpaper shack, 'Dirty' Dugan gave the illusion of laziness but in truth he simply refused to squander valuable time in the unproductive tasks performed by others of less mental perception.

Whereas tidier citizens invested their time and money painting their homes, Dirty confined his exterior maintenance to nailing down a flapping piece of felt when necessary. As a devout apostle of the creed that time is money, he devoted the time he saved scampering up roofs like a human fly to clean chimneys with a ball of chain at the end of a rope which he manipulated like a yo-yo.

A striking example of brains over brawn was his approach to the back-breaking chore of cutting firewood. Less discerning men cut their wood to the dimensions of the firepot but Dugan adopted more generous lengths, and these according to the season.

His 'winter' wood was cut 10 feet, 7 inches long, which represented the distance from the firepot door to the east wall of the dining room. His 'summer' wood he cut 24 feet, six inches long, since he could shove it through the open window into the stove.

In summer, his absence or presence was indicated by the portion of timber outside the window which conveyed the same message as the skippers' pennant flying at the yardarm. When the pole angled to the ground it could be assumed that the occupant was away on business, since prior to departure he always doused the burning end in a bucket of water, like a Paul Bunyan smithy, and left it steaming and hissing over the stove.

He kept feeding the pole into the firebox as it burned, propping the free end open the back of a chair. The dire predictions that such a hair brained labor-saving scheme would end in a funeral pyre were typical of the inane mouthings of ordinary mortals whenever contronted by genius.

Dirty improvised an infallible fire alarm by sharing his studio accommodations with some hens, of questionable legal ownership, who also viewed housekeeping as a needless repetition of wasted effort.

The need for fuel replenishment was signaled by the meteoric descent of the tree trunk to the charred floor in a shower of sparks. The hens, cackling in alarm, awakened the head of the house who would insert the pole anew, hitch the chair forward, return the scattered embers to their proper place and then enjoy another hour of sound repose.

These feathered sentinels, serving as a volunteer fire watch, also provided eggs for breakfast, vacuumed the crumbs off the floor and as a parting gesture, their lives shortened by the excitement involved, provided a chicken stew which added a gourmet touch to Dirty Dugan's bachelor cuisine.

Clockwise

No Punishment For Larger Crimes

By BOB CLOCK

For many reasons, former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has never received much support in this corner of the Courier, but I never dreamed that the vice president's fall from grace would hinge upon such low-brow crimes as extortion and income tax evasion.

In fact, as the nation's No. 1 champion of "law and order" for the past five years, Agnew's confession of guilt to such crimes come as a total surprise to Clockwise.

I knew he would like to re-write the Constitution to gag the press.

I knew he held that differences of opinion are tantamount to treason.

I knew he abhored the personal freedom that is the birthright of every American.

But I never dreamed he would stoop to accepting kickbacks from such sweaty people as road builders, or that he would stake himself to one penny of the national treasury that he wasn't entitled to.

But he has confessed to such and has been forced to submit his resignation from the second highest post in the land.

Although most of us have been hurt to think that a man of such low charcter should be able to achieve such high political office, I think we are relieved to know that "The System" has ways of exposing and dealing with such culprits.

Needless to say, Spiro T. was Spiro T. to the end. When he emerged from the courtroom after pleading nolo contendere (No contest) to counts of income tax evasion and accepting bribes, the former vice president told newsmen he was saving the country the agony of a long court fight. He said he also was protecting his family from the "brutalizing" effect of such proceedings.

The old pomp and arrogance were still there. He said he would tell us all about it in a televised address to the nation.

Apparently President Nixon feels his second-in-command was the victim of circumstances. The President accepted his deputy's resignation with the highest praise for his conduct and said he had been an inspiration to his co-workers and millions of Americans. (See editorial)

The impression left by Agnew and the President himself is that the vice president was the victim of a hard-nosed Department of Justice. They would like us to believe that a good man has been wronged, and that we'll be sorry when all the facts are in.

Perhaps they are right. Certainly a man is innocent until proven guilty, but in Agnew's case, Judge Walter Hoffman made it abundantly clear that a plea of "nolo contendere" is the same as a plea of guilty.

Many newsmen, particularly the TV commentators, say they feel no particular sense of vindication in Agnew's resignation. They feel as sorry for the man as they do for the country, which I suppose is how we all should feel.

Five years ago, I believed Agnew was an excellent choice for the vice presidency. What could possibly be better for the country than a second-generation American who was still imbued with some of the old world ideals and disciplines which had begun to fade on our own shores?

The son of a Greek restaurant owner, Agnew knew what it was like to spend long hours in a steamy kitchen washing dishes. He knew the value of a dollar if any man did. And like most second-generation Americans, he had a built-in work ethic which would serve as an inspiration to the rest of us.

Furthermore, I thought he would be his own man – calling the shots as he saw them.

My first disenchantment came upon President Nixon's return from Europe early in 1968. The president had been away from the capital something like eight days, yet his entire governmental family, led by the vice president, turned out at the airport on the snowiest night of the year to welcome him home.

Poor Agnew slipped on the ice and cut his nose, but that didn't stop him from delivering the most contrived and fawning tribute any American president has ever received, complete with trumpet flourishes and drum rolls by the U. S. Marine Band.

This wasn't America. It was a dark ages fifedom, and Agnew was the sergeant-at-arms.

Later, of course, came Agnew's unbelievable attack on the television networks, followed shortly by his trumpetings against the press and his vicious tirades against war protestors, hippies, yippies and others who dared to argue with administration policies.

In short order he made it known that in Agnew's America there was no room for differences of opinion.

In retrospect, perhaps it is best that Agnew was forced to step aside on the relatively minor issues of income tax evasion and bribery.

The law provides no penalties for the larger crimes he committed against the American spirit.

To Whom It May Concern...

By Doris Huckle

She was bubbling with excitement, charming, anxious to start her first teaching assignment, this young soon-to-graduate teacher and recent house guest.

The conversation touched on the Twin Valley schools and then it was soon apparent the young lady was most unprepared to comprehend even the beginning complexities of the Big Business operation she was entering.

Somehow, we concluded, educators must find a way to explain to their new teachers and all taxpayers if not the reasons for, then the realities of, the often heard pronouncement "Today, Education is Big Business."

Truth and understanding of the tug-of-wars involved before teacher qualified charming young men and women are even hired for a teaching job. This is especially true if educators nationwide hope to prevent now apprehensive parents from really insisting the educators return to the little red schoolhouse.

We warned our inquiring guest we were no authority, that education like everything in the country, was undergoing rapid constant change and directives. We could only give her a capsule of our limited observances and knowledge, some gained through listening, some through reading, but much of it almost by osmosis.

And then we launched:

You do know we have a Michigan Department of Education? They have to comply with certain rules and guidelines set down by the Federals in order to get federal money for education. Yes, the money comes from the taxpayers, who elect the men in Washington where the decisions are made on how that money for public education will be spent.

You are to remember too the State Department of Education gets funds from the State Legislature appropriated from money collected from Michigan taxpayers. They also help set State rules and regulations as to how the money can be spent by the local school districts to educate the taxpayer's children.

They advise the local school districts both directly, and now indirectly too, through still another administrative agency known as the Intermediate School District.

This Intermediate School District also has a Board, also elected by the taxpayers. They also have an administrative staff and special education teachers who work with schools in the District.

Now next we have the taxpayers electing the local school board which is supposed to let the person they hire as local administrator of their school know how they want the school to be operated, because this local board represents the taxpayer. Locally you see.

This administrator has to accept and carry out directives that could affect the money supply from the State and Federal levels: What subjects must be taught, services rendered (not only for the schools to get money, but also whether it's graduates will be eligible to enter a State funded university supported by the taxpayers money), if the children will get free or partially free lunches or not, or milk, if they are housed in State Fire Marshal approved buildings and get things like free pencils and paper.

The administrator reports to the local Board at every month, and sometimes more often, just how things are going: how many teachers are needed, what the children are studying, how crowded the classrooms are, and the condition of the budget.

But, he can't really figure the budget ever, until the local county commissioners set the tax rate, which will tell him how much the school will have to spend from local taxes, along with the State and Federal funds received, IF the school is run to comply with all their regulations.

And the county Board of Commissioners can't set the tax rate until the Board of Equalization acts.

The Equalization Board can't act until the used-to-be-local assessors get their work done. According to the State's directives this should be 50 percent of the "true market value".

Now of course the administrator has to wait on his budget until he also knows what the legislature is going to appropriate, so the State Department of Education can tell county administrators what they are going to give his school in addition to local taxes.

The locally elected school board, through its administrator, also hires the school principals who oversee the teacher's work and answers to the administrator. The teachers teach the subjects they are hired for, but not always those for which they have been educated to teach.

For you see there are other things to consider in hiring the teachers. The teachers salaries depend upon the school budget, but they also are "negotiated" through the teacher's unions. The teacher's unions advise the teachers what they should and should not do for the money they get and insist that all hiring contracts, raises in pay, extra work assignments, etc., be handled through their negotiators.

The teacher's unions also have boards that set policies.

And if the school budget doesn't permit a high enough salary for the union's scale of what a Masters degree should bring then the teacher can't teach in that school.

Meanwhile, the educators back at the universities and colleges are part of the Big Business and they encourage teachers to work for their Masters Degrees.

Many times taxpayers get very, very mad at the local school board (who are taxpayers themselves), because they decide to bus students too far or want the taxpayers to raise more money and tax themselves to build bigger schools.

So sometimes they try to recall the school board.

Meanwhile, the Federals and the State Board of Education and the Governor and members of the Education Committee of the Legislature and the Intermediate School Board and everyone, but some of the parents, think that bigger and bigger schools are the answer to a quality education and more money for the dollar.

But if you get a teaching job and you get Tenure, then you won't have to worry much about being fired by some irresponsible local school board, adminisistrator or unhappy parents who don't like the way you wear your hair.

Along the way it might help if you can prepare yourself and your future taxpaying students to understand a little more about Education as Big Business.

It's one more certain way of having a school in which to teach, whichever way the taxpayers vote, we suggested.

"I've never given it any thought. I wonder why we never are told any of this?" asked our charming guest.

"Well this is the Age of Specialization. You didn't get your degree in School Administration," was my rather now weary reply, as we threw another log on the fire and created our own fanciful tale about a rapidly growing monster named "Ed-U."

The Things Some People Brag About!

The things that some people brag about!

A recent publicity handout by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service had this to say last week about federal food programs:

"An estimated 14.7 million people took part in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) family food programs in August, an increase of 100,000 over participation for the previous month but unchanged from a year ago.

"Preliminary figures released today (Oct. 12) show participation in the food stamp program in August totaled an estimated 12.3 million people, an increase of 100,000 over the previous month, and an increase of 400,000 over participation in August 1972. The value of the bonus food stamps totaled $186 million in August, an increase of $2.2 million over the preceding month and $11.3 million over August, 1973."

And so on and so on. There were ups and downs reported for the year, but, by and large, the number of people in the country forced to take part in government food programs just to stay alive shows a regular increase over the years.

For example, 14.2 million people received some kind of food assistance from the government in August, 1971. In August, 1972, the figure rose to 14.7 million---the same as for August of 1973---although in 15.2 million were receiving assistance.

Bonus stamp value has risen from $143.1 million in August of 1971, to $179.4 million in August of 1972 to $186 million this past August.

The summer feeding program for children served 1.08 million two years ago, 1.15 million last year and an estimated 1.32 million this year.

Don't get us wrong. We don't begrudge a hungry family a single mouthful of food. But we do think it is strange that the federal government chooses to publicize it's burgeoning welfare statistics, literally thumping its chest over the growing number of Americans who are forced by our crazy national economics to take part in subsistance programs.

We would rather have word from Washington on what it is doing to encourage industry to create more jobs.

We would like the Nixon Administration to take another long, hard look at an increase in the minimum wage, which the President recently vetoed.

And we would like to see some positive steps to end the spiraling inflation that will make all of us eligible for government handouts before too many months pass.

project.

The council also discussed the possibility of extending airport runways to accommodate jet aircraft.

According to a letter received by former City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna in August, from L.C. Andrews, chief engineer for the Michigan Aeronautics Commission, the city may be eligible for federal funds for the project if it can submit evidence that 250 business jets would use the field each year.

With the development of condominiums, Alderman Richard Fochtman says he sees more "commuter flights" between Charlevoix and large metropolitan areas throughout the middle west.

At present, Charlevoix's longest runway is 3,500 feet.

The city has about $18,000 on hand to improve the airport.

A VERITABLE regalta of U.S. Corps of Engineers equipment has been in Charlevoix the past two weeks dredging the upper and lower Pine River Channel. The vessels included two tugs, the dredge and a scow.

School Calendar Changes OK'd by Teacher Group

Changes in the school calendar for the present school year have been ratified by the Charlevoix Education Association, according to Bill Murray, president.

Major change in the calendar is a switch in the annual spring vacation from Easter week to the last week in March (March 25 to 29) so that the break co-incides with spring vacations in other school districts, as established by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

The spring break originally had been scheduled from April 6 to 15, which leaves only six weeks before the end of the school year.

Youngsters and teachers will have only half a day of school on Good Friday, April 12.

Christmas vacation starts Dec. 22 and ends Jan. 2.

In other calendar changes, K-12 parent-teacher conferences have been scheduled for the evening of Nov. 28 from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m. and all day Nov. 29, from 8:15 a.m. until 3:45 p.m. and from 6:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m.

Workdays have been extended to 5 p.m. on nine days for curriculum planning and inservice training. They are Oct. 24, Nov. 7, Dec. 5, Jan. 9, Feb. 13, Feb. 27, March 13, April 10 and May 8.

Under the new calendar the last day of classes will be June 7, instead of June 11, and the last day for teachers will be June 10, instead of June 12. The new calendar includes 185 teachers days and 182 student days.

The new calendar was approved by the Board of Education at its Oct. 8 meeting.

Middle School Will Get 135 New Lockers

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at a special meeting Monday night, approved a bid for the purchase of lockers, OK'd a job description for a Building Trades aide, reviewed the 1972-73 financial report to be published next week in the Charlevoix Courier and heard numerous reports on a variety of subjects.

The bid of the Steel Equipment Co. of Orchard Lake, a subsidiary of Republic Steel, in the amount of $3,753 for 135 lockers for the Middle School was approved. The bid was the lowest of four received. The highest was $6,170. The new lockers will be received in six to eight weeks and will alleviate the crowded conditions now existing at the school. The new lockers will allow two students per locker.

The board gave its approved to a job description to a Building Trades paraprofessional whose job will be to assist the instructor John Mills, with the students in the Building Trades class which is presently building a house in Hampton Village.

Approval was given the financial report reviewed earlier and the Superintendent's progress report to be published, as required by law, in a newspaper serving the community.

In other action the board:

-Heard from Franklin Cellner regarding a bus route that comes within .4 of a mile of his home instead of to his home on Ferry-rd. as in the past. He was advised to make an appointment with Robert Bogart, business manager, who handles this phase of the operation.

-Heard a report from Janet Begrow, president of the Student Council, on the activities of the organization and some of the proposals the members hope to incorporate into the Student Government Constitution.

-Heard from Supt. James McKimmy that both the School Board and the Charlevoix Education Association had ratified the changes in the school calendar and were now working under the new calendar.

-Heard from Bogart that the heating system has been calibrated and is ready for use in the event of cold weather.

-Also heard from Bogart that work at Southgate, site of the automotive classes, had been completed and that the Fire Marshal would be informed so he could make an inspection of the improvements.

-Heard a communication from Gordon Robison, high school English teacher, voicing his objections to the board's approval of the early graduation of three student.

-Heard a report on the scheduled Parent-Teacher conferences planned for late November from Supt. McKimmy who said that a group headed by Mrs. Robert Tollas was contacting parents and arranging conferences on a privately scheduled basis for parents of all students in the Kindergarten through the twelfth grade. Each parent will be given a specific appointment with a given number of specific teachers.

Rabach Honored By Passport Office

Charlevoix County Clerk Clarence Rabach has been cited by the U.S. Department of State's Passport Office for the work he has done in processing passport applications from citizens in the area.

Rabach received a letter of commendation last week from Frances G. Knight, director of the Passport Office.

The award was established by Miss Knight to give recognition for the service of those county officers who have cooperated with the Passport Office in accepting passport applications on a volunteer basis.

In her letter to Rabach, Miss Knight wrote:

"The entire staff of this office joins me in thanking you, your deputies and assistants for the service and cooperation you have given, not only to us, but to the citizens of your community as well. We recognize that your endeavors have been a major factor in making the Passport Office a successful public service."

Rabach was modest about accepting the award.

"Etta (Howell) and Nancy (Wojan) do most of the work," he said. "They should get most of the credit."

High School Readies Big Homecoming Celebration

Rally Thursday, Parade Friday

Charlevoix High School's annual Homecoming celebration will get underway Thursday at 5:45 p.m. when students congregate at the Middle School for the ritualistic "Snake Dance" through the streets to the High School athletic field.

While the dance is in progress, members of the queen's court, flower and sword bearers will meet in the high school to receive instructions from cafeteria Principal Vane Smith and Master of Ceremonies Jim Keller.

A gigantic bonfire is planned at the south end of Kipke Field before the pep rally begins in front of the stands.

Taking part will be the High School Marching Band, directed by Gary Stutzman.

After a short band performance, cheers and the National Anthem, Stutzman will address the students and Keller will introduce the 1973 Homecoming Court, followed by announcement of the Homecoming Queen.

The queen will then "dub" co-captains Jim Potter and Jerry Skippergosh.

The band will then play a special number for the queen and she will be presented with a Homecoming rose.

The program will close with cheers and the Alma Mater.

Friday night, class floats will be assembled at the Middle School on Mason-st. at 6:15 p.m. Judges will begin their review at 6:30 p.m. and the Homecoming parade will start at 7 p.m., preceded by the Marching Band.

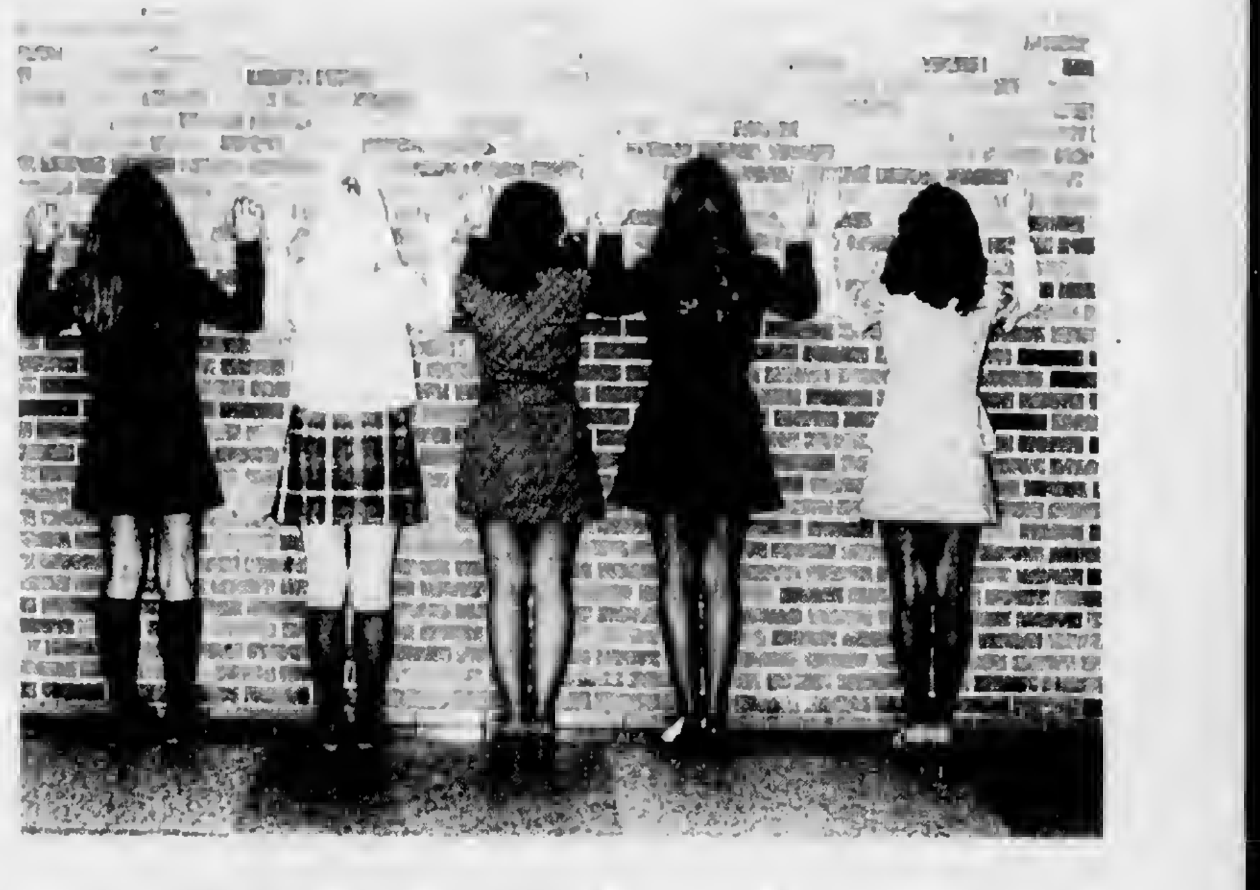
Also taking part will be the queen and her court, varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders and 1972 Homecoming Queen Elaine Carr.

A short pre-game band program will precede the Homecoming game with Gaylord.

The band will return to the field at the half and the floats will be drawn past the stands as the master of ceremonies announces the winners.

The Queen and her court will be introduced and the new monarch will be crowned by Miss Carr.

After halftime, the floats will be removed from school property for dismantling.



ONE OF these Charlevoix High School lovelies will reign as Homecoming Queen this weekend. Now here's the double mystery: Can you identify them without seeing their faces? Included in the group are Peggy Carey, Raeanne Slone, Faith Malpeli, Debby Powell and Sharon Monteith. Find out how close you came, please turn to Page 18.

Senate Overrides Milliken Veto on Antlerless Deer

In a confrontation with the Department of Natural Resources over a deer hunting policy, the Michigan Senate has over-ridden a veto of a ban on the hunting of antlerless deer in the Upper Peninsula.

State Sen. Robert W. Davis, who sponsored the original moratorium proposal, said he was very hopeful of also gaining the necessary two-thirds vote in the House to reinstate the ban.

"If the House follows the Senate lead, we will not have antlerless deer hunting in the Upper Peninsula this fall," Davis said.

"I want to clearly emphasize that the Senate's action is not aimed at Gov. Milliken, but at certain specific deer management policies of the Department of Natural Resources. Overturning the veto was our only choice to stop the doe hunting program and uphold what is so plainly the public will on this issue."

On Oct. 3, the Eastern Upper Peninsula Sportsmen's Association passed a resolution outlining a course of hunter harassment if the state permitted the taking of antlerless deer in the area this fall.

The group said that the DNR planned to issue 18,000 permits to "harvest" 3,500 does and fawns, although members of the group maintain that there are not 3,500 deer left in Chippewa, Mackinac and Luce counties.

The Sportsmen's Association resolved to patrol the affected counties six men to a car. "Any antlerless deer found will be destroyed."

"Be it further resolved anyone who has a dead doe or fawn in his possession that is not concealed will be unable to purchase gas, food, beer, liquor or obtain service of any kind in the Eastern Upper Peninsula.

Loader, Building Bids Are Sent to Committee

Opening of bids for a front-end loader and two city utility buildings was the main item on the City Council agenda Monday night.

The council also heard an appeal by Brad Steinman, representing Holiday Station Stores, on the size of the Holiday sign, discussed a trade of city-owned property at Mt. McSauba for Jim Corbin's Pine River frontage, agreed to have a survey of the city's electrical needs and discussed the hiring of a city administrator to succeed former administrator Thomas G. Hanna.

Submitting bids for the front-end loader were Miller Equipment Co. (Clark) $25,617.50; Earle Equipment Co. (Allis Chalmers) $25,300; Michigan Tractor and Machinery Equipment Co. (Caterpiller) $27,380; Northern Contractor Equipment Co. (Case) $23,711 and Wolverine Tractor and Equipment Co. (Hough) $27,000.

The bids were turned over to committee for evaluation.

Bidding on a pole-type building were Wickes Buildings, $11,000; McRae Construction, $13,500; and Farm Bureau, $15,185--plus and minus various options on color, flooring, and insulation.

Bidding on a standard steel frame building were Northrup and LaVasseur of Charlevoix; $25,600; Peninusla Construction and Supply, $20,740; Farm Bureau, $24,638.28; and Wickes Buildings, $23,745. All the bids were subject to modification by options.

All of the building bids were turned over to committee for evaluation.

Brad Steinman, the Holiday Service Stores representative from Minneapolis, Minn., said the present 42-square-foot sign at the outlet on S. Bridge-st. is the smallest sign now in use by the company. He said a smaller sign to meet the city's 36-square-foot limit would cost between $1,000 and $1,200.

Steinman said if the company is allowed to keep its present sign, it will move it to the north end of the property where there will be no interference with the Texaco sign next door.

The council told Steinman to ask for a waiver in writing. The waiver will be acted upon at the Dec. 3 meeting of the Board of Review.

Although Alderman Sam Supernaw was ready to discontinue negotiations with Jim Corbin over efforts to acquire his Pine River frontage as a scenic reserve, other members of the council are hopeful that something can be worked out. Last week, council members and Corbin surveyed a triangular parcel in the Mt. McSauba area that Corbin believes might be acceptable. Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff is working up an appraisal.

In other business the council:

–Appointed City Clerk Ida Heise as street administrator.

–Agreed to have a survey made of the city's electrical distribution system, in view of the many new residential buildings which will be in use shortly.

'Key '73' Workers To Distribute 'Luke'

Several area churches are participating in an ecumenical program entitled "Key '73" designed to encourage more Christians to read and study the word of God, according to Rev. Duane Imig, pastor of Bethany Lutheran Church.

The program also encourages Christians to "bring the good news of this Savior to all people," Rev. Imig says.

He added that many national church bodies have given permission to local churches to participate in the program as they see fit.

In Charlevoix, members of the Inter-denominational Bible Class plan to distribute the Gospel of Luke to homes throughout the area, with teams working each section of the city.

A representative of the World Home Bible League will meet with the distributors Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. at the Bethany Lutheran Church on S. Bridge-st. to get the drive moving, according to Rev. Imig.

Anyone interesed in assisting with the project is asked to contact his local pastor or to get in touch with Mrs. J. McAlister at 547-6937 or Mrs. H. Hill at 547-9437.

IF IT ISN'T snow, it's autumn leaves. Winds gusting off Pine River Channel over the weekend left this fall legacy in the doorway of The Carriage Wheel clothing shop.

Boyne City Wins Dual Track Meet

By Jim Sundberg

Charlevoix was defeated last Tuesday, Oct. 9, by Boyne City in a dual meet at Boyne City. The Boyne City course, which is o little over three miles, proved too tough a test for the Rayders and showed in the 21-40 defeat.

Ron Powers, of Boyne City, shared the lead in the hilly course with Jim Sundberg for the first lap. In the second lap of the half mile loop, Ron Powers stretched out n 20-yard lead and held it into the last 100 yards, where Sundberg outsprinted Powers to take 1st place.

Boyne took the 2, 3, 4, and 5 place spots, and this was the main reason for their win. For CHS Sundberg took 1st, Osterberg took 6th, Paul placed 10th, Drenth filled the 11th place spot, and Smith was 12th.

Golfers Finish Fifth

By Brian Osterberg

In cold winds and constant rain the Rayder varsity golf team finished up it's season by placing fifth out of twenty-two schools in the Regional golf meet, held Oct. 13 at Gladwin.

With both Class C and D schools participating, Grayling took first with 346, followed by Houghton Lake 347, Boyne City 354, Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart 358, and Charlevoix 374.

Low medalist for Charlevoix was G. Sandahl with 90, trailed by B. Klooster 91, C. Faust 93, and J. Tillen 99. According to one of the team members Coach Barry Anderson was disappointed with his team's play, but mentioned the whole tournament was played in terrible weather.

The Rayder's season record was a winning 10 - 6 - 1.

Queen Rates Kisses

Charlevoix High School is proud of it's football team and the fine performances they have turned in this season.

In the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference Charlevoix has won two and lost two. This is a good record, for our Rayders have been competing with tough area teams.

The two co-captains for the 1973 homecoming are Jim Potter and Jerry Skippergosh, who will be participating in the homecoming activities this weekend. Their duties will be to present the new 1973 queen with her flowers and the traditional golden football. The queen will then proceed to dub them with her sword. They'll respond with victory kisses.

The Red Rayders will be competing against the Gaylord Blue Devils homecoming night.

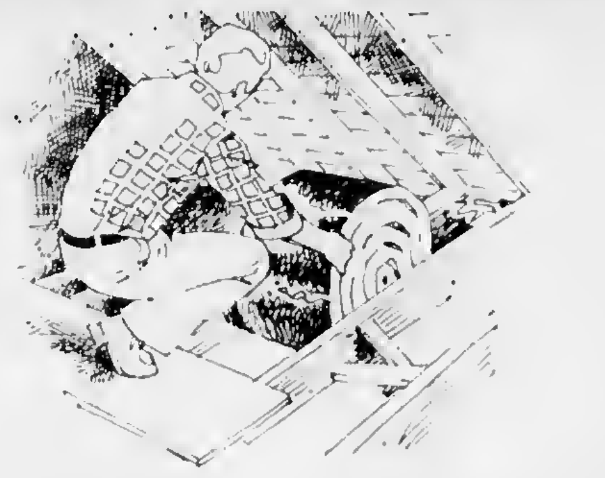
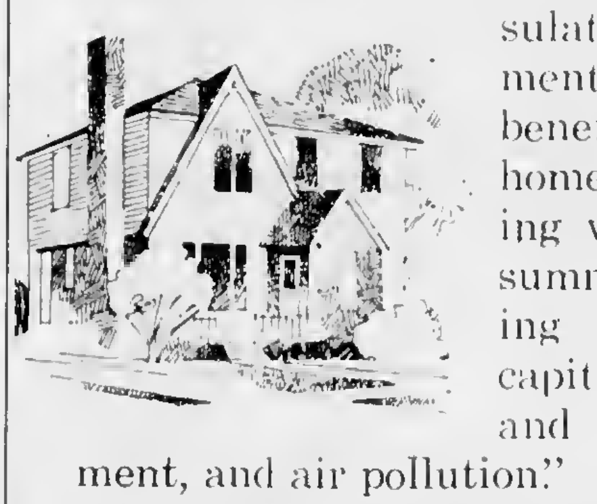
Now. An official program that can cut heating costs up to 17% and conserve Natural Gas.



If you're like most people, holding down heating bills is an idea that hits you right where you live. And, chances are, you'd like to help save Natural Gas, too. Especially during this time of energy shortages. Now there's an official program that supports both of these objectives. It was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is simply this: Installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. A recent White House study found that "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses." "Such improved insulation," the government said, "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution."



The Michigan Public Service Commission agrees with this conclusion. It has supported a study prepared by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company which found that Michigan homeowners can achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by adding six inches of insulation to their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works. First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project—and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation and hold down your heating bills. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100. Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows you just how to do the job. Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you.

Our insulation program is easy on your budget, too. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed—then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges. Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Cross Country Ski Meet

Gene Kotlarek, holder of six national championships in nordic skiing events, will be the guest speaker at the organizational meeting of the Nordlander Turski Union, a club for cross-country skiers in Northern Michigan. The meeting will be held at the Michaywe' Village Center Clubhouse, seven miles south of Gaylord on Old 27, on Nov. 1. Meeting time is 8 p.m.

Purpose of the club will be to promote cross country skiing or ski touring as it is also known. Jim Welch of Gaylord, club organizer, said the club will meet once a month and devote itself to enjoyment of the sport, trail development in area, and possible group tours. Membership is open to anyone with an interest in the fast-growing sport.

Also planned for the first meeting will be a "Expo" showing different types of ski touring equipment, clothing and accessories. Several manufacturer's representatives will be present to answer questions. Interested persons will have a chance to try their skill on "roller skis", a wheeled ski which simulates snow skiing in the cross country style.

Kotlarek will be the race chairman for the Dec. 27 running of the Michaywe-Samsonite Classic, a cross country ski race featuring members of the U.S. Nordic Ski Team and foreign competitors.

CEA Nominates Courier For School Bell Award

The Charlevoix Courier has been nominated for the Michigan Education Association's School Bell award, according to Bill Murray, president of the Charlevoix Education Association (CEA).

Murray said the awards are given annually to Michigan newscasters and newspapers which demonstrate strong and comprehensive coverage of public education on a 12-month basis.

"The Courier has consistently demonstrated its interest in reporting all phases of the educational program," Murray said, "and we feel that these important services deserve recognition for their significance in the promotion of school and community welfare."

"Not only has the Courier done an excellent job of publishing school news, but it also participates in a cooperative program with the High School Journalism classes whereby students contribute articles to be printed in the community newspaper. The editorial page is frequently devoted to commentary on education. Both sides of the issue are presented fairly and the editor accepts and prints letters dealing with educational controversy," the CEA said in its nomination letter to the School Bell Awards committee.

Presentation of School Bell Awards will take place at the annual Spring Representative Assembly of the Michigan Education Association to be held in April at Port Huron.

Red Rayders Defeat Petoskey Northmen, 9-6

Charlevoix moved into third place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference Friday night, defeating the unbeaten Petoskey Northmen 9 to 6.

The victory leaves Charlevoix with three wins and two losses for the season. The Rayders trail first-place St. Ignace (5 and 0) and second place Petoskey (4 and 1).

In other conference play Friday, St. Ignace defeated Gaylord 21 to 12; Boyne City 8 came up with its first win of the season by defeating Grayling 14 to 12; and Cheboygan blanked Rogers City 20-0.

This Friday the Rayders meet Gaylord at Charlevoix's Homecoming; St. Ignace plays at Petoskey, Cheboygan travels to Grayling and Boyne City will try for No. 2 at Rogers City.

After a scoreless first half, Charlevoix picked up two points in the third period on a safety by Phil Christ and Clayton Jones.

Early in the final period, Petoskey took the lead on a one yard dive by Kim Thomson, giving the Northmen a four-point lead.

But the margin vanished minutes later when Mike Streeter accepted the ball on the Charlevoix 40-yard line, successfully scrambled away from three Northmen tackles and sprinted 60 yards for Charlevoix's one and only TD.

Thereafter, the Rayders were successful in keeping the Northmen as far as possible from paydirt.

Statistician Dave Fowler reports that Charlevoix racked up 11 first downs during the game, compared to seven for Petoskey. In addition, Charlevoix attempted 16 passes and completed five, compared to 12 and three for the Northmen.

The Rayders also attempted 41 rushing plays, for a gain of 185 yards. Petoskey tried 36, for a gain of 158 yards.

Charlevoix also led in the number of offensive plays (57 to 48) for a total offense gain of 275 yards, compared to 239 for Petoskey.

The Rayders lost 50 yards on four penalties, compared to 20 yards on two penalties for Petoskey.

Middle School Kids See GM Science Show

"The world we live in today is merely a stepping stone to tomorrow, with countless challenging questions left for scientists and engineers to answer."

That message of opportunity was presented to Charlevoix Middle School students last Tuesday when the General Motors' research-in-action stage show stopped at the school during a visit to northern Michigan.

The show sought to encourage more student interest in science, engineering and related vocational careers. It was presented in non-technical language by GM lecturers.

A highlight of the 40-minute program was the Moon Rover, a 15-inch model of the GM Surveyor Lunar Roving Vehicle. Rover runs on solar energy.

The GM representatives explained how the Moon Rover demonstrates the potential of the continuing search for new ways to harness the tremendous energy of the sun for more efficient use.

Students also saw two fast-paced demonstrations which illustrate recent developments toward solving air and water pollution problems. First, the lecturers showed progress being made to clean up water used in an industrial process. They combined two common manufacturing pollutants to produce clean water and to eliminate the pollutants in one mutually beneficial operation.

Then students viewed a schematic model of a catalytic converter, a device GM is developing to reduce automotive exhaust pollutants. Catalytic converters someday may help to remove the automobile from the air pollution problem.

A unique way to move heavy loads with a little physical effort was illustrated by an "air bearing" platform. A small vacuum cleaner type motor provided a thin film of air under three large circular pads supporting the platform. This air-cushion reduced friction between the floor and the pads enabling finger-tip movement of the platform carrying about 200 pounds.

Levels Set For Intermediate Lake

High and low lake levels for Intermediate Lake above the Bellaire dam have been set by Antrim County Circuit Judge William Brown.

The maximum high level has been set at 607.54 feet above mean sea level. The low level is 606.94 feet.

The variation will allow for the spring run-off.

The lake level is controlled by the former power dam which was sold by the City of Charlevoix to Antrim County last spring.

The city was faced with alternatives of either selling the property or making extensive repairs to the dam and overflow structures. The council agreed to sell the property for $1 and remove power equipment from the electric generating plant.

Residents on the shores of Intermediate Lake insisted that a level for the lake be set by the court after the level of the water behind the dam was lowered by the city as a safety precaution.

Many residents were left with wide stretches of mud in front of their lakeside homes.

Testifying at a lake level hearing at the Antrim County Courthouse Oct. 12 were Gerald R. Backus, a representative of Fargo Engineering; Lloyd Holton, power plant operator for 27 years; Barbara Skinner, secretary of the Upper Intermediate Chain-of-Lakes Association and the Elk River Watershed Council and William Mathews, president of the Watershed Council.

Questioning was conducted by Prosecuting Attorney Robert Stephan.

A standing-room-only crowd filled the courtroom for the hearing.

Further hearings will take place to establish an assessment district to pay for repairs to the dam.

Attends Session On Drugs

The following actions were taken by the Charlevoix Board of Education last week.

The board heard a report from Barry Pierce of the faculty on a recent Drug Education workshop he and several members of the faculty attended. The workshop brought together representatives of five school districts who were advised that drug programs be enlarged to include the K-12 level and that alternatives to drugs such as ways of 'getting high' on life or natural means be substituted for drugs.

The board also:

--Advised the Sports Boosters that the school would be connecting with the May-st. sewer so the club could make plans to connect the sanitary facilities at the athletic field to the sewer.

--Heard reports from Don Brown and Max Novak on the recent MASB they attended in Detroit.

--Approved a policy relating to community use of School Facilities and the Public Library, spelling out the cost of all facilities and earmarking those that may utilize the facilities without charge. A copy of the policy may be obtained at the Central office.

--Heard from Supt. McKimmy regarding the proposed remodeling of the Central office building (a former portable classroom) to better utilize the available space by re-arranging the offices, changing the entrance and constructing partitions at an estimated cost of $675.00. The board gave its approval to the project.

--Heard from Gerie Stanko, Middle School principal, that the Middle School was planning a program entitled "Today and Tomorrow at the Charlevoix Middle School" at the school at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6.

--Heard from Miss Stanko that the staff at the Middle School had set as its goals for the following: To teach the whole child by assessing student abilities and proceeding with reinforced skill development and new learning experiences which foster individual fulfillment; establishing effective citizenship and pride in oneself, school community and growing toward attainment of self-idenity which builds discipline and confidence evidenced through good study habits and life patterns.

--Was advised that the second Middle School letter would be sent to parents this week. These letters carry information into the home regarding the students and happenings at the Middle School.

--Set Oct. 22 and Nov. 12 as the dates for the next school board meetings.

RESOLUTION COMMITTEE

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS:

WHEREAS, continuing high water levels abetted by the forcastable period of fall storms pose the threat of record flooding of the shorelands and river deltas of Lakes 64.

Michigan and Huron and may well exceed the disasters of late fall 1972 and early spring 1973 which spawned damages to homes, farms and industries.

WHEREAS, the threat now extends inland in those metropolitan areas located on rivers now swollen to flood stage because of the high levels of the lakes, and leaves many thousands of square miles of urban and agricultural areas to the mercy of the elements; and,

WHEREAS, there is no system of controls in either Lakes Huron or Michigan to regulate water levels and minimize flooding and none contemplated in the foreseeable future; and

WHEREAS, the federal and state governments and private interests have invested millions on millions of dallars in protective devices inland and the shorelands to ward off disaster this fall; and,

WHEREAS, even the most optimistic forecasts of the U.S. Lake Survey indicates only a small seasonal drop in levels of Lakes Huron and Michigan this upcoming fall and winter; and,

WHEREAS, there remains but one area where disaster may be averted that with a judicious use of the control gates at Sault Ste. Marie all 16 of which are open and dumping a deluge of 120,000 cubic feet of water into Lakes Huron and Michigan every second; and,

WHEREAS, the problems of flooding and erosion in Lake Superior which is dumping this deluge into the lower lakes are minimal in comparison with the very real problems of Huron and Michigan; and,

WHEREAS, the International Joint Commission, U.S. - Canada, is the court of final determination on the control of the levels of the Great Lakes; and

WHEREAS, it has the authority to offer whatever assistance man-made controls can afford to the disaster-threatened lower lakes' areas;

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, that Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners calls upon Christian Herter, Jr., Chairman of the U.S. Section of the Joint International Commission, U.S. - Canada;

1. To convene an immediate emergency session of the Joint Commission;
2. To countermand the order of the Lake Superior Board of control which opened 13 Sault Ste. Marie gates last August 7; and,
3. To order all 16 Soo gates closed pending a reappraisal of the flood threats as they relate to the entire Great Lakes system; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the final determination on the release of water out of Lake Superior be related to the total negative effect of high water in the entire Lake system not merely the one controlled lake. Any other decision leaves the uncontrolled lakes not only at the mercy of uncontrollable natural elements but also the International Joint Commission, and,

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be dispatched to Christian Herter, Jr. by telegram, and copies also be mailed to Boards of Commissioners in all shoreland counties of the lower peninsula with the request that they adopt concurring resolutions to be similarly dispatched to Christian Herter, Jr.
VOTE: Yeas, Commissioners Ingalls, Cunningham, Smith, Davis, Kullik, Kotowich, Griffin, Milstein, Kessler, Tompkins, Kujawski, Carson, Staley and Moerland, 15. Nays, Commissioner Richardson, 1. Motion Carried.

High-Stepping Bandsmen Strut Stuff for Spartans

Michigan State University's Spartan Marching Band hosted its 19th annual Band Day Saturday in Spartan Stadium, with 4,000 young musicians from 36 Michigan high schools joining the MSU band for a spectacular half-time show.

Included in the group was the Charlevoix High School Marching Band — 127 members strong — directed by Gary Stutzman and featuring the high-stepping of Drum Major Jim Sundberg.

Each high school band gave its own two-minute performance in Spartan Stadium prior to the game, starting at 11:20 a.m.

Saturday's halftime show saluted some of the world's "march kings." The MSU band, joined by all the high school twirlers, began with the familiar march by Karl King, "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite."

The opening selection by the massed bands was Kenneth Alford's "Colonel Bogey March" conducted by Kenneth Bloomquist, MSU's director of bands. Featuring the more than 200 trombones present, the 4,000 musicians played "Lassus Trombone." Concluding the performance was Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

After the game, three high school bands were selected to present postgame shows. They were Linden High School directed by William Satterlund, Jackson Northwest, directed by John L. [illegible], and Flushing High School directed by Winston [illegible].

The Owosso High School Marching Band, directed by Monte L. Sheedlo, was selected to give a special seven-minute pregame performance.

Faust Takes Part In Alcoholism Meet

Chuck Faust, a student at Charlevoix High School, attended a Youth Drinking-Driving Conference at the Higgins Lake Conservation School Oct. 20-22.

The conference brought together adults and young people concerned with the problems of the drinking driver.

Sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education at Western Michigan University, the conference was funded by several state agencies, with [illegible] transportation costs borne by the participants.

Keynote speaker was William Rustem, Gov. William Milliken's press secretary.

Discussions were held on the topics "What Leads a Person to Drink?", "Pharmacological Aspects of Drinking," "What May Happen if you Drink and Drive" and "Where and When is Alcohol Education Taught in the School and Community."

Suggests Student Loans To Attract Physicians

State Rep. Mark L. Thompson (R-106 District) has requested that legislation be prepared that would allow Michigan Blue Shield to institute a medical student loan program in the state.

Under this program, medical students would be aided in acquiring loans from a number of participating banks throughout the state if they would agree to later practice medicine in areas experiencing shortages of doctors. Loans of up to $5,000, co-signed by Blue Shield, would be available to 200 students annually.

Blue Shield has been conducting the medical student loan program in several other states but has been thwarted in efforts to initiate such a program here because of a conflict with an existing state law.

Rep. Thompson feels that the Blue Shield program is tailored to meet the needs of northern areas of the state.

Said Thompson, "Initiation of this program would be a major step toward resolution of the chronic and continuing shortage of medical personnel in Northern Michigan. Blue Shield is willing to promote the medical student loan program in Michigan and I am confident that the Legislature will move rapidly to authorize the program here."

According to Thompson, he first became aware of the program as the result of inquiries from the Atlanta (Michigan) Chamber of Commerce.

A new full-time chef has joined the staff at Leutheuser's Restaurant on Bridge-st.

He is Tony Hall, 46, who has been chef at the Leelanau Homestead in Glen Arbor for the past four years.

In addition to his regular duties, Hall will assist owner and chef Heinz Leutheuser in preparing the international specials which will be offered at the restaurant every Thursday evening this winter, starting Nov. 1.

A native of Vienna, Ga., Hall has mastered the culinary arts on-the-job, working as a chef at some of the finest resorts in the Pocono Mountains – including the Sky Top Lodge, the Skyline Inn and the German Hotel.

Hall and his wife, Isabelle, live in Traverse City. They have two children. A daughter, Mrs. Dan (Sally Ann) Humphrey lives in Tucson, Ariz. Their son is Rev. David Hall, pastor of the Assembly of God Church in Juneau, Alaska.

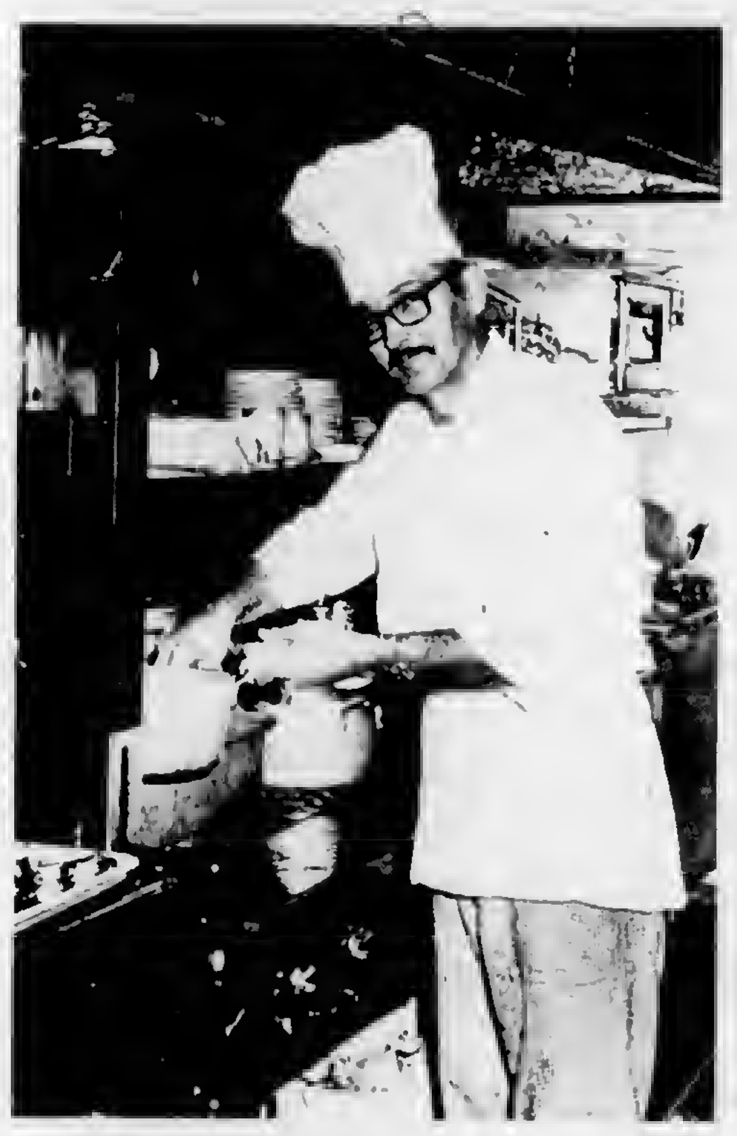
"If Heinz likes it, that's my spectalty," he laughed.



TONY HALL, new chef at Leutheuser's Restaurant, prepares a batch of brown gravy for short ribs of beef. Hall learned his trade on the job, working at some of the finest resorts in the East.

Medusa Earnings Up, But Officers Unhappy

Medusa continued to break records during the third quarter ended Sept. 30, according to the company's financial statement comparing 1973 with 1972.

Billings to customers were up 11 percent ($41.3 million to $45.8 million); net income before taxes was up 22 percent ($6.1 million to $7.5 million); net income was up 16 percent ($3.8 million to $4.4 million); and earnings per common share were up 17 percent (from $1.50 to $1.75).

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, billings were up 30 percent, income before taxes was up 36 percent, net income was up 28 percent and earnings per common share were up 26 percent.

However President Robert W. Fort and Chairman Ellery Sedgwick jr. are still not happy with earnings, claiming they are inadequate in relation to investment.

"The entire cement industry has the same problem," the corporate officers told shareholders. "When operating rates exceed 90 percent of capacity, our industry normally earns a reasonable return on capital, but current price controls are depressing profits.

"As a result, the cement industry has little incentive and in some cases little ability, to expand its plants to meet the current shortage of cement.

"Imports of cement have boomed, often at prices above domestic price ceilings. Without adequate profits, the cement companies cannot expand to meet the needs of the construction industry — which is the largest employer of people in this country," the report concluded.

Medusa paid a 35-cent dividend in September, compared to 31.2 cents in June.

Interested persons may sign up at the Recreation Department or at the first class session.

Registration fee is $5.

The class will last 10 weeks and include exercises, games and a weekly progress report on each student.

Resignation Least Painful Route for Nixon and Nation

The incredible events which took place in the nation's capital Saturday night only served to cast new doubts on President Nixon's ability to handle the reins of government while under the cloud of Watergate.

When his hand-picked Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox refused to accept the President's "summary" version of the Watergate tapes, Nixon ordered Attorney General Elliott Richardson to fire him.

Richardson, who believed Cox was doing a superb job, refused. Instead, he himself resigned.

Then the President asked Richardson's successor, William Ruckelhaus, to fire Cox. Ruckelhaus refused and was fired by the President before he had a chance to resign.

Next in line was Robert H. Bork, who fired Cox. The Federal Bureau of Investigation then moved in and sealed off Cox's office, denying the special prosecutor access to his records.

Sunday, the FBI left the premises, but the Justice Department will never be the same. Nor will the Executive Branch.

On Sunday, four Democratic congressmen and one Republican, Paul McCloskey of California, served notice that they intend to introduce impeachment resolutions before the House when Congress returns from its Veteran's Day recess on Tuesday. The President undoubedly will be charged with obstructing justice in the Watergate investigation, which certainly would fall into the category of a "high crime or misdemeanor."

Whether or not the resolution achieve the necessary support is a matter of conjecture. We can be certain that any charges brought against the president will be given the most careful scrutiny by members of Congress.

In the meantime, the effectiveness of the Executive Branch in dealing with mounting domestic problems (inflation) and international problems (the Israel-Arab War) is just about zero.

From here it appears the most sane course the President could take in the best interests of the country would be to resign immediately and turn the reins of government over to House Speaker Carl Albert, a Democrat.

Or he could postpone his resignation until the Senate and House confirm Cong. Gerald Ford as vice president and leave the nation in the hands of a Republican heir-apparent.

Either man certainly would be able to do a more effective job of coping with the monumental problems that face the nation than Mr. Nixon is capable of at present.

The farcical events which took place in Washington Saturday night are a good indication that the pressures of a presidency clouded by scandal and rumors of even greater scandal are too much for Mr. Nixon to handle.

His prompt resignation not only would save the nation the embarrassment of impeachment proceedings but would allow us to start with a clean slate in dealing with crushing domestic and international problems which cry for effective, dynamic leadership from the White House.

Chamber Will Miss Merta's Enthusiasm

As much as we regret having Thomas Merta step down as executive director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, we are happy that he has chosen to stay in Charlevoix as co-proprietor of one of the city's newest businesses, Village Graphics.

In his two and one-half years with the Chamber, Merta has initiated a number of new and exciting activities which will undoubtedly be continued for years to come.

The spring and fall dinner dances were his idea.

So were the bi-annual "Fleamarkets", which bring literally thousands of collectors of memorablia to town twice a year.

The Lake Charlevoix Bicycle Tour started under Merta's tenture as Chamber chief and is now one of the biggest biking events in the state.

He also was responsible for promoting the "French seaside village theme" for the city of Charlevoix, which is starting to take hold although most of our merchants are a trifle slow in putting up bi-lingual signs.

However three of our new condominiums have French names—La Havre, La Croft and Chez Charlevoix.

He also has suggested other programs which we feel would be of a distinct advantage to Charlevoix, but have not been afforded an enthusiastic reception by the business community or the city fathers.

We are particularly sorry that the tree-planting project along Bridge-st. has not been implemented—yet. Leafy locusts along our main thoroughfare would certainly improve the appearance of the city and provide an added incentive for shopping downtown—particularly on sunny summer days.

Merta came to Charlevoix literally bursting with ideas on how to bring more business to town and make Charlevoix a more attractive place to live and play.

We are grateful that so much of what he set out to do has already been accomplished. And we hope he stays around for a good many years to lend his advice, counsel and-most of all-his enthusiasm to other chamber projects.

State Board Plans Meet on Public Morals

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Recently there has been considerable concern expressed regarding people's morality as a result of the Vice President's resignation, Watergate and the continued concern regarding drugs, violence and other crimes. Many people are currently agonizing over these problems and wondering what, if anything, can be done to counteract this trend in the deterioration of our society.

There is something that can be done and it is being done. Those who want to participate in this effort to do something positive are invited to attend a conference on Citizenship, Morality and Values Education on November 1st and 2nd sponsored by the State Board of Education. The meeting will be held at the Olds Plaza Hotel in Lansing beginning at 3:00 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 1.

This conference will emphasis the First Goal of Michigan Education, which is "Citizenship and Morality." The two foremost objectives of this goal are:

1). The development of adults who have self-respect, respect for others and respect for the law and

2). The development of mature and responsible citizens.

Unfortunately, the news media has given very little attention to this concerted effort on the part of those involved in education in Michigan to develop a sense of morality and values in our society. Hopefully, your Editorial Office will recognize not only the merits, but the necessity of both the conference and the publicizing of it.

Sincerely,
James F. O'Neil, Vice President
State Board of Education

U-No-Who Pays Bills

To the Editor:

One reader's reaction to Doris Huckle's excellent article under "To Whom It May Concern" is the Courier of Oct. 17, 1973 re: "Today, Education Is Big Business."

As usual, U-No-Who the taxpayer—is at the bottom of the heap while layers of bureaucracy call the shots, with more and more spending of tax money.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump Jr.

"Some day hemlock will be lumber and suckers will be fish".

Thus prophesided the simple half-naked Indian to the white man ravaging Michigans pine forests. Today, living in homes sheathed with pressed aper, we find it difficult to recall the fleeting reign of the lowly hemlock referred to. All this in less than 100.

The Red Man, content with a few dead twigs for his fire, was more appalled then impressed by the methods of these men whose cry of 'Timber' rang through the virgin forests before them and over the desolation of stumps in their wake. No log was cut beyond the first solid branch, and too often a lofty giant four feet in diameter was left to rot in its enirety when the crosscut kerf revealed a thread of punk..

The game, which the Indian killed only to fulfill his needs, retreated in ever diminishing numbers into the rapidly dwindling areas of cover and forage. He left a pair of beaver in each pond to breed a new colony, knowing that indiscriminate slaughter meant starvation and death for his people. The white man hunted for 'sport' and trapped for profit, unfettered by conservatism in either pursuit.

Belatedly, we are beginning to share the Indians' concern as we see wildlife becoming but two species; endangered or extinct! It was but 40 years ago that the vast swamps and hogback ridges of the upper peninsula were the domain of the timber wolf. Today he is confined to a small sanctuary near Marquette for his own preservation.

Today's commercial fisherman has replaced the bygone trapper as subject of controversy. The trapper lost his livelihood due to inevitable progress which usurps animal habitat, with an assist from an army of violaters and unscrupulous' sportsmen. One wonders if the commercial fisherman will be crowded out of existence by sheer force of numbers.

Sucker may never become fish, but who knows what the future holds. Silos, canneries and freezing plants instill complacency to the point where only a major disaster reminds us of forces beyond our control.

The industrial age coined new words, pollution and trash fish. Some may recall the Charcoal Iron Co. located in Newberry in the 30's. Year in and year out, around the clock, the company dumped steaming caustic wastes via a two mile sluice into the Tahquamenon River where this acid sludge combined with untreated municipal sewage to give the slow moving water a putrid consistency almost thick enough to plow.

With the exception of a few radical visionaries, all predicted Newberry's doom when the firm ceased operations. Operating difficulties stemmed in part from the increasing awareness of the public to environmental damage and eventually local economy bowed to ecology.

Today this rejuvenated river thrives with northern pike for the enjoyment of thousands and Newberry is still there giving the impression that on occasion one can eat his cake and have it too.

Perhaps a trapping anecdote will illustrate a facet of nature which defies legislation–human nature. The Indian was too honest and proud to conceal a scrawny pelt in the middle of the bundle, hoping it passed undetected as a prime pelt. This was common practice with the wily paleface trader; one of whom, when caught in his web of deceit, explained to the gimlet-eyed fur buyer.

"I dried that one too close to the fire".

"Also built fire too soon," observed the Indian aloud.

This crafty trapper has a modern counterpart who deals in development lots rather than furs. Of necessity there are some scurvy parcels which the glibly glosses over and for this practice is being 'roasted' by citizens and legislature alike. Were this Indian here today, viewing this roasting from the blacktopped plateau of his former hunting grounds he might be inclined to comment.

"Now white man build fire too late!"

What Are Little Boys Made Of?

By Bob Clock

After starting three little girls on the road to womanhood, Danny's arrival last year came as something of a surprise to Judy and me. But we weren't particularly worried. After all, kids are all pretty much alike, aren't they, regardless of sex?

That's what we though when we brought Danny home from the hospital 20 months ago. But those 20 months certainly have opened our eyes to differences in the sexes that have nothing to do with their plumbing.

I should say at the outset that our girls weren't perfect little angels. Far from it. They knew how to put the household in an uproar. But they also had periods of quiescence during which you'd hardly know they were about.

But not Danny! He is in motion from the time he gets up in the morning until he goes to bed at night and the rest of us---including the girls--are worn ragged trying to keep up with him.

"If he had been the first, there wouldn't have been any more," Judy complained the other night after a particularly hectic day. "And he hasn't even started the 'Terrible Two's' yet!"

"Maybe he started early," I suggested hopefully, knowing full well that the situation is going to get worse before it gets better.

For one thing, little boys are noisy. For example, he isn't content to pad through the house yanking a pull-toy behind him. No sir. The pull-toy has to have appropriate sound effects. Brrr! Vroom! Vroom! Vroom!

"Someone catch that lamp before he knocks it over again!"

Clatter! Crash! Bank! Vroom!

No drawer in the house—even the heavy tool drawer in the kitchen cupboard—is immune from his almost hourly investigations. I find screwdrivers and pliers all over the house, from the attic to the basement.

And there is no place in the house to put valuables now that he has started to climb.

For a while, the top of the piano was just beyond his reach and that is where we left such things as key rings, coin purses, watches, homework assignments and eye glasses.

But not anymore. He has found that by climbing up on the piano bench, he can step on the keyboard and come within easy reach of all the things he is supposed to leave alone.

I've never seen such a kid for climbing. He has learned that by scaling the kitchen stool, he can step over onto the counter and have a half-ton of highly breakable dinnerware at his disposal.

We have lost so much china in the past six months that we have taken to haunting every garage sale that comes along in hopes of picking up enough odds and ends to set the table for supper. I usually keep an eye out for used restaurant pieces that don't break on the first bounce.

The other night Judy had passed out on the living room sofa after a day of Danny-watching. The girls were in bed and I was at the office, my only retreat from the little devil.

Suddenly Judy was awakened with a blond head in her eye that had come crashing down from out of nowhere. Apparently Danny had been walking the back of the sofa—tight-rope fashion—when he lost his balance and dove headlong into his mother.

Judy had a shiner for three days that only heavy applications of black-eye cosmetics could conceal.

"Why don't you get him to fall on the other eye," I suggested, "and everyone will think you're wearing eye shadow?"

She cut me short with one of those withering glances that says: "He's your kid, too."

Saturday, I volunteered to stay at home with Jenny and Danny and do some odd jobs in the backyard while the rest of the family went downtown.

"We won't have any problems," I assured Judy, "with two of us watching him."

Little did I realize that in the great outdoors, the entire Arab army couldn't keep up with him. While my back was turned he emptied a sack of nails, took after the dog with a claw hammer and either ate or buried a dozen screws I needed to repair the shed door.

Then suddenly things were very quiet.

"Where did he go?" I asked Jennifer, almost afraid she might know.

"He was here just a minute ago," she said. "He was trying to pick Katie's potted asters."

I ran round to the front of the house but didn't see him. Then back to the back yard. Jennifer was checking the alley. Then suddenly my eye lighted on a step ladder leaning against the side of the shed. On the top rung, just ready to step onto the shed roof was you-know-who.

"We don't have to tell your mother about this," I told Jennifer as I paddled Danny's little behind. "There are some things a mother shouldn't know. It makes their hair turn grey."

"And their eyes turn black," Jennifer added in solemn agreement.

Magic Daughters

By JIM FITZGERALD

Now it can be told. When my mother was pregnant for me, she was bitten in the neck by Bert Parks.

It can be told because my No. 2 daughter is a candidate for homecoming queen at her high school. Candidates were elected 3 weeks before the crowning so the girls would have time to comb their hair.

Steady readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will recall that I am a coward when it comes to criticizing such traditional American institutions as beauty contests. It requires no bravery to call the President of the United States a burglar. Everyone does it and no one cares. But if you hint that a beauty queen has her values on backward, her mother is liable to break your face.

So I have always held my fire until I became part of the target. For instance, I always thought baton twirling was the biggest waste of energy since the pyramids were built. But I never wrote about it until my oldest daughter was strutting in front of the band.

This is my defense against irate parents. I can always tell them: "I wasn't talking about your kid. I know your kid is an exception - the best baton twirler in the world. I was talking about my kid. When throws the baton up, people in the next town cover their heads with their arms."

So now comes Chris with the glorious news that she's been nominated, along with 5 other girls, for homecoming queen. The winner, selected by vote of the entire school, will be crowned during half-time at the football game. The 6 girls will be escorted onto the field by their fathers.

Their fathers! My god, that's me. Say it isn't so.

I have always loathed any sort of beauty contest. I have never seen a Miss America who didn't look as if she ran on batteries. There is something silly about women prancing and preening before judges. I keep looking for their leashes.

And besides, the value of a beauty crown has certainly been decreased considerably by the frequency of the crownings. Today there are queens selected to reign over all events except funerals. There is a Miss World, a Miss Everytown, and a Miss Sacroiliac. And, now that I've mentioned it, the U.S. Morticians Assc. will probably come up with Miss Grief, in a black bikini.

In view of all this nonsense, how can I possibly explain to my inner self that my outer self is going to be an official escort for a homecoming queen candidate?

Worse yet, how can I explain that, win or lose, I'll be so proud I'll have tears in my stupid eyes? I know, because I remember how I beamed and leaked the first time I saw my baton twirler lead the band.

Moral: Daughters are magicians. They can turn fathers into monkeys.

Please pass the bananas, Bert.

To Whom It May Concern...

By Doris Huckle

Remember Portside Arts Fair's 1971 Purchase Prize judge Mike Church?

The same Michael P. Church, director of cultural activities for the University of Michigan Extension Service who also came north to judge Crooked Tree Art Council's first photography show this summer?

Mike's enthusiasm seems to know no end as he travels hundreds of thousands of miles and sometimes works around the clock in his chosen mission: to awaken the Michigan populace; tell them about further enjoyment in their individual lives by getting involved in the world of art as participants and / or appreciators of the non-automated world.

Among glowing titles earned through the years are "Michigan's Johnny Appleseed of Art" and "Michigan's Evangelist of Art".

This year the Church that doesn't give up has been awarded the Outstanding Service Award of the Michigan Association of Professions, a further honor to a long list of recognitions.

Mike took time out to tour East Jordan on his visits north in 1972. Typically, he wrote letters to Mayor Harry Watson and other citizens here, encouraging use of the property as a community arts and recreational center for all age groups.

Later, among other possibilities, he suggested investigating funding from the American Bi-Centennial Commission seeking worthy projects for observance of America's 200th birthday.

We've learned Elm Point has also been toured by other world renowned notables in the arts, including Willis Woods, director of Detroit's Fine Arts Museum.

Was someone using the name of Mott, Flint, only fooling when they signed the guest list at the 1973 arts Fair?

According to one member of the mayoral Elm Point Committee: "Lots of people have made suggestions, but we aren't planning anything really until we find out how the people vote on whether to sell the property or not, in November."

Once we ask the Committee chairman why he didn't inlcude someone from the Portside Arts Fair group as a member of his planning group. We thought it important.

He informed us precisely why he didn't choose a member from Portside. They were too biased toward art only. He wanted a representative group from all other people's interests in the community: the school, senior citizens, scouts, a former city council member, the foundry workers.

Will that's good: we don't know a single one of them that aren't involved in the Art of Living too.

We still can't agree with his statement, however, that foundry workers don't care anything about art, or knowing about it.

We are more agreeable about Mike Church's additude, that aware of or not; those foundry workers are industrial artists and craftsmen themselves. They are, in a way, exactly what the world of Arts and Crafts is all about.

Even a manhole cover or a fire hydrant has to be designed first, then artesians and craftsmen create that patterns, the molds, mix and oversee pouring of the metal.

A potter does the same with clay.

A painter does the same with paints and canvas.

A sculptor does the same in three dimension.

Everything, no matter where we look, was first an original idea of design in someone's mind and we do not except God.

It is really unrealistic and impractical for some of humankind to also labor toward sharing ideas and concepts that can be applied in the workaday world of their fellowman?

All who labor are, in their own way, artists and craftsmen, if they are doing their job well.

It's learning more about original art that makes for further enjoyment in doing a good job no matter what the employment.

More and more men and women in the industrial offices of America are learning to appreciate this truth. They are increasingly surrounding themselves and fellow workers with original works of the full time creative artist, sustaining those gifted ones whose vision enlarges their own appreciation of the world around them.

Some modern sculpture is created from cast-off industrial scrap metal. To some viewers they are not nearly as beautiful as the tailings many a foundry worker creates, unknowingly, at his

Rayder JV's Bow To Petoskey Squad

By Norm Probert

Charlevoix's JV football team lost a close, hard-fought game to Petoskey last week, 18-12.

The little Rayders led by Doug Smith, who turned in 113 yards of rushing for a 9.4 average per carry. Randy Williams was credited with 50 yards, for 5.5 yards per carry.

Gary Probert rushed 32 yards and Terry Drew 25 yards.

The Rayder offense line composed of Casey Culbertson, Matt Doan, Ed Bourke, John Cinnamon, Ed Mann, Mike Way and Mark Hosmer completely out-played Petoskey with good blocking—paving the way for Charlevoix's 220-yard rushing attack.

Doug Smith did all of the scoring for the little Rayders on 72 and six-yard runs.

Scoring for Petoskey were Bill Evashevski, a TD on a one-yard plunge; and Kevin Griffin, on a two-yard run and a one-foot plunge, with time running out.

Petoskey scores were set up by bad Rayder breaks, with two blocked punts and a fumble deep in Charlevoix territory, giving the Northmenmen an excellent field position.

The Rayder defense was led by Dan Oliver with 16 tackles.

Other little Rayders who twice held Petoskey on Down inside the CHS 15-yard line were Randy Williams, Jim Marsh, Mark Hosmer, Matt Doan and Mike Left.

Charlevoix travels to Gaylord this Thursday. Last game of the season will be against Cheboygan at Kipke Field, starting at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 1.

Milliken Hails County's Environmental Survey

Maps Pinpoint Problem Areas

County planners have a new tool to work with in charting the growth and development of Charlevoix County.

It is unique "Environmental Features Survey" prepared on a $10,000 federal grant from the office of Housing and Urban Development by Johnson, Johnson and Roy of Ann Arbor.

The survey is contained in a spiral-bound booklet measuring 24 inches by 18 inches which includes plastic overlays that tell at a glance such terrain features as slope, ground water, lakes, soils and vegetation.

A copy of survey has been presented to Gov. William Milliken by County Planner William Mercer and Planning Commission Chairman Walter Thorsen.

The governor reportedly feels that the survey may prove so valuable that it will serve as a model for other county planners.

The survey will be used by county planners in determining which areas of the county are suitable for development and which areas should be avoided.

Mercer says the survey, which covers the entire county including Beaver Island, is too general to be the last word in planning decisions.

"But it certainly lets us know what areas may be developed and the problems the developers will face. It also tells us which areas are unsuitable for development for one reason or another," he says.

The introductory message points out that the survey was designed as a "reference planning tool."

"It provides a systematic method to be used by the Planning Commission in decision-making that channels or directs growth and development. More specifically, it enables the Planning Commission to intelligently assess new development proposals and arrive at a denial or approval decision on the basis of a proposal's positive or negative impact on existing environmental conditions."

Mercer sees the survey as an "early warning system" showing where environmental issues may be most intense when faced with development pressure.

The clear plastic overlays are color coded to point up various environmental features which would be an asset or a liability to development.

A COPY of Charlevoix County's new "Environmental Features Survey" has been presented to Gov. William Milliken by members of the Planning Department. The survey was prepared by Johnson, Johnson and Roy of Ann Arbor on a $10,000 grant from the federal office of Housing and Urban Development. From left are Carl Johnson and Dale Sass of the planning firm, Gov. Milliken, Walter Thorsen, chairman of the County Planning Commission; and County Planner William Mercer.

Fran's Day Proclaimed By Legion

Saturday, Nov. 3, will be "Fran Martin Day" in Charlevoix, according to Louis McKenzie, a spokesman for the American Legion Post.

The post is holding a dance and buffet at the post home on Garfield-st. Saturday evening to raise funds for a new mobile electric chair for Miss Martin, veteran Charlevoix news woman.

Miss Martin's present chair, which qualifies for antique license plates, was damaged in an accident on the South Hill this summer. Miss Martin sustained minor injuries.

Tickets for the dance, which will feature the music of the Four Fifths, may be purchased from Harry Pearsall, Bob Wasoski or Ray Wood.

The Legion also is selling tickets on a color TV set as part of the fund-raising drive.

Money raised over and above the cost of the chair will go to the Sheltered Workshop on Garfield-st.

FIDDLER PATRICK BONNER provided music for Beaver Island festivities since his boyhood. Mr. Bonner died Friday at age 90. Funeral services were held on the island Monday.

Last Rites Are Held For Island Fiddler

Patrick J. Bonner, Beaver Island's celebrated Irish fiddler, died Oct. 26 at Leelanau Memorial Hospital in Northport where he had been a patient for 10 days.

Funeral was held Monday at Holy Cross Church on the island, the Rev. Herbert Graf, OFM, officiating. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mr. Bonner was born on Beaver Island Nov. 7, 1882, and learned to play the fiddle as a boy, picking up and memorizing the Irish tunes brought to the New World by his forebears and his friends and neighbors on the island.

His ear for the lilting Irish melodies was so acute that the Music Department at the University of Michigan invited him to come to Ann Arbor several years ago to make tapes of his Irish music for the university's archives.

Mr. Bonner played on an ancient violin dating from the early 1700's with a Stradivari label pasted inside the case. However, the instrument was never verified as a genuine Stradivarius.

As a young man, Mr. Bonner became good friends with the late "Dr." Fyodor Protar, the Russian nobleman who migrated to Beaver Island about the turn of the century by way of Chicago. Although Dr. Protar had no formal medical training he was interested in the healing arts and served as the island's doctor until his death in 1927.

Mr. Bonner, who farmed across the road from the Protar home, became the unofficial custodian of the doctor's property, taking island visitors through the log home—which has been kept just as it was when the doctor was alive—and escorting them to Dr. Protar's fieldstone tomb nearby.

In 1916, Mr. Bonner was married to the former Rose Boyle. Although the Bonners spent several winters in Charlevoix in recent years, they always returned to their island home on the first boat

State to Weigh Merits Of Broad Land Use Bill

(The following article on the Mastin Land Use Bill was written by Jim Warner, a former Charlevoix resident who is studying journalism at Michigan State University. Warner thinks the bill should be of interest to Charlevoixans, considering the importance of land use legislation to the Charlevoix area.)

By Jim Warner

With more and more of northern Michigan's forests and lakeshores being turned into condominium and motel sites, restaurants, and tourist attractions, an increasing number of residents have begun to wonder if and where all this land development will end.

Prompted by this growing concern and increasing rates of building projects, a bill has been introduced into the state legislature which would create an administrative agency to organize and control any land development in the state.

The bill, which is sponsored by Rep. Philip Mastin, D-Hazel Park, calls for the creation of a seven-member Land Use Commission as a part of the Department of Natural Resources. This commission, after being appointed by the governor, would then formulate a statewide land use plan.

According to Mastin, the land use plan will allow for a large amount of local input and would have the positive effect of encouraging more planning at the local level.

"The bill," said Mastin, "is not intended to establish virtual state control over all land use planning. As a matter of fact, the local units could benefit greatly by having stronger laws to back them up."

The governor's office hasn't been quite as enthusiastic about the bill as Mastin. Mark Mason, an aide to Gov. William Milliken, said that the governor would rather see amendments to existing laws instead of the creation of what Mason called a virtually impenetrable bureaucratic maze. Mason added that the governor is working on his own land use proposals and will offer them soon.

Rod Brown, administrative assistant to Sen. Robert Davis of Gaylord, said that Sen. Davis agrees, as do a majority of the legislators, that some type of land control legislation is needed.

Garden Club Studies 'Autumn Arrangements'

By Hilda Alexander

Members of the Garden Club met recently with Mrs. Edith Close. Co-hostess was Mrs. Ann Burlin.

This being the first meeting of the new year, the new president, Mrs. Edward Lewand, presided. Other officers are first vice president, Mrs. Conrad Klooster; second, Mrs. Nancy Wood; secretary, Mrs. Dale Glass; and treasurer, Mrs. Jack Stebe, jr.

Reports were given by the chairman of new committees on plans for the new year.

Janis Glass, the civic chairman, gave an interesting report on their work started by sharing garden knowledge with the community youth. She and co-workers helped plant spring bulbs with the children on the grounds of the Ironton Trainable School.

Margit Hamilton is conservation chairman with Mildred Campbell. Workshop meetings during the year will be planned by Edith Close.

The object of this club is to beautify the home and city, to cultivate a love and knowledge of trees, plants and flowers and to foster a true friendship among its members.

The program was "Autumn Arrangements" by a group of members using flowers given by several members. Mrs. Ann Olesak was the winner with her arrangement of mums. Mrs. Pearl Rowe was the judge and explained the technique of flower arranging.

Several members attended the District five annual meeting by the Friendship Garden Club in Lake City Oct. 5 and gave an interesting report.

The next meeting will be Nov. 13th with Mrs. Wilma Stabnick, co-hostess Irene Graham. The program "Table Settings" by June Couse, Ethelyn Edwards and Eleanor Freedman.

Now. An official program that can cut heating costs up to 17% and conserve Natural Gas.

If you're like most people, holding down heating bills is an idea that hits you right where you live. And, chances are, you'd like to help save Natural Gas, too. Especially during this time of energy shortages. Now there's an official program that supports both of these objectives. It was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is simply this: Installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. A recent White House study found that "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses." "Such improved insulation," the government said, "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution."

The Michigan Public Service Commission agrees with this conclusion. It has supported a study prepared by Michigan Consolidated Gas Company which found that Michigan homeowners can achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by adding six inches of insulation to their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works. First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project—and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation and hold down your heating bills. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100. Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows you just how to do the job. Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you.

Our insulation program is easy on your budget, too. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed—then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges. Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Surplus Eggs Can Be Frozen Successfully

That egg special sounded good for your pocketbook, but what can you do with several dozen eggs?

Before you run to the cookbook and start searching frantically through the egg recipes, the Michigan State University foods and nutrition specialists suggest you freeze the eggs for later use.

To freeze the whole egg, you just blend the whites and yolks together, stir in one quarter teaspoon of sugar or salt per egg and cover tightly. The salt or sugar prevents the egg from becoming thick and gummy.

When freezing egg yolks separately, you still have to add the sugar or salt. Egg whites don't require the extra ingredients to maintain their quality during freezing.

The specialists warn that eggs can't be frozen in the shells successfully.

Dinner-Dance Set Nov. 10 By Mental Health Clinic

The Mental Health Clinic dinner-dance will be held Saturday, Nov. 10, at Boyne Mountain Lodge.

Proceeds from the clinic's only fund-raising project will be used to maintain and further expand facilities for the counseling and treatment of emotionally disturbed children and adults in Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Cheboygan counties.

Ticket chairmen for the Charlevoix area are Mrs. David Fowler, Mrs. Robert Tollas and Mrs. Robert Bergmann.

This past year the care program has expanded to include parent-child workshops and staffing of a local community hospitals in-patient unit for those who might benefit from hospitalization. The in-patient unit helps keep beds at the Traverse City State Hospital available for more critical cases.

Under Public Act 54, the state will provide 75 cents for every 25 cents collected locally for the Mental Health Clinic.

The social hour will begin at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8.

Parents to Have Chance To Meet With Teachers

Letters were sent out Tuesday, Oct. 30, with all students in the Charlevoix schools inviting parents to attend conferences Nov. 28 and 29.

Each parent is being given an opportunity to request a specific teacher to confer with and time that he or she would like to attend the conference. All parents are urged to participate in these parent-teacher conferences.

Supt. McKimmy states that, "It is felt that teachers and students gain by having parents meet to discuss the student's progress and learning style. Teachers often comment about the additional help they are able to give the student because of information or ideas presented by parents in conference. The teachers and administrators urge all parents to attend conferences as they are important for all students and not limited to those who experience academic difficulty."

Information about ideas to discuss with teachers for effective conferences will be sent to parents during the next three weeks. Each parent who attends a conference will also receive a booklet on how to get your child to listen to you and how to listen to your child.

Notices are being sent out early to permit the scheduling of the parent requests. An attempt will be made to schedule the teacher preferred and time submitted by each parent. A group of volunteer parents, chaired by Mrs. Fran Tollas, is preparing the conference schedules.

Parents who do not receive an invitation letter and request form may submit their request by telephoning the school or complete the form published in this newspaper.

Wrap Meat Properly For Freezing

Protect your meat dollar by always wrapping meat properly before freezing.

Foods and nutrition specialists at Michigan State University explain that moisture-vapor-proof wrapping is important to maintain the quality of frozen foods.

Because freezer air is very cold and dry, improperly wrapped foods loose their moisture, flavor and quality.

Honors Program Admits Bill Wilson

Library Notes

Aroma of Old Kitchens Lingers in City Cookbook

This week we would like to mention a book which is neither new or on the best seller list. It is the "Charlevoix Cookbook," published in Charlevoix in 1907, and it contains many many recipes contributed by the ladies nearly 75 years ago. We think many of our patrons will enjoy coming in and leafing thru this charming little booklet and discovering familiar names, such as Mrs. F.E. Cartier, Mrs. Iddings, Mrs. D.H. Fitch, Mrs. Partridge, Mrs. A.L. Coulter and Mrs. Archibald Buttars to name only a few. There is even a recipe for Gooseberry Conserve submitted by Mrs. Hemingway. This was a donation to the Library and we are most grateful for it.

'Beulah Land' is an expansive and important new novel by Lonnie Coleman. It is the story of a rich cotton plantation in Georgia during its golden age from 1820 to 1861. The Kendricks were the white masters of 150 black slaves, but who was master and who was slave are questions that have no final answers. The hundred and more who populate this engrossing book are people the reader will come to know and love, and never forget.

"The Devils Lieutenant" is certainly the most ambitious, the most fascinating and the most beautifully characterized work that M. Fagyas has produced to date. It concerns a crime that rocked an empire in 1909 when a young officer in Franz Josef's army, passed over for promotion, was accused of mailing poisoned capsules to ten members of the Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Army general staff. The scene is set in glittering Vienna, and the scandal involves one of the most extraordinary investigations on record. We like the opening sentence: "On the afternoon of Nov. 17, the last day of his life, Captain Richard Madder left his office at the Ministry of War an hour earlier than usual." Now if that won't intrigue the reader, nothing will.

We just have space to report on the new Erma Bombeck book "I lost everything in the Post-Natal Depression." millions of fans are familiar with Erma Bombeck's nationally syndicated column. Her new book is an irreverent, hilarious account of family life. She gives us such profound statements as the following: "I have dieted for the last two decades and lost a total of 758 pounds. By all calculations, I should be hanging from a charm bracelet."

How long have you thought about paneling that room? Do it before the Holidays.

Beaver Islander Member Of All-Michigan CG Unit

An experiment in recruiting for the U.S. Coast Guard ended successfully Oct. 12 when a company of recruits made up almost entirely of young men from Michign completed their basic training at the Coast Guard Training Center in Cape May, N.J.

Although the idea of training groups of enlisted men from the same area of the country as a unit has been used before by the other services, this is the first time it has been done by the Coast Guard in Cape May.

The 34 Michigan recruits were sworn into the Coast Guard during ceremonies at Grand Haven, Mich., traditionally known as "Coast Guard City USA," on Aug. 4, the 183rd anniversary of the Coast Guard. They made up the bulk of the recruit company officially known as "Papa 88," but more often referred to at the Training Center as the "Michigan Company."

The program began as an experiment to see how men from a common background would respond as a group to basic training.

Papa 88 was named "Honor Company" for general military bearing during their eighth week of training and won two academic honors including the highest average in the second progress test scored at the Training Center during the past two years.

Basic training at Cape May is designed to prepare recruits both mentally and physically for their new responsibilities as members of this country's only active peacetime Armed Service. During the 10 weeks of training, recruits are instructed in Coast Guard History, seamanship, the use of small arms and physical fitness. They also are trained in small boat handling, first aid, firefighting and driver improvement.

Following their graduation, the new Coast Guardmen will enjoy a short leave period before reporting either to petty officer training schools or various Coast Guard units around the world.

They will be required to put their training to immediate use carrying out the Coast Guard's ever increasing tasks. Operating under the Department of Transportation, the Coast Guard saves thousands of lives and assists millions of dollars worth of property every year.

In addition, the Coast Guard enforces laws at sea, conducts the yearly International Ice Patrol in the North Atlantic and maintains a world-wide system of LORAN (Long Range Aids to Navigation) Stations to provide navigational assistance to ships and planes. Recently, the Coast Guard has assumed added responsibilities in the fields of pullution control and pleasure boat safety.

During time of war and national emergencies, the Coast Guard is placed under the Department of Defense and operates as a highly specialized branch of the Navy.

Two individual honors were presented to Michigan men from Papa 88. The company's recruit commander, Ricki G. Benson of Utica, Mich., was named the company honor man, and Michael R. Cote, of East Lansing, Mich., was named "Best Shipmate".

Hearing Set Nov. 1 on Change to Pound Nets

A public hearing will be held in Lansing Thursday, Nov. 1 by Michigan's Department of Natural Resources to air its recommended guidelines for helping certain commercial fishermen change over to gear specified under proposed 1974 Great Lakes commercial fishing regulations.

The hearing is set to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the State Law Building Auditorium.

The guidelines to be covered at the hearing are part of a compromise reached during the Oct. 11-12 Commission meeting, between DNR Fisheries Division officials and representatives of commercial fishermen.

DNR 1974 commercial fishing rule recommendations were up for Commission action at that meeting, but that action was deferred after Walt Stoddard of Quanicassee, Michigan Fish Producers Association president, pleaded for more time and information from the DNR prior to possible Commission approval of the new rules.

DNR commercial fishing regulations, which had been modified slightly following two mid-September public hearings concerning the DNR's 1974 recommendations, would limit to 30 the number of Lake Superior and Lake Michigan commercial fishermen allowed to convert from gill nets to trap or impoundment nets.

About 60 fishermen currently are using large mesh gill nets to catch whitefish. The DNR wants large mesh gill nets banned from the Great Lakes because of their high incidental harvest of lake trout.

Stoddard told commissioners that commercial fishermen need more time to analyze what the proposed equipment changeover would mean to them economically and also in regard to learning how to use trap and impoundment nets. Many of the large mesh gill netters, he said, have never fished with other kinds of gear, and are concerned about the time and effort it would take them to learn.

The gill netters also want to know more about how the DNR intends to select the 30 of their number who will be allowed to convert, Stoddard said, as well as more about the method used by the DNR in determining that only 30 would be selected for conversion.

Commercial fishermen will get that information at the Nov. 1 hearing, says Dr. Wayne H. Tody, DNR Fisheries Division chief, who struck the compromise with Stoddard during the two-day commission meeting.

Another term of the compromise agreement would allow the 30 fishermen selected for conversion to "live" gear to continue fishing with gill nets while taking steps toward that conversion, which could take them the better part of 1974 to complete, Tody says.

Stoddard also asked that provisions be made for compensating gill net fishermen affected by the rules change, and Tody responded that the DNR is drafting a proposal for enabling legislation to that effect. Gov. William G. Milliken supports such compensation, and telephoned DNR Director A. Gene Gazlay during the Commission meeting to tell him so.

Tody, who told commissioners the decision to recommend that only 30 gill netters be allowed to convert was based on estimates of the annual harvest the whitefish population can tolerate in lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron, places that figure at 50,000 pounds per trap net operation. There already are about 30 whitefish trap netters operating in the three lakes, he says, although large mesh gill nets have been prohibited in Michigan waters of Lake Huron since 1970.

The DNR will ask the Legislature to compensate all gill netters affected by the gill net ban recommendation, Tody says, including the 30 fishermen allowed to convert to impoundment gear.

The Commission tentatively approved the 1974 regulations which, in effect, deferred final action on them until the public hearing can be held and any subsequent changes prepared for submission to the Commission.

SUPERINTENDENT'S PROGRESS REPORT

Charlevoix High School is accredited by the University of Michigan and the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. During the past year the school met all of the criteria for accreditation with the exception of the requirement of an assistant principal in the high school. With the employment of a part-time assistant principal, we now meet the criteria for accreditation.

The General Fund Balance Sheet and the Statement of Revenues and Expenditures indicates that the General Fund of the Charlevoix Public Schools is financially sound. The General Fund balance as of 6/30/1973 was $62,752.72, which is the difference between assets and liabilities. This General Fund balance is insufficient to meet the financial obligations of the school district until the property taxes become due on Dec. 31, 1973, therefore, it is necessary to borrow money against the anticipated taxes and state aid to operate the school district between the dates of July 1, 1973 and December 31, 1973.

The millage levied to meet the obligation of bonded indebtedness was reduced for a period of one year to 1.85 from the previous levy of 3.4 mills. This was made possible by using monies which had accrued in this fund. This millage requirement will return to 4.5 mills for 1973-74 to meet the regular schedule of bond and interest payments.

The enrollment of the district has increased by 43 students during the past year. The number of classrooms available at the middle school is now less than the number required by the enrollment in the middle school. The board of education is in the process of organizing a citizens study committee to review the school programs, financial resources and building needs of the school district. The board of education is acting to meet the interests of the community in planning for the immediate and long term needs of the school district.

During the past year the board of education has worked to establish goals and objectives to guide its planning and activities. They anticipate that the participation of citizens on this advisory committee will assist them in adjusting these goals and objectives to meet the interest and expectations that the community has for its schools.

The board of education is appreciative to the support that the community has given to the school program. They are committed to maintaining the present high quality of the program and improving the educational benefits of the citizens of Charlevoix. We trust that the continued interest, cooperation and support will allow us to continue to provide our students an excellent opportunity to be prepared for tomorrow.

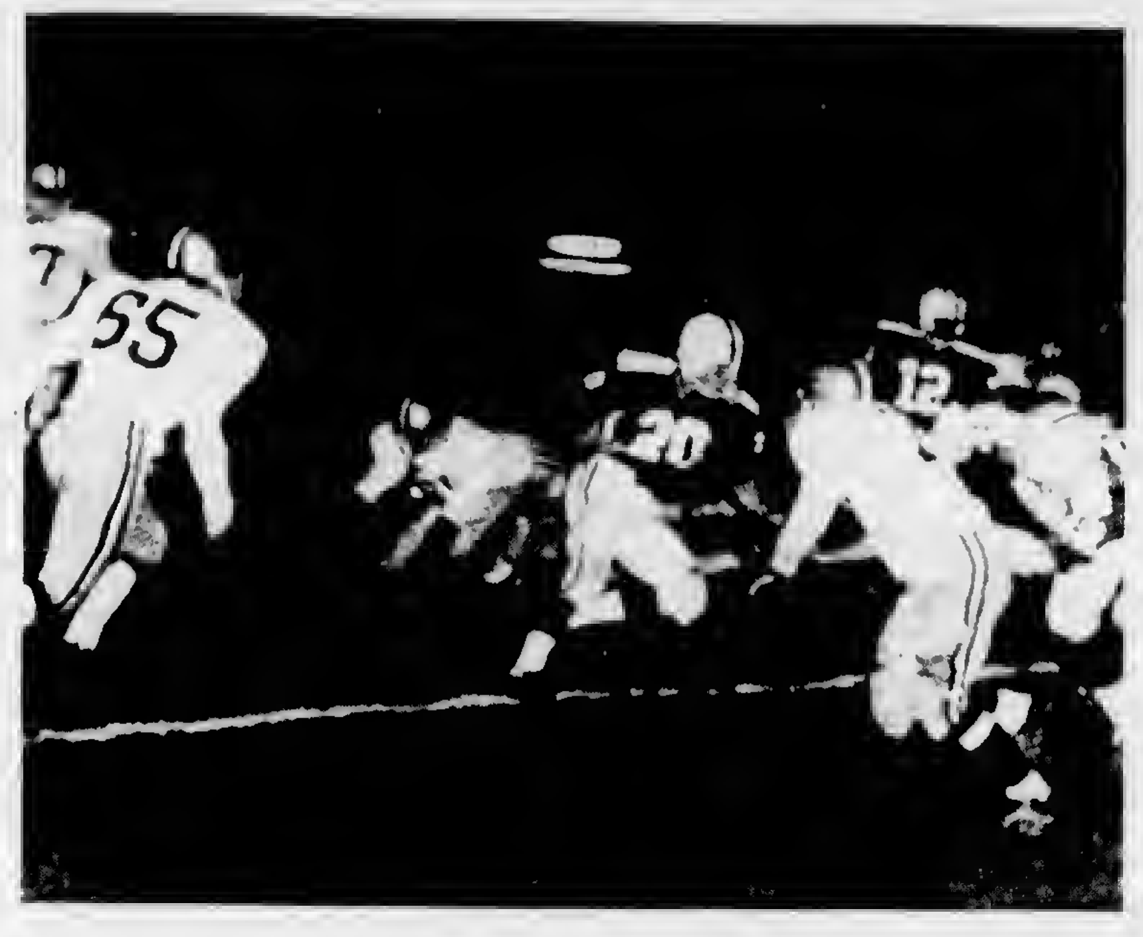
Rayders Chalk up Victory



BALL CARRIER Mike Streeter carried the ball 11 times in Friday's game, for 112 yards, or 10.2 yards per carry. Closing in above is Gaylord's Kevin Hansen (65).

Defeat Gaylord 19-6 In Homecoming Game

Charlevoix Red Rayders turned in a Homecoming victory Friday night, defeating the Gaylord Blue Devils 19 to 6 at Kipke Field.

The weather, which had been threatening most of the day, remained clear and almost dry throughout the evening, capping off two days of Homecoming festivities for Charlevoix students.

In other Michigan-Huron Shores Conference action, the St. Ignace Saints defeated Petoskey 21 to 6; Boyne City came up with its second win of the season, defeating Rogers City 20 to 16; and Cheboygan trounced Grayling, 48 to 26.

This Friday, the Rayders travel to Cheboygan for the last game of the season; Rogers City plays at St. Ignace; Grayling plays at Gaylord and Boyne City will host Petoskey.

The action started hot and heavy in the Rayder-Blue Devils' game, when Mike Streeter traveled 56 yards for a TD with only two minutes on the clock. Randy Faust kicked the conversion, leaving the score 7-0.

Gaylord scored its only TD of the game in the second period, when Buzzy Bauers plunged over from the one-yard line. The extra point failed.

Charlevoix widened the margin after the half when Randy Faust snagged the ball and sprinted 55 yards to paydirt.

Mike Streeter completed the scoring with only 3:13 on the clock when he recovered a fumble and streaked 27 yards to the goalline.

Statistics compiled by Tom Fowler indicate it was Charlevoix's game on rushing plays although Gaylord attempted three times as many passes.

The Rayders were credited with 15 first downs, 13 by rushing and 2 by passing. Gaylord had 11 first downs, 4 by rushing, 5 by passing and 2 on penalties.

Gaylord attempted 25 (completed 13) passes, compared to Charlevoix's 8 and 5. The Blue Devils gained 149 yards by passing, compared to 74 for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix tried 50 rushing plays to Gaylord's 29, and clocked 421 yards, to Gaylord's.

On offensive plays, the teams were fairly even: 58 for Charlevoix and 54 for Gaylord.

JV's Put It All Together To Beat Gaylord 22-14

By Hal Evens

Charlevoix JV's finally put it all together!

Behind crisp tackling and basic fundamental football, the young Rayders defeated a tough Gaylord team last week 22 to 14.

Charlevoix's first score came with only five minutes gone in the first quarter when Quarterback Gary Probert capped a 70-yard drive with a 14-yard touchdown strike to Mike Skippergosh. Probert added two points on the extra-point play.

After a strong defense rush forced a bad punt, Charlevoix got the ball back on Gaylord's 47-yard line. Twelve plays later, Randy Williams ran off right tackle for a six-yard score. Jay Potter then kicked the extra point, making the score Charlevoix 15, Gaylord 0.

Gaylord then scored twice in the second quarter on a one-yard drive and a six-yard run, with the quarterback adding two points on the second TD.

At halftime, the little Rayders had a one-point lead, 15-14.

The half was dominated tackles Matt Doan and Ed Mann and center John Cinnamon who opened holes for running backs Randy Williams and Doug Smith.

But it was the defense that kept Charlevoix on top.

Fine defensive line play by Matt Doan, Mike Way and Jim Marsh led a hard-hitting Charlevoix defense that held Gaylord to a 100-yard total offense.

The last score came in the final period when Gary Probert hit Casey Culbertson on a 21-yard pass play. Jay Potter again kicked the extra point, leaving the final score Charlevoix 22, Gaylord 14.

Charlevoix hosts Cheboygan this Thursday for the final game of the season. A tough, challenging contest is promised.

Miss Bogart, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.W. Bogart of R-1, is head of the 1973 Homecoming Committee. A senior at MSU majoring in health education, Miss Bogart is a 1970 graduate of Northville High School, Northville.

Her father is business manager for Charlevoix schools.

The general theme of Homecoming is an Oktoberfest, the ancient German celebration of the harvest. There will be the traditional bonfire with the Spartan Marching Band performing, and a pop concert.

After the homecoming game between MSU and Wisconsin, Jenison Field House will host Oktoberfest festivities with German food and music.

IF DISTRICT BREAKS UP

Traveling Teachers May Provide Answer To Curriculum Woes

Although there was considerable gnashing of teeth among professional educators when the Twin Valley school building bonds failed at the polls two weeks ago, we can't help but feel that the voters --- in their simple, down-to-earth fashion --- were trying to say that there must be a better answer to the district's pressing school needs.

As a result of the three-to-one vote against the bonds, Supt. David Fultz and members of the Board of Education have met with our state legislators to determine what must be done to "demerge" the Twin Valley District back into its original components, headquartered at Boyne City and East Jordan.

The legislators were sympathetic to the point that they have scheduled a public hearing on the question Thursday, Nov. 8, at the Boyne City High School. An overflow crowd of interested citizens is expected to turn out.

At the time of the merger election in July of 1968, consolidation certainly seemed an acceptable solution to problems facing both districts. East Jordan's school facilities were badly in need of updating (and still are) and neither district was quite large enough to offer the range and depth of curriculum required by young people entering today's nightly technical society.

Although the merger was heartily endorsed by the voters, it did not have the full support of either the administration or the new board. Instead of appointing a single strong administrator to bring the two districts together, the board appointed co-superintendents, the same men who headed up the former Boyne City and East Jordan districts.

There were other early indications that the merger would never work.

When school resumed in September following the election, residents throughout the area were surprised to find the two former school districts still operating pretty much as separate entities. There was scarcely a single school activity which could be considered a joint venture. Athletic teams trained separately and competed in their own conferences. The two high school bands never played a single note "ensemble." Even Parent-Teacher organizations operated pretty much on their own.

Needless to say, when the time comes to talk about the physical merger of the two districts --- the building of a consolidated high school --- few people were ready for it. An early proposal that the junior high be located in East Jordan and the senior high in Boyne City was met with catcalls in both communities.

Another suggestion that the new high school be located on neutral ground between the two communities also was pooh-poohed on both sides.

Although operating millage passed, voters were always reluctant to come up with the funds necessary for the Physical merger of the two districts. This is where Twin Valley stands today.

And perhaps it's a good thing.

The 1968 election was one of the last big school consolidation votes in the state. Since then there has been a lot of serious thinking across the nation about the merits of "bigness" per se.

It is true that a school district with a large enrollment is in a better position financially to offer more courses and more in-depth training to its students. On this point the professionals are absolutely correct.

However, we haven't stopped to ask ourselves if consolidation is the only answer to the curriculum problem, particularly when there are so many benefits built into the small community school.

There certainly is much to be said for having a school within easy walking distance for the kids who live in town.

And there is no denying that the school and school-related activities play an important social and cultural role in many small communities.

As an incubator of the next generation, the community school has always been an immense source of community pride.

These are some of the intangibles that are sometimes lost through consolidation.

The question remains: Must a school district be big in order to be good? Must it pull students from hundreds of square miles, just to offer advanced physics, vocational education and four years of Latin?

We doubt it.

In recent years, the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District has proven that it can offer a wide range of highly specialized services to mentally and physically disabled children in three counties -- not by transporting the youngsters dozens of miles each day over sometimes hazardous road but by sending teachers to them at their local schools.

We believe that a similar system, perhaps under the auspices of the Intermediate District, could provide academic and vocational instruction to students not only in Boyne City and East Jordan but throughout the entire area wherever conditions are such that the cost of a full-time professional would be promotive to a single school district alone.

Of course, there would be duplication of certain facilities, but the cost of such duplication would be minimal when weighed against the staggering cost of transporting hundreds of students 25 miles or more every school day.

The voters of the Twin Valley School District know deep down that bonding to build a new high school in the boondocks on Deer Lake-rd. is not the answer to their educational dilemma. The time is long overdue for the pro's to realize the same thing and come up with an acceptable alternative.

Demerger would permits both districts to go ahead with individual building programs as funds are approved. A cooperative curriculum program involving two or more local districts could provide the range and quality of education that is now lacking under the present Twin Valley stalemate.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump Jr.

In the early 20's our lone school bus was a conveyance on runners propelled by a single horsepower engine named Nell.

Bun Green, the owner-driver, installed a canvas top to shield his young charges from the elements. This two bench bussing luxury was restricted to children ten years and younger, leaving older pupils an invigorating three to four mile hike for their education.

The heating system comprised several felt covered, charcoal burning foot warmers which were always pre-empted by feminine high button shoes, leaving the pint sized gentlemen to stomp their feet for warmth in the frosty chill, which was tempered only slightly by the fur lap robe extending to the floor.

This coddling of students was limited to the coldest winter months, putting a damper on any early retirement plans Bun might have harbored. Then too, the school board kept this budget frill under eagle-eyed surveillance. The board was fearful of the taxpayers' wrath at any abuse of this service which cost $5 a week.

On one occasion Bun suggested a salary of $6, arguing that he harvested fuel for the bus at considerable personal expense. His persuasion found growing favor until Spook Locke, the only board member with a high school diploma, tossed an educated roadblock into the negotiations.

Now it was common knowledge that Bun hired out to the local delivery stable during school hours and it was upon this conflicting interest that Spook dwelt at considerable length with penny-pinching eloquence. He pointed out that Bun was being more than adequately compensated for carrying a few children along while commuting to his regular employment. His motion to maintain the status quo was unanimously approved by his cohorts, reluctant to admit ignorance of the meaning of status quo or otherwise.

Our ridiculously primitive system had several noteworthy advantages.

The driver could snatch a few winks since faithful Nell stopped automatically at every farmhouse along the route. Snow clogged highways, which defy our motorized fleet, were the customary thoroughfares for sure-footed Nell whose instinctive radar guided her through blinding snow storms.

Our one-horse transportation system has now become a prestigious convoy of 12 gleaming buses, prompting many of us to ask in amusement:

"What could they expect for five bucks?"

They not only expected, they demanded a $5 return on their investment.

Do we?

We have been questioned many times about the uses made of the lottery revenues.

A. Under the astute management of Director Gus Harrison, Michigan's state lottery bureau appears to be producing more money for the state's General Fund than had been anticipated when the law creating the agency was passed last year.

Backers of the state lottery projected General Fund revenues of about $52 million-or about $1 million a week - for the first year. But they already have exceeded that by about $2 million with one month left to go to make up the first 12 months of operation. The bureau has turned over $54 million to the state's General Fund for the first 11 months of operation.

Legislators are frequently asked what the lottery money is used for. Specifically, it is difficult to say because none of it is earmarked for any particular state service. Instead, the profits go to the state's General Fund where it commingles with other General Fund money and then is appropriated in lump sums to various state agencies and services.

Clockwise

By Bob Clock

I suppose some day we'll all look back at the Watergate era and laugh our fool heads off.

Not this year, of course. It might not happen for 10 or 20 years, if it ever does. Between sips of Geritol we'll slap each on the back and ask each other if we remember the night He wanted to fire Archibald Cox, but Elliott Peterson wouldn't do it. Then He asked William Ruckelshaus to swing the hatchet and Ruckelshaus refused.

Then, (Ho, Ho, catch this) He got the Solicitor General, a fellow named Robert H. Bork, whom no one had ever heard of, to step in and do the dirty work.

"WhateVer happened to Bork, anyway?"

No one answers.

Pass the Geritol.

Then we'll go into the unbelievable events of the week following the firing of Archibald Cox. How Elliot Peterson took to the airwaves to explain why he resigned but had to wait five minutes to begin speaking while his friends in the Department of Justice gave him the longest, most raucous welcome in the history of public speaking.

We'll remember how gentle Peterson was on Him, but how he said he felt he had to resign rather than compromise the high principles he brought with him to Washington.

Then someone giggly with too much Geritol will recall how He stepped forward shortly after Peterson stopped speaking to say he would release the Watergate tapes which were the central issue behind all the ruckus.

Afterward, someone is sure to remember how He promised to tell us television the next night why He was acting so strangely.

But that talk was cancelled because of the Arab-Israel war, as was His scheduled press conference the following night.

In the meantime, Congress got all worked up over His impeachment and even started some of the machinery in motion. Then, in mid week, the Security Council was called into executive session in the wee hours and by daybreak the nation learned that units of our military establishment had been placed on alert because Russia had had the effrontery to suggest that she and the United States send peace-keeping military forces to the Middle East to help maintain the uneasy truce that Hank Kissinger and his buddies had worked out over the weekend in Moscow while He was back home in Washington trying to get Cox fired.

Then someone will remember how Hank bent the ear of the nation the day of the big alert but didn't really come across very clear when he tried to explain why it was necessary to pat our military forces on stand-by when the country had no hard evidence that the Russians were really ready to commit troops--particularly peacekeeping troops--to the Middle East.

What made the situation even more incredible was the fact that ever since World War II, the Russians had been smart enough never to let their troops get involved in the nasty little bush-fire wars that the United States always waded into, lock, stock and gun barrel.

Then someone will remember Kissinger's repeated references to the Russians as our "ideological and political adversaries."

Holy Moses! Why did he single out the Russians? There wasn't another country in the world that we had been able to see eye to eye with for more than a generation.

Afterwards, there was that upstart reporter who wondered if the "domestic" situation in Washington might not have had something to do with the troop alert. Kissinger said it was "symptomatic" of our times that such a question should even be asked. He emphatically denied, on His behalf, that the extraordinary steps taken relative to the Middle East were a smoke screen to obliterate the confusion over Watergate.

No one laughed right in his face, but there were a few chuckles in the back of the room.

Some day, I suppose, we'll all sit back and laugh our fool heads off about the most incredible week in the history of American politics.

But it won't be right away.

The Spiro Show

By Jim Fitzgerald

The Spiro Agnew Show, seen on TV Oct. 15, will soon become a weekly series. Famous crooks from all over the nation will be given 30 minutes each, minus commercials, to explain how they were framed.

The series will be sponsored by the American Bar Association as a part of its pension program. This is because 99 percent of all famous crooks are lawyers. And all these crooked lawyers are broke because they must pay other lawyers to defend them. They can't defend themselves because they are too busy stealing and lurking. There are only so many dark hours in a day, you know.

Anyway, the bar association will pay the crooked lawyers to tell their alibis on TV. This will give the needy lawyers some lurking-around money and the association can charge the costs to its pension fund.

The TV series will not be discriminatory. If any famous crooks turn out to be non-lawyers, they will still be welcome on the program. However, they will not be paid out of pension funds. This wouldn't be legal, as the pension is funded strictly by lawyers for lawyers. So, to keep things on the up and up, the non-lawyer crooks will be paid with stolen money.

The idea of turning the Agnew show into a series was formulated by an ad hoc committee appointed by the bar association to rescue Jeb Magruder from Judge Sirica. The judge ruled that Magruder, and other lawyers guilty of Watergate, could not give lectures on their way to jail. The lecture agents are drooling to put the crooked lawyers on the road. They could get $2,000 to $3,000 per speech for telling women's clubs how to pack 4,000 hundred-dollar bills into a shopping bag without wrinkling them.

But Judge Sirica heartlessly outlawed this source of income for the needy lawyers. The bar committee had to turn elsewhere. There were several ideas considered, all related to TV.

Magruder might appear on Monday Night Football to demonstrate that a bug and 2 small Cubans could be planted in Howard Cosell's left nostril without Howard knowing it.

Or John Mitchell might go on The FBI to explain to Efrem Zimbalist Jr. why he should carry a plunger instead of a gun.

But then came the Spiro Agnew show, and the lawyers had their definitive answer (I looked "definitive" up in the dictionary, under tapes, and it said: "You'll have to wait for the Supreme Court decision.")

Agnew will appear on each show, as host. There'll be a different guest each week – famous men such as Mitchell, Stans, Colson, Liddy, Hunt, Krogh and Magruder. The only requirements are their names must be household words and they must have been indicted or convicted or have copped a plea. As stated previously, the guest crook need not be a lawyer. But anyway, with all those other qualifications, a guy should be able to pick up a law degree on his was to the TV studio.

Each guest crook will follow the Agnew format: "I didn't steal a cent and besides, I needed the money."

Be sure to tune in. It should be Gang Busters.

To Whom It May Concern...

By Doris Huckle

Recent visitor to our area Richard Kozlow, mostly self-taught painter who has come down from his beloved famous paintings of mountains to create a series of seascapes, has a current showing at the Arwin Gallery, Detroit.

Koslow was featured speaker at the October seminar of Top O' Mitt Artists and Craftsmen hosted by Crooked Tree Arts Council at Boyne Mountain recently.

The highly individualistic artist prefaced his remarks with:

"The brief time I spent at Detroit's Society of Arts and Crafts School, everytime I sat around having coffee with Sarkis Sarkisian and Walter Midener all they talked about was fishing on the Jordan River and guiding.

"I really think it was the height of Sarkis' ambition to be a professional Jordan River guide."

Kozlow couldn't have known of the official diploma finally awarded Sarkis several years ago, by veteran river guides Ted Kotowich, his brother John and other East Jordanites of closely knit guide status.

Sarkis was then Director of the Arts and Crafts School, now headed by Midener, and he had spent part of a sabbatical year in a main st. studio here when not floating the Jordan.

He is too ill to make annual trips on the Jordan now, but Midener continues to float and fish the river, a purist who refuses to use anything other than artificial flies.

The Sarkis diploma was most properly witnessed; it proclaimed him a fully accredited professional guide entitled to all the priveleges thereto: unexpected dunkings; locating and hooking, but letting the customer catch the trout; cleaning the fish and cooking them riverside.

There was no doubt that Kozlow's memories of the Sarkis-Midener conversations intrigued him. He knew he was in the vicinity of the river.

Kozlow paintings are created from memory scenes and moods only, he told his audience, never on location.

If he someday personally woos the Jordan, he may find himself working his way down from seascapes to riverscapes, we muse.

A lot of men fall in love with and try to capture, than nature, the soul of the icy cold, curving, wild female Jordan.

Some have been content to leisurely float on her surface by flat bottomed boat. Increasingly of late, more have wanted to paddle her via canoe, while still others wade rubber booted hip deep in her waters.

Most of them love and nurture her. It's only the viscious male animal that slaughters her fish children with spear, bullet, or snag. They don't, can't, fall in love with and nurture the Jordan or perhaps anyone or anything.

They simply are too busy hating.

One never presumes to even suggest such a personal thing as is subject matter to the creative artist.

One can continue to hope that Grand Love Affairs only will be in the future for the Jordan, that man's treatment of her will be nurturing, that thoughts of her might come close to Kozlow-like memories and moods.

So individualized, creating not destroying.

Has High Praise for Hospital

Dear Bob:

I would like to take up a small portion of your much appreciated editorial section to praise our local hospital staff. The doctors and the nursing staff are doing a wonderful job and are well qualified. Our hospital, of course, is one of the most modern, well equipped, hospitals in Northern Michigan.

I'm wondering if perhaps some residents aren't aware of this because they haven't taken advantage of it.

Dems Seek Tax Break

In official action the Democratic State Central Committee, meeting Saturday in Muskegon, approved a proposal put forth by the Education and Finance subcommittee of the Policy Committee to repeal the four percent sales tax on food and prescription drugs.

The resolution urges the Michigan legislature to act in its current session to repeal the sales tax on food and drugs thereby saving enough money to give each family in Michigan additional income worth two weeks free groceries.

Boyne Case Goes to Jury

A Charlevoix County Circuit Court jury was expected to begin deliberations Tuesday in a lawsuit brought against Boyne Mountain Lodge and others by a man who was severely injured in 1966 when he fell through a glass shower partition at the lodge.

The trial, which was moved to Charlevoix from Oakland County on a change of venue, is being heard by Circuit Judge Richard E. Robinson.

The plaintiff is Miran Awedian, who has been joined in the suit by his wife, Agawni.

They are suing for damages because of Awedian's extensive injuries which have curtailed normal use of his arms. The amount of the claim has not been disclosed.

The lodge, the Awedians, their insurance companies and the manufacturer and supplier of the glass shower doors are represented in the courtroom by an army of nine attorneys.

Since the accident, the lodge has replaced its glass shower doors with plastic doors.

Land Use

"The only questions are," said Brown, "how far should the legislation go and who controls it."

Brown said that he thought Mastin was "running the bill up the flagpole" in order to find out how much public support there is for the hill, what are the flaws in it, and how he can correct them.

"Before Sen. Davis will support any land use legislation," added Brown, "it will have to include very stringent regulations and guarantee a high level of local input."

The bill, which is cosponsored by 60 other representatives, is not expected to come up for debate until early next year.

Mr. Bonner retained a lively interest in music until recent years, playing the fiddle for weddings, anniversaries and celebration of all kinds.

Mr. Bonner is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Ronald (Mary) Antrim of Grand Rapids; two sons, John P. of Milford, Conn., and Robert II of Lansing; nine grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

The rosary service was held at the Bonner home Sunday evening.

Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix was in charge of arrangements.

Kiwanis Seeks Soup Labels

Dale Fassett of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club reports that the group is collecting labels from Campbell's soup cans in an effort to raise money for tape recorders, record players and other equipment for hospitalized children.

The drive is being sponsored by the Forney W. Clement Memorial Foundation, Inc., a benevolent arm of the Michigan District, Kiwanis International.

The soup company has agreed to redeem the labels for the audio-visual equipment, according to Fassett.

Fassett says labels may be turned over to any member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. Collection deadline is Thanksgiving.

Soup To Nuts

WHO'S THIS funny old gent with the giant stogie? Give up? It's none other than Charlevoix's 1973 Homecoming Queen Peggy Carey who fooled even her best friends with this Hallowe'en get-up.

***

AND SPEAKING of Peggy, she was elected Homecoming Queen informally by the fellows at the Bay Shore Radar Bomb Scoring Site long before the official decision was made. Seems Mrs. Tim McArt of McArt's Mart at Bay Shore held an informal poll of the many airmen who frequent her grocery store. On the basis of a Courier photo on Oct. 24 (the about face view), the airmen decided Peggy had the nicest pair of legs...

THE FIRST part of the Soup to Nuts weather forecast on Oct. 17 hit the nail on the head. October has come and gone, with nary a sign of frost in the Charlevoix area. Petunias and roses are still in bloom and the grass is greener than ever, although you can hardly find it under all the leaves. The forecast, in case you've forgotten, said the first frost would come in November, that Charlevoix would have rain mixed with snow in December and that Christmas, for the first time in eight years, could well be a green one. There was also some mention of Lake Charlevoix not freezing until late January or early February. And our fuzzy old forecaster doesn't think that Lake Michigan and Little Traverse Bay will freeze at all this winter. We'll soon find out.

WHAT'S SANTA doing in town so early? He's taking out the first 1974 Christmas Club account at the Charlevoix County State Bank, that's what. The bank reports that 1973 Christmas Club checks totaling $62,000 will be mailed Nov. 7 to club members. Disbursements under the Christmas Club plan have risen from $38,000 in 1969, thanks to the 4 percent interest paid on completed clubs. Accounts for 1974 may be opened at the bank starting Nov. 9. Interest for the coming year will be 5 percent. Even Santa knows a bargain when he sees one. Assisting Santa with his account is teller Betty LaRouche.

Building Authority Plan Is Presented to Council

The following actions were taken by the City Council at its meeting Monday night:

–Sent to committee a surveyor's report which shows that the Sand Castle condominium on Park-ave. may be in violation of side yard zoning restrictions. Charles Taylor, who owns property immediately adjoining to the east, says balconies on the rebuilt structure come within 10 feet of his lot line.

–Referred to the Dec. 3 Board of Appeals meeting a request by Jack Malpeli of Hurlbut (Belvedere)-ave. to tear down his present garage and build a new one one foot from his lot line. The present garage is located partly on the lot next door and partly on city property.

–Referred to the Dec. 3 Board of Appeals meeting a request by Robert Camp of Dixon-ave. to construct a storage building 5½ feet from his westerly property line. He said his neighbors, the Fred Willis', have no objection.

–Received from John Campbell of the Planning Commission a set of articles of incorporation for a building authority, which he says could

First Snow Arrives

Charlevoix experienced the first snow and sub-freezing temperatures of the season over the weekend.

The snow flurries continued through Tuesday morning, although the total accumulation was scanty.

Despite the light fall, motorists Monday morning found many rural roads slippery and hazardous.

Gaylord reported an accumulation of three inches of snow Monday. Harbor Springs had about two inches on the ground Sunday afternoon.

School Conference Forms Due Nov. 7

Requests for parent-teacher conferences in the Charlevoix Public Schools are due today, Nov. 7.

Parents who would like to attend the conference with a teacher in one or more schools are encouraged to return the form that was sent home Oct. 31 or to call the building principal.

(The form also was printed in the Oct. 31 Courier.)

A committee of parents will meet Nov. 8 and 9 to coordinate the conferences between teachers and school buildings.

Each family will be scheduled so that they may travel from building to building with a minimum of lost time.

All parents are encouraged to attend and participate in these conferences.

"The learning situation can be improved for all students when parents discuss with teachers the interest and conditions that help the individual student respond positively to school," Supt. James McKimmy said.

Ruppe Regrets Nixon Firings

By Cong. Phil Ruppe

Events in Washington recently, beginning with the firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, the resignation of Attorney General Elliot Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William Ruckelshaus, and ending with the Mideast Crisis and the "eyeball to eyeball" confrontation with the Soviet Union, have had a profound impact on American political life.

I was extremely disappointed with the firing of Cox and the forced resignations of the Attorney General and his Deputy. Elliot Richardson and William Ruckelshaus both have served their nation and this Administration well. They are men of great integrity and stature, and their loss is a serious one. Special Prosecutor Cox had carried out his duties as he was assigned by the Attorney General, and his dismissal did nothing to instill confidence in the President or his Administration.

Initially, there was a tremendous out-pouring of concern and of opinion in favor of impeachment of the President. That feeling was lessened, somewhat, by the President's decision to release the White House tapes to Federal Judge John Sirica. In complying with the modified Court Order, the President eliminated the legal grounds for impeachment. However deplorable the action seemed to many Americans, he was within his rights as Chief Executive in firing Archibald Cox.

In the final analysis, the strength of the Presidency depends upon his ability to restore public confidence during this crises period. As one who supported the establishment of a special prosecutor, I feel it is emperative to the restoration of public confidence, that the President and or the Congress act to provide a new special prosecutor with powers to continue a vigorous and impartial investigation of the events known as the Watergate Affair.

A bright note during this past week of crises was the effectiveness of our government in dealing with the Soviet threat in the Middle East. It is apparent now that a serious confrontation existed, not unlike the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. The President responded decisively, and his decisions were supported by the leaders of Congress, irrespective of party orientation. In times of crisis, such non-partisanship has been the hallmark of American foreign policy, and it did not fail us in this new crisis. As a result, we were able to achieve a cease-fire in the Arab-Israeli conflict, and I fervently hope that the current cease-fire will lead to a more permanent agreement covering not only the security of Israel, but the legitimate territorial claims of the Arab nations as well.

2 Cyclists Killed in West

Funeral Wednesday For Bonnie Majors

Funeral for Bonnie Jean Majors, 19, who was killed while riding a bicycle near Azusa, Calif., Friday, will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday at the Community Church of God, the Rev. William P. Seibert officiating. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Miss Majors was the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George L. Majors, former residents of Charlevoix who moved in Fairbanks, Alaska, four years ago.

Miss Majors and a friend, Charles E. Gibson of Pomona, Calif., were killed late Friday afternoon when they were struck by a car while bicycling in a canyon near Azusa-Pacific College where they both were students.

Identification of the victims was not made until Saturday when college officials began an investigation as to their whereabouts.

Rev. and Mrs. Majors flew east for the funeral and were expected to arrive in Charlevoix Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Majors was born in Petoskey June 29, 1954, and attended Charlevoix schools. She moved to Fairbanks with her parents in 1969 and was graduated from a Fairbanks high school in June of 1972.

Since September of 1972 she had been a student at Azusa-Pacific College. She was a member of the Women's Glee Club at Azusa and belonged to the Fairbanks Church of God.

Her father had been pastor at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix for 17 years before the family moved to Alaska. Mrs. Majors was in charge of the obstetrics department at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

In addition to her parents, Miss Majors is survived by a sister, Mrs. David (Marilyn) Buchanan of Fairbanks; two brothers, George R. of Bellingham, Wash., and Howard of Lansing; and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Majors of Mt. Pleasant.

Many Questions Unanswered

When the Sewer Goes In, Do They Have to Use It?

A public hearing on the special assessment for the May-st. sewer was held at Monday night's council meeting – but more questions were raised than were answered. For example:

–Should residents be charged a $200 privilege fee for hooking up to the sewer if they do so when the work is in progress?

(Mayor Edward P. Hansen and Alderman Richard Fochtman believe the fee should be waived for residents who hook up right away. However the council is wary of setting a precedent by waiving "privilege fees.") –Should residents on the new sewer line be billed for sewer usage, even though they don't make use of the new facility?

(Del Terrill, who lives on Eaton-ave., feels it is improper for the city to charge anyone for anything he does not receive–in this instance sewage service. However in the past the city has billed residents for sewer service, even though they use their own septic systems.)

–How much time should residents be given before they are obligated to hook into the new sewer?

–What are District Health Department regulations in the area of sewers vs septic systems?

(Mrs. Lewis E. Juilleret suggested that the council touch base with the District Health Department before setting up a hard and fast policy on hooking up.)

The only real objection to the sewer from the 37 persons in attendance came from Frank Wojciechowski who moved into Hampton Village Sept. 10. He bought a new home with a new septic system which he feels he should be allowed to use until it is no longer servicable. He also feels that he should not be assessed for the sewer until he is ready to use it.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the council passed a resolution spreading the assessments over 10 years, with interest at 6 percent.

City attorney Norman Ance said state law recently was changed to allow special assessments to be spread over 20 years, however bonding attorneys advise against such long-term repayment. They point out that short term bonds are easier to sell and carry a more favorable interest rate.

Under the law, the city cannot charge more than 6 percent interest to persons involved in the special assessment.

The total cost of the project will be $234,237, of which $39,039.50 will be paid by the city and $195,197.52 by individual property owners.

The assessments were determined by a Special Assessment Board composed of City Surveyor Mary Feindt, Dr. Walter Hoffman and Ronald Peterson.

Generally, residents will pay $12.66 a front foot, with factors applied on extremely large and extremely small lots.

A large percentage of the total cost will be paid by the Charlevoix School District which owns several hundred feet of property on May-st., the site of the High School and the school bus garage.

Drive Started to Restore Death Penalty in State

A statewide petition drive is underway to restore the death penalty in Michigan. The drive, which has 180 days to gather 300,000 signatures, was launched at an Oct. 26 fund raiser for 18th District Michigan Congressman Bob Huber in Warren.

Huber was the first Michigan resident to sign a petition at the request of the sponsor of the petition drive, Shelby Township Republican State Rep. Kirby Holmes. Joining Huber for the signing were Holmes and Carl Parsell, the Executive Director of the Police Officers Association of Michigan.

Both Holmes and Huber have conducted surveys of their constituents which show that more than 80 percent of the people favor restoring the death penalty, which has been outlawed in Michigan since 1846.

Holmes introducted a proposed constitutional amendment calling for mandatory capital punishment for conviction of first degree murder. When the Michigan House of Representatives refused to even discuss the death penalty, Hobnes decided to take the issue to the people through a petition drive.

Volunteers for the capital punishment petition drive should contact "Capital Punishment," P.O. Box 1776, Lansing, Mich. 48904.

New Fudge Firm Plans Shops on Coast, in South

"Murdick's Fudge" may soon be a household word from Charlevoix to Hollywood, Fla.

Bill Cooper, proprieter of the Kingburger restaurant, reports that a new corporation has been formed called Murdick's Candy kitchen, Inc., which will open fudge shops bearing the Murdick name throughout the South and Atlantic seaboard states.

Involved in the new corporation with Cooper are Francis Murdick, proprietor of Murdick's Fudge Shop in Charlevoix, and Robert Huber, a former Charlevoix attorney now living in Roscommon.

Huber is president of the company, Murdick is in charge of personnel training and product development; and Cooper is the leg-man, responsible for lining up new locations.

The outlets will either be "company stores" owned by the corporation or franchise outlets.

Cooper plans to spend the winter in Hollywood, Fla., getting the first of the company stores off the ground.

Other fudge shops will be opened in 1974 in Atlantic City, N.J.; Wildwood, N.J.; Williamsburg, Va.; Norfolk, Va.; Gatlinburg, Tenn.; and in the Atlanta Underground, Atlanta, Ga.

While Cooper is in the south, Mrs. Cooper will run the Kingburger restaurant, which is up for sale.

The new company has been incorporated in Delaware, Cooper reports.

Ex-School Marm Feted on Birthday

Mrs. Alfred Brooks of RR1, Ellsworth, was honored recently at a surprise luncheon on the occasion of her eightieth birthday anniversary.

More than 20 friends, among them former students, gathered at the home of Mrs. William Parsons for the salad luncheon honoring the retired teacher who now resides alone south of Norwood. A feature of the refreshments was a cake decorated with a red schoolhouse scene reminiscent of her early days in the classroom. She also was presented with a corsage from the group.

Following the luncheon, a poem composed by Mrs. Clyde Warner, relating the highlights of her 80 years, was read.

Mrs. Brooks taught at rural schools in the area including the Norwood school and concluding with the East Jordan school system.

Band Won't Soon Forget Weekend Trip to Lansing

By Jim Berlage

The Red Rayders Marching Band Trip to Michigan State University was a great success. The Rayders left on Saturday, Oct. 20, at 2:30 a.m. right on schedule.

Upon arrival at Old College Field, the Rayder Band commenced to doing cals on the sandy, dew-soaked ground.

The Red Rayders were the 22nd band to perform during the pre-game activities. The Rayders, coming downfield under the direction of Drum Major Jim Sundberg, did a two minute program featuring "This Is My Country", "Rock Around The Clock," "The Patriots", and Bill Holcombe's "Fanfare No. 1".

At the massed bands' half-time performance, featuring 3,527 musicians, the sounds of "Colonel Bogey", "Lassus Trombone", "On The Mall" and "Stars and Stripes Forever", were heard, under the direction of Kenneth Bloomquist and Dave Catron.

After the game, which State lost, the Band traveled to the Hospitality Inn, located two miles off the campus, where they stayed for the night. Two buses traveled to the Meridian Mall for dinner and a couple of hours of shopping.

At 11 a.m. Sunday, the busses departed for Charlevoix, the end of a long but successful weekend.

The Band would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mol, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tollas, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Slone, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Craland, and Mr. Jim Keller for all their help throughout the trip. The band would like to thank the 100-plus Charlevoixans who were present to cheer the Rayders Band on with yelling and several large banners.

Last but not least the band would like to thank its director, Gary Stutzman, for a terrific, successful, and fun-filled season.

Library Notes

It is always pleasant to review a new biography or book of memoirs which manages to tell it like it is without malice or scandal. "Upstairs In the White House" is such a book. J.B. West, the author, was Chief Usher of the White House from 1941 until 1969 and, in this day and age, that's quite a record! A man of the utmost discretion, Mr. West never gave an interview in all the 28 years he held his post. Now he presents a uniquely privileged, compassionate and informal view of the way six very different women have responded to the challenge of the most prestigious unpaid job in America. The press sees the First Ladies with their hair combed and their public faces on. Mr. West saw them in their more private moments of triumph and tragedy and plain everyday family living. There are marvelous photographs included in the book showing the changes that took place to fill the needs or fit the whims of the various presidential families.

Six young men who had worked for the Kennedy administration in 1963, but all in minor jobs, receive a death threat ten years later for reasons "they will fully understand." Why them? They hadn't even know the President. Then one night Congressman Thomas Medwick is killed. His car veers out of control, and the police rule it as an accident. But George Williams, one of the names on the list, knows better. As a Deputy Assistant Attorney for the Justice Dept., and its most skilled investigator, he takes the threat seriously. "Last Man at Arlington" by Joseph DiMona moves at a crackling pace, filled with unexpecterd turns of plot that keep the story long steps ahead of the reader. The author is a former reporter for the Washington Post. He has written two previous books and hundreds of documentary films. Research for these projects has taken him to every corner of the nation and helps account for the extraordinary realism of the many areas and subjects this novel touches.

"The Berlin Ending" will be of interest to those readers who are not sick to death of the Watergate affair. It was written by E. Howard Hunt who became a household word last summer. It is, in many ways, a brilliant and starting novel concerning high government officials who are capable of altering the attitudes of an entire country.

Graham Greene has written so many stories and plays and novels that we wonder if anyone has actually read all of his works. His newest book "The Honorary Consul" has everything his fans have come to depend upon. The story takes place in a bleak provincial town. On the far side of the great muddy river that separates the two countries like Paraguay, a brutal dictatorship. On the near side lies a torpid city whose only visible cultural institution is the brothel. With gathering force and the total command that has made him the most distinguished of living English novelists, Graham Greene draws his characters into the political chaos that lies beneath the surface of South American life. The book offers the finest possible entertainment.

Womens Lib...eager, determined, willing, strong, forceful, competitive! It appears this is the new trent at Charlevoix High.

No, it does not concern football or wrestling, but basketball. The proud and determined girls of the 1973 basketball team are: Leanna Stealman, Tori Alger, Cheryl Pence, Tiller Otis, Barb Martin, Beth Egler, Terri Morris, Colleen Russel, Tammy Penny, Denise Boss, and Heidi Dove.

These girls have an outstanding conference record of six wins and no losses. They have played against six competitive area schools: Petoskey, St. Ignace, Grayling, Rogers City, Cheboygan, and Boyne City.

There is much enthusiasm in the team. They have a strong potential and work together as a team.

Under the direction of their coach, Mrs. Toni Felter, the girls practice every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evening. Tuesday and Thursday they compete against their opponent.

Future Bright For Cagers

In the years to come the CHS girls basketball team will continue to have much potential as our Junior Varsity girls move up into the Varsity position.

These hard working girls included Gail Potter, Jodi Alger, Terri Novotny, Kay Currie, Nanette Christ, Maureen Cudd, Frances Peters, Dona Bellows, Laura Corbin, Reta Wasoski, Janey Himebaugh and Sue Martin.

Varsity, JV Win

By Pam Foehtman

The Red Rayders Basketball girls were the host to Rogers City, Oct. 23. Both the Junior Varsity and the Varsity took the victories.

Oct. 25, the St. Ignace Saints traveled to Charlevoix to go up against the determined Rayders. Charlevoix once more claimed the victory, 60-32.

In other games played were: Gaylord, Cheboygan, Petoskey, and Boyne City. Our Rayders emerged from each game with a wide margin victory.

These girls are doing an outstanding performance. Both teams have much potential, good rebounders, speed, determination, and spirit.

The team will play at Grayling Nov. 13. The District Tournament is Nov. 26.

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

It is required no in-depth study on the part of Jenny, Uncle Charlie's gifted mule to dismiss his work program as a confusion of uncoordinated farmyard activities which could be combined to achieve their common goal. Seeing no need to submit an obviously better plan for approval, Jenny instituted her agrarian reforms by combining the clearing of land and the gathering of firewood.

The fuel, and the sauna which consumed it were at opposite ends of her stump studded paddock, another example of human mentality! Since it was Charlie who chose this remote location for that idiotic sauna, she saw no need whatever to share his phobia that the twain should meet. Furthermore, not having been consulted in the matter, she reasoned that Charlie should be the major force linking supply and demand.

An ardent devoted of physical fitness, Jenny included two hours of brisk roadwork (for Charlie) in her streamlined operation. Never one to plunge headlong into the workday, she cantered out her kinks toward the woodlot with Charlie in voluble pursuit. She would then retreat toward the sauna, just out of range of the loose firewood hurled in her direction by her would-be employer. Thus the fuel moved in stages to its destination.

Jenny never ceased to marvel at Charlie's capabilities when properly goaded. She would tap this latent reserve of energy by favoring him with an amused smile and rate her effectiveness by the dimensions of the cedar stumps hurled with the prowess of Olympic shotput.

With rythmic grace, Charlie outdid Paavo Nurmi on this far less favorable terrain. He could reach down and scoop up a branch, root, stump or rock going full speed, then pitch a near miss at a moving target without ever breaking stride.

In addition to immediate sauna needs this human conveyor provided the needed winter surplus. The stones also served a useful purpose as replacement heating elements to the steam generator whenever its incinerating capacity dropped to the lukewarm parboiling level preferred by novices in this fine art of bathing.

As a desperate last resort, this unequal battle of wits prompted Charlie to turn cowboy with Aunt Esther's clothesline as a lasso. In his rodeo debut (also his finale) Wrangler Charlie trussed himself up like cargo-netted freight in the snarled coils of his improvised larial.

Tenderfoot Charlie, more alarmed than embarrassed, restored the line to its intended purpose, motivated by the potential dangers involved in such an act. Had this latter-day frontiersman been unfortunate enough to snare his elusive target, the thought of being enmeshed in the backlash snarl of their common fetter was sobering. Indeed, for Jenny would choose this opportune time to adjust numerous past grievances. Never noted for speed, Jenny would in all probability 'drag out' the proceedings.

With trembling hands Charlie gave the line another turn around the clothespost, and as a further precaution against ever repeating such lunacy he secured it with a double granny knot.

Rising Welfare Costs Worry County Officials

A joint meeting of Michigan Northern Counties Association and Michigan Association of Counties Region II attracted almost 100 county officials from 40 counties in northern lower Michigan to Grayling last week.

During the forenoon there was an exchange of information on mass leasing of cars for sheriff departments and increasing welfare costs. After lunch, programmed items were a panel discussion of labor negotiations with sheriff departments and the Senior Citizens Tax Relief Act.

Topics not on the program were brought up from the floor. There was criticism of Michigan statutes which exempt telephone, telegraph, and railroad companies from paying local taxes.

At one point, Weldon Johnson, president of MNCA stated: "Property off the local tax rolls increases the tax for all of us."

He also reported that Consumers Power was attempting to have some of its lands reclassified to commercial forest reserve land which would be taxed at about three cents per acre.

Barry McGuire, executive director of MAC, told the group his organization had gone on record for three years in support of a work program for welfare recipients. He also stated there was just as much cheating on income tax and in other areas as that reportedly done by welfare recipients.

"I think it is out of control. It is a national program that is dictated to us," he said.

He also told commissioners they should exercise more control over the two members they appoint to the county welfare board.

There was a report that the Department of Natural Resources has told Consumers Power it is ruining the AuSable River and wants the utility to remove all dams from the river.

Other topics of discussion were the costs of providing legal counsel for persons claiming to be without funds, the need for money to operate ambulance service, and the need for funds to carry out the directives of state rules and regulations.

Gunshot Damage Problem for Consumers

Losing electric service as a result of errant gunshot fire has become an ever-increasing problem for Consumers Power Company and its customers.

In 1964 there were only 25 instances when gunshot fire caused interruptions of electric to customers. During 1972, 75 cases were reported.

These 75 occurrences resulted in loss of power to 40,391 customers.

Aside from the inconvience caused by the service interruptions, a number of public health and safety agencies such as police and fire departments and hospitals lost electric power and could have been unable to react to a public emergency.

Figures for 1973 show the interruptions again on the rise. During the first six months of the year, 37 outages were caused by individuals shooting out the insulators on utility poses or severing the electric wires. Consumers Power records show 24,296 customers had their power interrupted during the six-month period.

Consumers Power wants to stop the intentional shooting of insulators and electric transmission lines. The company offers a standing reward of up to $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction or apprehension and restitution of persons responsible for these destructive acts.

A recent incident in western Michigan lead to the apprehension of two juveniles who admitted to shooting out 105 insulators along one stretch of major transmission line. They are paying restitution for the damages.

Over and above the cost to the company associated with the interruptions of electric service, Consumers Power is seriously concerned about the hazards that can result from the loss of power.

Most of these accidents occur in rural areas and time is needed to pinpoint the exact location of the break in the line. If the line is out of service, electricity needed for homes, businesses and industry is unavailable.

With cold weather arriving, heating systems are knocked out of service when the power is interrupted. An energized wire severed by gunfire that falls to the ground could cause a brush fire or seriously injure anyone who came in contact with it.

INSULATION

In just a few short weeks, many of our customers around Michigan have taken advantage of a new program to hold down heating bills and help save Natural Gas, too. The program was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. In fact, a recent government study found "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses," [which] "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution." The Michigan Public Service Commission has found that many homeowners could achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by having six inches of insulation in their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works.

First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project—and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100.

To assist you in the project, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows just how to do the job.

Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you, which can also be easy on your budget. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed—then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges.

Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Castle Takes Part In Army Maneuvers

Army Pvt. Randall K. Castle, 17, son of Mrs. Mariha L. Clark, Flint, and Archie L. Castle of East Jordan, participated with other American and Allied troops in exercise Reforger V in Germany, Oct. 10-16.

The military airlift command flew approximately 11,000 U.S.-based soldiers and more than 1,000 tons of equipment to three different airfields in Germany in preparation for the event.

Immediately after arriving overseas, the redeployed units drew combat gear and vehicles from prepositioned storage sites in Germany and moved to the exercise area to begin the seven-day field maneuver.

Pitted against the airlifted forces were Europe-based elements of NATO forces of the U.S., Germany and Canada.

The exercise, conducted by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and NATO, focused on the procedures and techniques for receiving, equipping, assembling and employing units after they arrive, rather than on rapid deployment of troops from the U.S.

Pvt. Castle is regularly assigned as a rifleman with Company B, 1st Battalion of the 3rd Infantry Division's 30th Infantry at Schweinfurt, Germany.

Even Conservatives Say Nixon Must Go

It is interesting to note that even the most conversative voices in the United States are beginning to suggest that Richard M. Nixon's effectiveness as president is at an end and that the time has come for him to resign.

Many months ago, liberals the country over reached the same conclusion.

Now, one of the most prestigious voices on the Right -- the Detroit News --- has called for Mr. Nixon to step down.

For years, the News, which has the largest circulation of any afternoon daily in the country, has been squarely in Mr. Nixon's corner, supporting him insupportable policies in Vietnam and Cambodia and even giving him editorial backing on Watergate.

After it was revealed last week that two of the tapes that the President had agreed to turn over to Judge Sirica did not even exist, even the long-suffering news had had enough.

The switch in the News' editorial stand on the President was so unexpected that it was even given news coverage by the rival Detroit Free Press.

Certainly the President's latest tactical blunder in his efforts to exonerate himself from complicity in the Watergate scandal has most Americans wondering how long he can last. And we wonder how long he expects to play games with his constituents.

Stephen Bull, a special assistant to the President, says that Mr. Nixon told him as early as Sept. 29 that two of the most critical conversations in the Watergate investigation were not even taped. Yet these conversations --- one with former Attorney General John Mitchell and another with fired White House counsel John Dean — were supposed to be among the nine tapes Mr. Nixon promised last week to turn over to Judge Sirica.

We are afraid that the President's credibility at this point is just about zero with the American people. And we have grave fears about the President's ability to conduct the affairs of the nation for the next 39 months without the support of the people who elected him, including the mighty voice of the Detroit News.

The only course, it seems, is for the Congress to act with the utmost dispatch in screening and approving a competent vice presidential nominee untouched by the Watergate scandal or other political indiscretions.

Then we hope the President will be big enough to step down without dragging the nation down with him. Such a move certainly would be cleaner than impeachment proceedings, which are certain to follow in the wake of Watergate and all the other unsavory wheeling and dealing which have been part and parcel of the Nixon Administration.

Let's Find Alternative To Capital Punishment

The statewide petition drive to put the question of capital punishment in Michigan on the November, 1974, ballot is hardly worthy of comment in the public prints.

Yet the drive is under way, spearheaded by State Rep. Kirby Holmes, and we are going to hear a lot about capital punishment in the months ahead, whether we like it or not.

Rep. Holmes and his friends need 300,000 signatures to put the question of capital punishment on a referendum ballot next year.

And they will probably get them.

More than a century and a quarter ago, Michigan abolished capital punishment as a means of dealing with social misfits of all kinds and was one of the first states to try to seek alternative methods of punishing and rehabilitating the perpetrators of grave crimes.

Admittedly, we haven't done such a bang-up job. Too many killers are imprisoned for a number of years and are released only to kill again. As bad as the present system is, the people of the state of Michigan have tried to do what is humane and just.

But a number of citizens, including Rep. Holmes, have had a craw full of the lawlessness that is rampant in our metropolitan areas. They are demanding the death penalty for first degree murder, regardless or reams of statistics which indicate that capital punishment is now now, nor never has been, a serious deterent to major crimes.

As much as we sympathize with our fellow Michiganders who must live and work in the lawless jungles that once were our proud cities, we feel as our forebears did so many generations ago that there must be a better way to deal the malefactors of society.

We don't pretend to know the answer, but, we are certain there is one.

Any adult old enough to remember the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby 40 years ago surely will be reluctant to put the people of the state of Michigan through similar traumas on a regular basis.

There must be a better way. Let's find it.

Keep Nixon

Dear Bob:

Re: Removal of Mr. Nixon from office.

Out on the west coast of the United States in Washington State, there was an Indian tribe whose cutom was to have two chiefs, one for times of war and the other for peace. From what I understand, the transfer of authority from one chief to the other was relatively frictionless and the tribe stayed together.

The present popularity of Mr. Nixon, as evidenced by resoltuions of non-confidence in the Congress, is plainly not in his favor.

There is, however, some parallel of what any president must do in leadership overseas, to prevent the involvement of our country in a situation of direct conflict with the Soviet Union. It presently appears that an amount of progress is being made in the direction of a cease fire between the Arabs and Israelis and hopefully a situation of stability between the two.

It then occurs to me that in an international crisis which could lead to a world holocaust, this is not the time to seek the problem of choosing a new national leader. dispute over succession to the presidency at this time, as I see it, could only lead to a worse international situation than already exists.

Choosing new national leadership in times of international crisis is the poorest of all possible solutions.

Yours,
Tolliferro

Dog, Cat Population Exploding

Dear Editor:

The comment was made recently on one of our local radio stations that strays running loose are not a problem of much importance.

I would like to take issue with that statement. Last year the Emmet County Humane Society handled approximately 2,100 animals (of these 1,500 were destroyed) and this year we're well on our way to surpassing that number.

These are just the animals that find their way to the shelter. How many hundreds more are killed on our highways or die of exposure and starvation no one knows. These animals are everyone's responsibility. Especially responsible are the people who let their animals run loose and those who let their animals contribute to the exploding pet population.

We need better and stronger animal control laws, enforcement of those laws and more public support of local shelters and similar organizations. But most of all we need fewer animals.

Look at it this way. In one year a female dog will give birth to four puppies, two of them females.

In the second year the mother and each of her two female offspring will produce four puppies, for a total of 12. By the third year, the three generations of dogs have produced 36 offspring. By the fourth year, the four generations have produced 108 offspring. In the fifth year, the number has grown to 324.

If you carried the tabulation to the seventh year, you would have a total of 4,372 dogs, and the progression for cats would be much larger.

This is a very conservative estimate because many cats and dogs have much larger litters of six to eight offspring and can give birth to two litters per year.

Please, if you have a pet, don't let it run loose and please do get it neutered. If you are considering getting a pet please look at it as the responsibility that it is. A cat or dog is not something that, once you become bored with it, you can toss out along the roadside. They are living things and because they are helpless on their own, their lives are our responsibility.

Also, when thinking of getting a pet, remember the pet population explosion and plan to have your dog or cat neutered. It's much more humane to destroy one unwanted animal now, than a possible 4,000 seven years from now.

Sincerely,
S. Wiles
Charlevoix

The Facts Of Death

(The following "mini-message" was submitted to the Courier by Mrs. Mary Margaret Geiken who picked it up in Alpena recently while attending a workshop of the Gaylord Diocesan Council of Catholic Women. "The facts are enlightening, as well as shocking," Mrs. Geiken said.)

The No. 1 killer is not war.

The No. 1 killer is abortion!

In the nine wars and 198 years since 1775, there have been 667,288 American battle deaths.

In 1972 alone, 600,000 American babies were killed by abortion. More than a murder-a minute for each of the 525,600 minutes in the year.

In 1972 alone, more babies were killed by "legal" abortion in California than were American servicemen killed in the Vietnam, Korean, Spanish, Mexican, 1812 and Revolutionary wars put together.

In war, the medical corps saves lives. In abortion, the medical profession kills lives. Aborted babies get no Purple Hearts, no Taps, no Memorial Day.

Abortion techniques pull the living baby apart, cut him in pieces, or pickle him alive in a salt solution. But no anesthesia is given the baby. A horrible, painful death!

If you are concerned about war, be more concerned about abortion.

Clockwise

Fran Martin

By BOB CLOCK

Clockwise has done quite a bit of cogitating about semantics ever since I learned that the American Legion was raising money to buy a new "electrically operated chair" for Fran Martin.

(Last week's Courier said the money would go for a new "electric chair" and there were those in town who took exception. Some said Fran isn't ready for the electric chair; others said she is long overdue).

At any rate, this whole business about Fran and her electric chair seems to be a contradiction in terms, because such chairs are usually reserved for the handicapped.

However, Fran Martin is one of the most un-handicapped people I've ever encountered in my long years on this planet. Certainly Fran's close friends -- and most certainly her employers — never think of Fran as being "handicapped" in any sense of the word.

If she has a "handicap" it must be in her favor, because she works circles around everyone else in the news business — seven days a week, 52 weeks a year, year in and year out, without so much as a long weekend to call her own.

As a competitor, Fran is formidable; as a co-worker she is sublime.

There are young grandparents in town today who weren't even born when Fran was involved in the traffic accident on U.S. 31 North that severed her spinal cord and left her without the use of her legs.

She was fresh out of nursing school at the time, and the accident ended her nursing career.

But what nursing lost, journalism gained, because Fran soon was appearing regularly in the Courier, the Petoskey Evening News (now the Petoskey News-Review), the Grand Rapids Press, the Boyne Citizen (now the Northland Press) and other publications.

Fran's forte is sports, which she writes with a vigor and insight that put other sports scribes to shame. She is on a first-name basis with all of the coaches and athletic directors in northern Michigan and could probably tell you how any of their respective teams did in a given year if you'd care to ask.

She seldom misses a home football or basketball game, weathering rain, snow and winter winds to see the Rayders in action.

She also is a nut about pro-football. If there's a game on television, you'd better not bother her until it's over, unless you've got wind of a breaking news story.

Her second love is the County Board of Commissioners. Fran has been covering commissioners' meetings since the county was organized (well, almost) and knows more about the intricacies of county government than anyone else in northern Michigan.

She also attends every meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education, winter and summer, and is an invaluable reference source for board members.

The makeup of county boards and school boards has changed many, many times over the years. Chairmen and superintendents have come and gone. Fran Martin is the only living link that ties them all together, interpreting their actions in light of what went before and what will probably happen in the future.

All boards, commissions and what-have-you should be so lucky as to have a Fran Martin attendance at their deliberations.

Then there's the Coast Guard. Fran has had a "thing" for Coasties ever since they invented boats. Let a new Coast Guard family move to town, and it's Fran they contact to find a home. Or if a raw recruit fresh out of boot camp gets homesick, it's Fran he turns to for sympathy and understanding.

And the Coast Guardsmen never forget. Her mailbox at Christmas is jammed with greetings from Coast Guard ships and stations around the world.

I tell you, it's scandalous.

I have never seen Fran Martin when she wasn't busy doing something. When she's not writing, she's knitting. And when she's not knitting, she's on the telephone. And when she's not on the telephone, she has a roomful of visitors clustered around her bed.

She reads everything that comes down the pike and has a lively interest in politics, the Democratic Party, wildlife, The Democratic Party, flying saucers, the Democratic Party, cooking, the Democratic Party, and kids.

Is Fran Martin handicapped? Not by any of the definitions I know. It's just that she needs this chair to take little folks to football and basetball games with her, you see.

Walk, Do Not Run

By Jim Fitzgerald

Photographers caught up with Elliot Richardson the Sunday morning after he quit being Richard Nixon's man for all jobs. The result, in newspapers all over the world, was pictures of Richardson in short pants, running when he could have been walking.

Just when I was beginning to trust him.

The trouble with this country is it is run by men who could sleep in on Sunday mornings, but don't.

I am sick of reading about presidential aides who chin themselves 1,456 times every morning before eating railroad spikes for breakfast.

I gag at congressmen who skip lunch and go to a gym where they pound on each other because it feels so good when they stop.

It was easy to stifle a sob when I heard about the sweat-suited senator who was mugged while jogging through a slum. What did he expect, rose petals strewn in his path?

If God had intended man to swim or sink, he wouldn't have invented Ivory soap. The big shots should learn to float with the tide, coast in neutral, and walk on the grass.

Relax. Sure, the fastest runner will get free TV time to explain his short-cuts. But what does it profit a man if he wins the sweepstakes but loses his place in line at the Laurel and Hardy Film Festival?

It is a paradox. The big problem is there are too many Gung Ho men in Washington. But if a guy isn't Gung Ho, his only chance at the White House is on a guided tour.

This nation respects-and elects-men who never waste a minute. Men who do push-ups in the backseat and go to bed with dictaphones. This nation rejects men who loiter around pretty girls and are always late getting back from lunch.

Obviously, it should be the other way around. The ambitious men, with rowing machines and cots in their offices, have made a terrible mess of things. They have forgotten that noses weren't created for grindstones. Noses were created to smell a flower or a dirty little kid wrapped around your neck at 5:30 every evening.

A lazy man knows about noses. And he knows that sometimes the greatest thing to do is to do nothing at all. Just sit and watch and remember nice things. Go fishing without a pole. Go walking without a sweat suit.

The Wall Street Journal told about a high-powered businessman who had a marvelous aquarium in his office. But he ordered it removed because too many visitors wanted to talk about the fish, instead of talk business. He didn't have the time to waste. Poor man.

The Washington wizards never waste time. They waste money and people and consciences as they run, run, run for the power and the glory and the wealth. Breathing deeply all the way, and doing isometrics at stop lights.

Ironically, when the world begins to blow up, the official advice will be:

Walk, do not run, to the nearest exit.

To Whom It May Concern...

By Doris Huckle

There is a rather new organization in our Charlevoix-Emmet counties area known as the Crooked Tree Arts Council. In less than two years people in the Council have exhibited outstanding cooperation and leadership in adding enjoyment of the Arts for all of us.

Members range from teens, household managers both male and female, people just beginning to explore the world of arts and crafts, to intermediate and professionals.

Elected directors meet every month the year around to plan programs for everyone including area school children, teens and adults. They serve without pay.

For instance, in the planning stage now is the 2nd annual Photography Show next summer open to everyone in Michigan; an areawide Annual Art Exhibit featuring youth enrolled in high school art classes next spring; bringing the famed Cincinnati Ballet to this area next May for workshops and performances; scheduling a Town Hall Celebrity series and luncheons next spring and fall; presenting the contemporary Braided Theatre group next January, and establishing an annual music scholarship award.

The Council is affiliated with the Michigan Council for the Arts and just this October members of the Top O' Mitt Artists and Craftsmen from 33 northen lower Michigan counties have joined with the Council.

An advisory group from various Top O' Mitt communities will help plan the popular twice-a-year seminars that present local, or bring outstate talent to our northern Michigan area, getting membership together for an all day learning and visiting session each spring and fall.

The Council has fixed things so anyone can join for as little as $3, or if budget permits they are happy with family and lifetime memberships or patron amounts of any size.

Since it's a non-profit organization memberships are taxdeductible, but that's a minor consideration really, for the majority of people involved on hard working committees.

Anyone who isn't already a member and would like to work with this group, get acquainted, share information and be included on their mailing list to receive the Crooked Tree Arts Council Bulletin, can ring the telephone off the hook at 536-2393, East Jordan.

Mrs. Bret Riley is the 1973-74 Arts Council President.

If she isn't out helping her deupty sheriff husband Bret pile sandbags on their Lake Charlevoix beach to thwart high water, working on greens with the Garden Club for their annual Christmas sale, paying her $1 a game with the East Jordan Bridge Tournament group that raises, then spends, thousands of dollars for worthy city and school projects, learning something new at an Extension Club meeting, carting a basket of homemade goodies to the ill, lonely or too-busy, decorating the reception desk at the city library, mailing a hand created packaged garment or food to one of her many adopted kids in foreign lands or a budget-crimped city artist, attending an Arts Council meeting, getting Bret's never-know-quite-when meals ready or sitting in the congregation at East Jordan's Evangelical Lutheran Church, she will see you get prompt attention from a membership chairman in your community.

Let the phone ring a long time.

Mrs. Riley just might also be letting Tiger, the Great Dane, out for a breath of our great northern air.

Safety Valve

Question: I thought our Michigan law provided that the Bicyclist "shall ride as near to the right hand side of the roadway as practicable." WHY, then, doesn't the fuzz get those characters riding side-by-side on bicycles? S.A.S., Ann Arbor

Answer: We agree that this sounds confusing, but another section of that same law provides that "Persons riding bicycles, motor driven cycles or motorcycles upon a roadway shall not ride more than 2 abreast except on paths or parts of roadways set aside for the exclusive use of such vehicles."

Hansen said the Porter Co. of East Jordan had run into an old foundation while digging a manhole and engineers McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor had revised construction plans, calling for two additional manholes. He said the engineers hadn't contacted the city about the change and it was uncertain what additional expense–if any—would be involved. The work is being done just north of the bridge.

Group to Distribute 'Luke'

Copies of the Book of Luke will be distributed to Charlevoix area families beginning Wednesday, Nov. 7, by members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and the Interdenominational Neighborhood Bible Study group, according to Rev. Duane Imig of Bethany Lutheran Church.

Teams will meet at 7 p.m. at the Lutheran Church before starting their door-to-door canvass. No calls will be made after 9 p.m.

The calls will continue through Nov. 14 until the entire area is covered.

The project is part of "Key '73", an interdenominational campaign to recruit more Americans to the Christian way of life.

"It is not an organization, but rather a movement of more than 130 denominations, centered in making Christ known," Rev. Imig said.

"Key '73 carries the vision of every unchurched family on the continent being visited by someone who comes with loving concern to share his faith in Christ," Rev. Imig added. "This is practical ecumenicity. The local program is the outworking of this significent continental emphasis."

Rayders Defeat Cheboygan

Charlevoix's Red Rayders are tied with the Petoskey Northmen for second place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference after blanking the Cheboygan Chiefs 27-0.

Undefeated St. Ignace led the conference with seven wins and no losses.

Cheboygan was third, 4 and 3; followed by Gaylord, 3 and 4; Boyne City, 2 and 5; and Grayling and Rogers City, 1 and 6.

In other wind-up action Friday night, Petoskey defeated Boyne City 22-0; St. Ignace walked over Rogers City, 38-0; and Grayling bowed to Gaylord, 21-8.

The Charlevoix-Cheboygan game got off to a rocky start when Rayder Mike Streeter and Chief Rob Harper were disqualified in the opening period for unnecessary roughness. Streeter is a key man on the Charlevoix team.

The Rayders were first to score on a 24-yard run by Kevin Martin, with Randy Faust kicking the extra point.

Faust scored again in the second period, but the extra point was missed, leaving the Rayders ahead at halftime, 13-0.

In the third quarter, Gary Novotny climaxed a long Charlevoix drive by carrying the ball over from the 6-yard line. The conversion was lost.

In the finale, Dan Greene frosted the cake by scoring on a 20-yard punt return, with Faust running the conversion, ending the shut-out at 27-0.

Charlevoix racked up 12 first downs, compared to 9 for Cheboygan, and completed 4 of 8 attempted passes, compared to Cheboygan's 3 of 15. The Rayders gained 36 yards on passes, compared to 19 for Cheboygan.

Charlevoix tried 49 rushing plays,—10 more than Cheboygan, gaining 230 yards, compared to the Chiefs' 139.

Martin led the Rayders in ball carries (17) for 133 yards, or an average of 7.8 yards per carry.

Swimming Bear

Bruin Leaves Tracks All Over Charlevoix

By ROMAN BRUIN
Cub Reporter

No one actually saw the bear, mind you.

But there is little doubt that a bruin from the woods north of town paid a visit to several residential areas of Charlevoix over the weekend. His tracks were everywhere.

Holly Taber, 9, who lives with her mother, Mrs. Sally Taber, at 204 Nicholls-st., went out to play Saturday morning. She was back in the house shortly to report bear tracks in the snow in their backyard.

Mrs. Taber thought Holly was letting her imagination run wild – until neighbors reported bear tracks in their yards, too.

About the same time, Robert Riggle and Gerald Goss went to the foot of Burns-st. where their boat was docked. They were going to take it across Round Lake to Bellinger Marina for the winter.

They were surprised to find bear tracks leading down to the hill and out onto the dock.

"I was almost afraid to pull the canvas off the boat," Goss relates.

Meanwhile, across Round Lake on the Belvedere Club, weekend visitors at the Harry (Doc) Collins cottage were alarmed to see bear tracks on the premises. They started on the south shore of Upper Pine River Channel, across from Old Island, and meandered through the club property, ending in a grove of trees behind Meadow Lane.

Tracks were reported later in the day behind the Kit Carson Lumber Co. on M-66.

"Bear watchers" speculate that the animal traveled along the Lake Michigan shore from the Mt. McSauba area, lumbered up the steep bluff, crossed Michigan-ave. and Petoskey-rd. and eventually found itself in the backyards on the east side of Nicholls-st.

Although the tracks disappeared at the Dixon-ave. alley, the animal propably used the alley to reach Burns-st., which runs into Round Lake.

After plunging into the lake, the bear apparently swam in the south-easterly direction, arriving at the Collins' dock.

Clark Bisbee, who spent the weekend at the Collins' cottage, pointed out claw marks on the dock which probably were made by the bear. Nearby the snow was darkened by a puddle of brownish water where the animal apparently stopped to shake.

If he had continued another 15 feet upstream, he could have come ashore on a strip of sandy beach and wouldn't have had to contend with the dock, but bears aren't all that bright.

The tracks measured about eight inches long, indicating the animal was considerably larger than a cub.

Time of the visit is uncertain, although dogs on Dixon-ave. barked heartily between 5:30 and 6 a.m., which is probably when the bear was padding down the alley.

In the summer of 1972, golfers at the Charlevoix municipal links were startled to see a bear and two cubs cross the course near the Elementary School.

Bruce Henley speculates that Saturday's visitor might have been one of the same animals.

"He just got tired playing the same old nine holes and wanted to try the Belvedere Golf Course for a change," Henley opined.

Council Votes Monday On Power Rate Hike

NEFF'S QUALITY Food Store on Bridge-st. formally changed hands last week. The business was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Neff by Mr. and Mrs. Ken Peterson of Walloon Lake. Peterson is a Petoskey realtor. In addition to the business, Peterson bought Neff's building, which will be converted to office space. The grocery store itself will be moved across Bridge-st., probably by April 1, into the former K & A Dodge Building, which Peterson is remodeling into a shopping arcade. The name of the store has been changed to "The Market" and will be the focal point of the new shopping complex. Seated above at the closing are Peterson (left) and Neff; who will continue as store manager. Standing from left are Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Neff and attorney Guy Conkle of Boyne City. Details of the transaction were handled by Peterson and Associates of Petoskey. Closing took place at the Charlevoix State Bank.

20 Pct. Increase Expected

A city electrical rate increase of 20 percent probably will be approved at next Monday's council meeting.

Meeting in committee Nov. 12, Aldermen discussed a revised billing schedule which would increase the minimum monthly rate from $1.40 for 24 kilowatt hours or less to $1.90. Similar increases are anticipated for commercial and industrial users.

The proposed rate hikes are in keeping with increased costs of electrical power purchased from Consumers Power Co. The rates are virtually the same at those charged by the company to customers it serves directly.

If approved, the rate hikes will be the first in 11 years for Charlevoix residents.

Under the proposed schedule, seasonal customers will be charged $21 a month, an increase of $3 over the $18 a month they now pay.

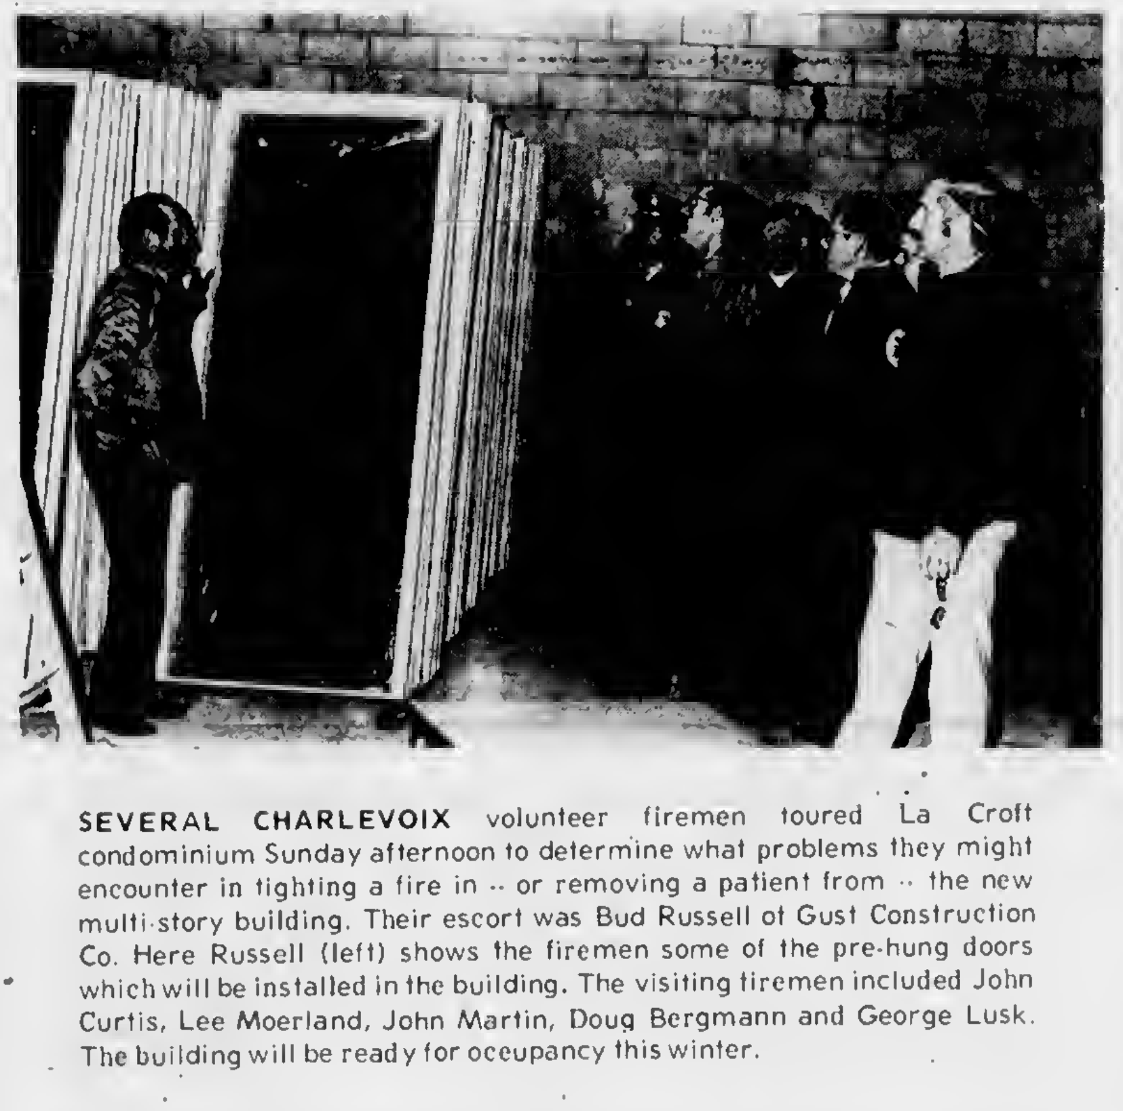
Residential customers would pay from .0435 cents to .0230 cents per kilowatt hour for up to 400 kwh. Everything additional would be billed at the rate of 2 cents a kilowatt hour.

In other committee business, the council:

–Discussed bids for a new front-end loader.

–Agreed to meet sometime this week with James Corbin over a proposed swap of a home building site in the Mt. McSauba area for property Corbin owns on Pine River Lane.

–Discussed bids for a pole-barn building to be erected adjacent to the city garage.



SEVERAL CHARLEVOIX volunteer firemen toured La Croft condominium Sunday afternoon to determine what problems they might encounter in fighting a fire in -- or removing a patient from -- the new multi-story building. Their escort was Bud Russell of Gust Construction Co. Here Russell (left) shows the firemen some of the pre-hung doors which will be installed in the building. The visiting firemen included John Curtis, Lee Moerland, John Martin, Doug Bergmann and George Lusk. The building will be ready for occupancy this winter.

Hunters' Breakfast Planned

Charlevoix area hunters who will be taking to the woods early Thursday for the opening of the 1973 deer hunting season are reminded that they won't have to have the little lady get up early to prepare their breakfast.

Charlevoix High School seniors will hold their annual "Hunters' Breakfast" on opening day, starting at 5 a.m.

On the menu will be pancakes, hash-brown potatoes, sweet rolls, sausage, eggs, coffee and orange juice. Cost for the all-you-can-eat meal is $2.50.

Although mild weather is forecast for the opener, with little or no tracking snow in the Charlevoix area, Department of Natural Resources officials predict that the season would be up-to-snuff around the state.

Many Charlevoix residents are planning to hunt on Beaver Island and in the Upper Peninsula.

Congregational Church To Vote on New Pastor

Rev. Giffin will arrive in neapolis, Minn., has been invited to meet members of the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix on the recommendation of a pulpit committee which has been looking for a new pastor.

Rev. Ray Giffin In Min-Charlevoix Friday, November 16. The following evening he will be a guest at a potluck supper in the Fellowship Hall, starting at 6:30 p.m. Those taking part are asked to bring their own table service, a dish to pass and milk for their family, if needed.

On Sunday, Rev. Giffin will preach for the formal call at the morning service.

Following the service, members of the congregation will convene for a business meeting and a vote on Rev. Giffin as church pastor.

The new pastor will succeed Rev. Gordon Mitchinson who accepted a call to Lakeview, Mich., in August.

In the interim, Rev. Lawrence Tenhopen, a former pastor now living in Elk Rapids, has been in charge of worship services.

First State Low Bidder On Tax Notes

The bid submitted by the First State Bank, being the lowest of two received, was accepted by the school board at a recent meeting at the Charlevoix school business office.

The bid was in the amount of 5.10 percent interest on $235,000 in tax anticipation bonds.

This brings to $525,000 in tax anticipation bonds and $125,000 borrowed against State Aid until State Aid and tax monies become payable.

Because these monies do not become available until well into the school year, the school board has been asking taxing units within the district to levy the taxes in July, thus making it unnecessary to borrow against anticipated funds.

Jeanne Belfy Wins $1,500 Scholarship

Jeanne Belfy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Belfy, of Rt. 1 Charlevoix, a sophomore at Northern Michigan University, has been awarded a $1500 scholarship sponsored by the university.

She was one of 40 students to receive the scholarship, which is given to students who were semi-finalists in National Merit Scholarship competition while in high school.

"Northern has been actively recruiting students who have been semi-finalists in the competition," said Robert Pecotte, director of financial aids. This year $53,500 in scholarships has been awarded to 40 students compared to last year's figure of $26,750 to 23 students.

First Cage Game Slated For Nov. 27

Charlevoix High School's first non-conference basketball game of the season will be Tuesday, Nov. 27, when Harbor Springs travels to Charlevoix.

Junior Varsity action starts at 6:45, with the varsity game scheduled for 8 p.m.

School Board Adopts Policy for 'Snow Days'

Emergency school closing procedures, the request for bids for new school buses, the appointment of a varsity track coach and an aide in the Title 1 program, the acceptance of a gift from Nathan Cummings, and numerous reports highlighted the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

Supt. James A. McKimmy said that school closing procedures because of inclement weather will follow the rulings adopted in 1967. He said the Charlevoix schools would have classes when it was reasonably and prudently safe to transport students. The format, in other words, will remain much the same as in the past with the school remaining in close touch with the Road Commission regarding roads.

The need to order new buses this year to return the district to a schedule of purchases started earlier was discussed. The drastic increase in school enrollment in 1967 necessitated the purchase of additional buses in one year threw the schedule off.

After a lengthy discussion, the board advised McKimmy to solicit bids on four buses for delivery in September, 1974. Delivery has been accepted on one and two other buses ordered in April are expected late next month.

The possibility of trading in two 1971 station wagons used by the school came in for some discussion but it was decided to keep them another year.

The board approved the appointment of Gary Stutzman as Varsity track coach for the current school year. At the same time, the board accepted the resignation of Condit Drury as Middle School basketball coach. The job will be posted.

Mrs. Diana Phail was employed as aide to the teacher of the Title 1 preschool program.

The board acknowledged with gratitude the gift of numerous pieces of office furniture including an office desk, copier with base stand, an electric typewriter, tape recorders, file cabinets, office chairs and other equipment given by Nathan Cummings, who has given many gifts to the school in the past.

Supt. McKimmy reported on a newsletter he is preparing and which will be mailed late this month to residents of the school district; a fact sheet now available with pertinent information about the schools and the school district and the progress of scheduling Parent-Teacher conferences for Nov. 28 and 29.

Mrs. Carolyn DeMoor reported on a recent Continuous Progress conference held recently in Grand Rapids and attended by McKimmy, Glenn B. Snider, elementary school principal, Mrs. DeMoor, three other elementary teachers and William Murray. All were enthusiastic about the conference, what it offered and the type of program suggested.

Vane H. Smith, High School principal, and Shielah Brady, president of the Senior Class, reported on tentative plans for graduation. The class has voted to combine baccalaureate and commencement, to have a local speaker and to have the event on a Sunday rather than a weekday. Final plans will be made later.

Robert Bogart reported on the matters of fuel for the schools and school buses. He said he did not anticipate a shortage of natural gas which is used for heating purposes in all but the auto shop and school bus garage. However, thermostats will be set at 68 degrees, effective Nov. 12, and every effort will be made to utilize energy by turning off lights and by other means.

He said that gasoline for buses would likely be available for the present through the school's sources. He added, however, that last year buses traveled more than 18,000 miles on trips for which the school was not reimbursed but penalized at the rate of 60 cents per mile during the 1972-73 school year. Schools must report the

City Offers Prizes For Yule Displays

The City Council decided informally at its Monday night committee meeting to deemphasize lights in the 1973 Christmas Home Decorating contest in compliance with President Nixon's power economy program.

In years past, the city has awarded prizes to homes in the three wards with the most attractive outdoor electrical displays. An additional prize was awarded to the best decorated home outside the city using city power.

However, the new austerity program has changed all that.

The council agreed to award prizes for the best non-electrical displays, with the emphasis on ingenuity and creativity.

Alderman Jeannine Wallace, who made the proposal, suggested that the judging be done during daylight hours.

She also suggested that three substantial prizes be offered throughout the city as a whole, rather than by ward. In past years, first, second, and third place winners in each ward received prizes of $15, $10 and $5 respectively.

This year, the city-wide grand prize will be $50, with a $25 second prize and a third prize of $15.

Since the use of electrical power is no longer a factor, no prize will be awarded outside the city.

City fathers also discussed "toning down" Charlevoix's downtown lights this year in view of the energy crisis, but no firm plan was agreed upon.

Mayor Edward P. Hansen suggested it might be possible to turn off every other light on Bridge-st. and still have ample street lighting. No decision was reached.

5 Holidays For Kids in November

There will be no school for Charlevoix youngsters Thursday and Friday, Nov. 15 and 16, the annual deer hunters' holiday.

Youngsters also will have a break next Thursday and Friday, the Thanksgiving recess.

Classes also have been cancelled Nov. 29, the day of parent-teacher conferences.

Don't delay! Our new low-cost home insulation program can cut gas heating costs up to 17%.

In just a few short weeks, many of our customers around Michigan have taken advantage of a new program to hold down heating bills and help save Natural Gas, too, The program was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. In fact, a recent government study found "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses," [which] "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution." The Michigan Public Service Commission has found that many homeowners could achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by having six inches of insulation in their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works.

First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project–and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100.

To assist you in the project, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows just how to do the job.

Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you, which can also be easy on your budget. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed–then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges.

Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Debaters Tackle Issue Of Jobs for the Poor

By Susie Boss

Charlevoix's debate team is out to solve the unemployment problem–theoretically, that is.

This year's topic is whether or not the federal government should provide jobs for all employable poor people. All debate this year will be on this topic.

The season started early for varsity debaters Gayle Boss and Anita Potter. They attended debate camp at NMU in Marquette for two weeks this summer. They also participated in two pre-season tournaments, one at Southfield-Lathrop High School near Detroit and one at Ann Arbor Pioneer High School.

The season started for the rest of the team on Nov. 6 at the Cardinal Debate Tournament in Big Rapids. Two teams of four debaters took part. Gayle Boss received the fourth place speaker award with 106 speaker points. The varsity unit, consisting of Gayle, Anita, Sheilah Brady and Kim Blanchard, took fourth place out of 38 teams. Also debating were Denise Boss, Darrell Clark, Jane McDonald and Susie Boss.

The debate team is looking ahead to a full season. A novice tournament was held Nov. 10 at Big Rapids. The league season is yet to begin.

Coach Connie Ford anticipates a successful season for the five returning varsity and ten novices. She feels that this year's team has great potential and ability.

Teen Group Plans Outings for Retarded

By Shelly Warner

"Youth of Charlevoix-Emmet Association for Retarded Children" is not a club. It's an organization of people ages 13 to 21 who really care. What do they care about?

Members of YCEARC pay yearly dues of $1. This money goes toward activities for retarded and handicapped children. Not a penny is wasted.

Activities include: Dances, parties the theater and bowling. It's really rewarding to make a retarded child happy. The group plans regular meetings which will be posted on the Student Bulletin Board and in the announcements.

At this time the group is planning a hay ride for the kids.

This is your opportunity to join a really worthwhile organization, not just for yourself, but for someone who needs you to care.

All Stars Beat Harbor In Overtime

Charlevoix's pee-wee All Stars from the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth grades defeated their Harbor Springs counterparts 12-6 Saturday in the wind-up of the flag football season.

At the end of regulation play, the score was tied 6-6 and officials agreed to sudden-death overtime.

With about five minutes on the clock, Scott Morgan hit paydirt after an 8-yard run giving Charlevoix the title.

Morgan also made Charlevoix's only other TD in the game, taking the ball over from the 6-yard line in the third period.

Scoring for Harbor Springs was Chris Shepler who carried the ball over in the first period on a 40-yard end-around run.

On Oct. 27, Charlevoix lost to Petoskey 21-13 in the first game of the playoffs.

JV's Wind Up Season With Feast & Awards

By Norm Probert

Charlevoix's JV football team wound up the 1972 season last week with hamburgers and French fries - all they could eat — at the Shed courtesty of Jack and Jerri Bourke.

Tri-Captains Mark Hosmer, Randy Williams and Doug Smith cut the cake and served barrels of soft drinks. No one went hungry.

Awards were given out to members based on the votes of the team.

Elected "Most Valuable Players" were Randy Williams and Doug Smith.

"Most Improved Player" awards went to Jim Marsh and Scott Boss.

"Most Determined Player" awards were won by Terry Drew and John Cinnamon.,

Scholastic awards went to John Cinnamon, Dan Boss and Tow Fowler.

Best defensive linemen were Jim Marsh and Mark Hosmer; best defensive backs Randy Williams and Mike Skippergosh; best offensive linemen Ed Mann and John Cinnamon; and best offensive backs Randy Williams and Doug Smith.

Matt Doan, Ed Bourke, Gary Probert and Scott Boss were voted the top four freshmen.

Team members voted Petoskey the toughest team they faced all season, with St. Ignace close behind.

The team sportsmanship award went to Mark Hosmer, John Cinnamon and Doug Smith.

Winning "unwarranted recognition for spending more time in the whirlpool due to injuries and using more rolls of tape per practice session than all team members combined" were Kevin Speer, Mike Way and Dick Wells.

Receiving special recognition for "hard work and dedication" were Managers Barney Way and graduate assistant Don Clark.

As coach, I would like to thank Jack and Jerri Bourke and all JV squad members and cheerleaders for what they sacrificed to wear the maroon and white on the CHS gridiron and practice field.

All of these high school students deserve a pat-on-the-back for giving up afternoons for conditioning, curtailed study time, bumps, bruises, injuries, freezing cold and wet weather.

Their parents also gave up a lot — waiting to pick them up after practice, late dinners and washing dirty uniforms.

Yet the parents were always there on the sidelines, yelling for junior to keep away from that big bruiser.

The boys themselves are healthier and better coordinated than they were before. They also have learned a lot about loyalty, respect for authority, how to control their tempers, sportsmanship — and football.

The Charlevoix Independent Basketball league (Class A Schedule) began play Nov. 5, according to City Recreation Director Curtis Kipke.

Seven teams are in the league: Andy's Tire World, Boss Insurance, Freedman, Head Shop, Hess Furniture, John Best Insurance and Medusa.

Games are played Mondays and Wednesdays at 7 p.m. and 8:15 p.m.

No games have been scheduled Nov. 19 and 20, because of deer hunting.

She Wants to Help

Patricia Miller, preschool consultant for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, is looking for toddlers with problems.

Her job is to determine the extend of the child's disability–whether physical, mental or emotional-and to recommend a program to help the child overcome, or at least cope with, the disability before he enters school.

"Our goal is to have every child operating a maximum capacity when he enters school," according to Dale Fassett, special education director.

Deficiencies may range from hearing and eyesight problems all the way to severe emotional disturbances.

Jeff Cockfield drew these cartoons to help Miss Miller publicize her quest for preschoolers with handicaps.

Jeff is in the third grade at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Older Citizens Should Take Austerity in Stride

The present generation of Americans isn't exactly used to the skimping and saving that is going to be necessary if we are to survive the present energy crisis without two many scars.

Older Americans who lived through the scarcities of World War I, the Depression and World War II probably will be better able to cope with any change in their present standard of living.

After a week of economizing, many Charlevoix families have found that their homes aren't all that uncomfortable with the thermostat set at 65 degrees rather than 72.

One couple tried driving to Petoskey without exceeding the suggested 50 mile per hour speed limit. They enjoyed the scenery immensely --- although they report there were many angry drivers behind them who wanted to pass.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. has launched a major effort to conserve fuel by offering to finance ceiling insulation in atties. The company claims the savings in fuel consumption are astounding with only six inches of insulation on the attic floor.

Charlevoix residents apparently are also trying to conserve electricity. Homes that once had a light burning in every room all evening are noticeably darker nowadays. It isn't easy to keep after the kids to turn off lights they don't need, but a concerted effort in every home should show up in the next batch of utility bills.

Some families are thinking about eliminating --- or at least cutting down on the number of outdoor lights they use as holiday decorations this Christmas.

We also believe that substantial electrical savings could result from a reduction in street lighting, particularly in such well-lit communities as Charlevoix. Bridge-st. would still look like northern Michigan's "Great White Way" with only half of the street lights turned on.

Where Are Peaceniks Now We Need Them?

October 31, 1973

Dear Sir,

Where are the "war resistors"? The peaceniks? The bleeding heart liberals? The draft dodgers? The other enemies of the United States? And, most importantly, the "Peace Doves" from the United Nations? There is a war going on and I have not heard a single complaint about our sending food, fiber, and war materials to ONE of the combatants! Where are you "peace at any price" (including honor)-freaks? Or is this a good war? A just war? Or a religious war?

If no one else will protest, I will. It is unconstitutional for my tax dollars to be spent in this war. It is unconstitutional to allow private United States citizens to send their money - tax decuctable - to ONE or both of the combatants. You and I, dear taxpayer, will have to make up the loss in tax revenue and I for one don't like it. And what is your representative doing about all this? If he is like mine - Phil Rupe - it is business as usual. Sending out mealy-mouthed letters - at taxpayers' expense - telling you and I all about his recent efforts to increase our taxes with more socialist, welfare legislation he is supporting. Never a word about protecting our constitutional liberties that are threatened by the Watergate decoy or the Agnew charade, and now, the new no win war.

Are you going to sit back again, Mr. and Mrs. tax supplier, while a new batch of the nation's finest are shipped out to be slaughtered? Did you ever ask yourself why good Jews, good Moslems, and soon good Christians should be fighting at all? And, if the first two want to fight, why should we be involved? OK, I know we signed a treaty to help one, but why not the other? Haven't we always been the best of friends with the Arab people? Haven't they always supplied us with oil for our national needs even to the point of taking our worthless paper IOU's in exchange.

Why have our governors forced them into the camp of our avowed communist enemies and then sided with their enemy? And are the Jewish and Moslem people enemies? Or are the socialist leaders of each sacrificing their own people, again, in conjunction with the socialist leaders in the United States and Russia, to bring about the world totalitarian government that has been dreamed of by Marx, Lenin, Hitler, Wishaup, Nixon, Rockefeller and hundreds of others of the same ilk?

You better believe they are, and will again, with United States boys if you don't protest! Haven't you had enough inflation, shortages, and government controls yet? If you have, you better get out from behind that boob tube and stand up for America before Big Brother takes the tube away from you along with your food, your property and the freedoms you still have.

Says Bible Supports Capital Punishment

To the Editor,

In one of your editorials you say, "Let's find alternatives to capital punishment."

We do have an alternative to capital punishment and that is to obey the sixth commandment which says: "Thou shalt not kill."

In the twentieth chapter of Exodus, the 13th verse, it says: "Thou shalt not kill." Some people I know quote this Bible scripture as proof that capital punishment is wrong. In the twenty-first chapter of Exodus, God gives some of the judgments for those who break His laws. In the 12th verse it says: "He that smiteth a man, so that he die shall be surely put to death," and Leviticus 24:17 says: "And he that killeth any man shall surely be put to death." And finally in Genesis 9:6 it says: "Whoso sheddeth mans blood, by man shall his blood be shed; for in the image of God made he man."

We are told that capital punishment does not belong in a "civilized" world. But what a lot of people can't seem to get through their heads, is that this world is filled with a host of "uncivilized" people.

Capital punishment has been God's Law since the day the world's population totaled only eight people. It is still the best way for today.

On the TV news tonight it was reported that nine people were killed in execution style in California. A short while back in California, mass graves were located containing bodies hacked to death by a machete. In Texas, a homosexual pervert abused and then murdered about 30 young teenage boys. Richard Speck butchered eight young student nurses in Chicago.

We have to have laws to protect people. It's about time we think of the decent citizens, instead of feeling sorry for the killers.

The Bible tells us words to this effect in Numbers 35:31 which says: "Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, which is guilty of death: but he shall be surely put to death."

Thank You
Robert L. Olson

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump Jr.

Permissiveness on the part of parents, heralded as a breakthrough in human relations, is actually on a decline from its dominance in past generations. Today, permissiveness is confined primarily to the family car whereas our parents offered us an endless list of permissives.

We were permitted to tote in wood, fetch water, empty ashes, do dishes, scrub floors, hang out and take in the wash, iron, hoe the garden and pick berries just to name a few. The epitome of permissiveness was picking potato bugs!

These delightful activities have been relegated to the past by modern technology, the areosol shave bomb in particular. Permissiveness fell victim to this insidious device which replaced the razor strop. This wide piece of leather, intended indirectly for the face, when applied directly to other parts of our anatomy tended to revive our youthful enthusiasm for these various projects.

To digress momentarily: Instant lather is the perfect answer to a different, though not entirely unrelated, problem. Remember when we unknowingly repeated some colorful word, uttered by an adult about the third time the car slipped off the jack, and had our mouths washed with soap? Judging by the language gaining common usage in public, in schools and in the media this lather is ignoring the facial feature most in need of cleansing!

Also, we tend to associate the word 'allowance' with modern incentives to good behavior but it merely varies in amount and frequency compared to the half dollar we received each year to squander at the circus or carnival.

There were certain memorable highlights in every boy's life. At an age when most boys receive a ten speed bike, we became the proud owners of a pocket knife. At 15, our shins disappeared from view in the long pants of our first suit. At graduation we received a watch.

The goal of these parents was as unrealistic as the means chosen to achieve it. Upon reaching maturity the young men received their allowance: a minimum of 40 acres and a house, at any time of their choosing. The girls received further education or a household of new furnishings, quite often both.

Weddings were historic occasions with well-wishers donating enough stock and other material goods to insure a sound start for the new family in the community. The local banker invariably made the scene, participating in the festivities with a certain amount of personal interest relating to his financial future.

In today's cashless society, the banker is taking an increasing interest in these nuptial events–roughly 12 percent.

Senator Bob Davis

DIRECT LINE

Q. What is happening in your fight to maintain Michigan's high meat standards?

A. Temporarily at least, we are "one up" in our long fight against the Federal Government and three major meat packers over marketing of lower grades of meat in this state.

By a vote of 22 to 6, the Senate has passed and returned to the House of Representatives for a minor amendment a bill that requires stores selling federally inspected sausage-type meat that does not meet Michigan's standards to display signs that warn prospective buyers of the fact.

As passed by the Senate, the bill calls for the signs to proclaim that "The following products do not meet Michigan's high meat ingredient standards but do meet the lower federal standards."

If the bill becomes law, merchants will be required to post such signs where they "shall be clearly visible to a customer."

This is the latest step in the long fight Michigan has waged against the three national packing companies - Armour, Hormel, and Wilson - which have refused to meet Michigan's standards for quality in frankfurters and other sausage meats.

Cold Bedrooms Are Back in Style

In her Ironton news column this week, Mrs. Ross Alexander suggests that the present fuel shortage should bring back warm memories to many residents who lived through the era of the pot-bellied stove, the coal furnace and cold bedrooms.

An she's probably right.

There was a time in this over-heated country of ours when the upstairs bedroom with the stove pipe running through it was reserved for the sick or the elderly. It was the only spot on the entire second floor that had any heat at all, and that was very meager at best on a frosty January night.

Downstairs, the kitchen with its wood range was the most popular room in the house. The range not only provided the heat for cooking and baking, but it also warmed the whole room—winter and summer.

Someone might start a fire in the parlor stove after supper, but usually it was easier to hang around the kitchen until the last embers burned out and then go to bed.

On very cold nights, it was smart to put a brick or sad iron on the range before the fire went out. At bedtime, you could wrap it in a towel and slip it between the sheets to take the chill off the bed.

Of course, folks dressed for chilly nights back in the "good old days." Flannel night clothes were the rule rather than the exception. Long-johns were also popular nighttime attire. And if you had a feather tick and an eiderdown comforter you were safe from the frost until morning.

Mornings probably were the worst time in the poorly heated homes of yesterday. The bravest member of the family was the first one up to shake the furnace or stoke up the stove. It was very nice to lie in bed and hear all the rattling and clanking going on downstairs. It meant that heat was on the way.

When I was a boy in Detroit, we had a coal furnace that was highly temperamental. You could bank it to the top of the firepot in the evening, but by morning the fire was usually out. And it was sometimes hours before the house was half-way comfortable.

On such days, we usually dressed in front of the register in the living room shivering and shaking in the faint breath of warm air from the new fire in the basement.

I don't think many Americans would relish going back to such "good old days." They really weren't very much fun, but fortunately we didn't know any better. If we had known the joys of automatic furnaces we wouldn't have been very happy with our lot. But ignorance, as the man says, is bliss.

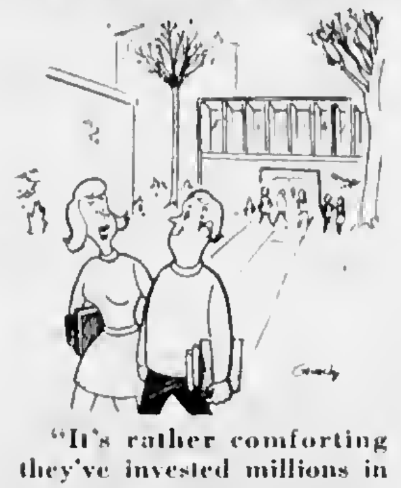
Of course, home heating is only part of the current cirsis.

Americans generally consume far more electricity than they actually need, leaving lights burning in unused rooms and "wasting" electricity on such routine tasks as brushing their teeth, shaving, opening tin cans and carving roasts.

Just count the electrical appliances you household has acquired in the past 40 years, and you'll have a good idea why the nation is in a power bind today. The ice box has been replaced by the refrigerator. The wood range has been replaced by the gas range. The scrub board has been replaced by the automatic washer. The clothes line has been replaced by the automatic dryer. The carpet sweeper has been replaced by the vacuum cleaner. The radio has been replaced by television. The list goes on and on.

It would be difficult to go back to the "good old days" and certainly few people want to. But we might be forced to take a few backward steps before the present crisis is over.

My Neighbors



"It's rather comforting they've invested millions in buildings, equipment, and faculty to see we don't fail."

Alderwoman Wallace offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption.

RESOLUTION FOR DESIGNATION OF (STREET) ADMINISTRATOR

WHEREAS, Section 13 (c) of Act 51, Public Acts of 1951 provides that each incorporated city and village to which funds are returned under the provisions of this section, that "the responsibility for all street improvement, maintenance and traffic operation work shall be coordinated by a single administrator to be designated by the governing body who shall be responsible for and shall represent the municipality in all transactions with the State Highway Commission pursuant to the provisions of this Act".

THEREFORE, be it resolved, that this honorable Body designate Ida A. Heise as the single (street) administrator for the City of Charlevoix in all transactions with the State Highway Commission as provided in Section 13 of the Act.

Supported by Alderman Fochtman.

Yeas: Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Fochtman, Plumm, Selph, Supernaw, and Timms.

Nays: None.

Absent: None.

Council discussed the need of an engineering study of the Electric System to determine the capacity of the line in the channel under the railroad bridge and of the entire system north of the Highway bridge. It was agreed to have Robert Wexstaff, temporary administrator, get proposals from Daverman Associates and John C. Linton Associates for the channel crossing as soon as possible and of the entire system in the near future.

Council discussed an engineering study to improve the present water system. It was felt that long range planning of the system is advisable.

Mr. Hansen reported on the Consumers meeting which he attended in Lansing.

Council discussed the hiring of an administrator. They felt that the attorney should complete the job description for the administrator's position. Each Council member should individually review the applications and choose 5 or 6 candidates; after which the Clerk should then tabulate their choices. The Committee as a whole will then meet after Council adjournment on Nov. 5, 1973 to review the tabulation.

The complaint of Charles Taylor regarding the porch overhang on the East side of the Sand Castle was discussed. Alderman Fochtman was directed to order a survey of the East line, where the side of the building lays in relation to the lot at 209 Park Avenue.

Alderman Fochtman reported complaints of trucks using Stover Road running West from the Ellsworth Road to the intersection of U.S. 31 Highway. The complaints were that the trucks were breaking up the road and he suggested that the road be posted "no trucks." He asked if the City intends to plat the Industrial Park. Alderman Fochtman was directed to ask Mary Feindt to make the survey of that area. He also questioned the necessity of printing the specifications when advertising for bids, when they can be obtained at the City Administrator's office.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $65,351.81 find them correct and recommend they be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Fochtman, Plumm, Selph, Supernaw, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Fochtman and supported by Alderwoman Wallace that the meeting adjourn.

A CALF WITH two heads and five legs was born Saturday night at the Neil Jones farm on the Marion Center-rd., but the little critter failed to survive the rigors of caesarian delivery. The calf's mother, Daisy, one of 42 cows in the Jones' herd, was reported in poor condition after the ordeal, which required an incision almost two feet long. Here the calf is examined by Shari (left) and Beth Jones, daughters of the Charlevoix County dairyman.

Oil Dealers Report Reduced Allocations

Top O' Michigan Urges Economy

A spot check of Charlevoix area fuel oil dealeres reveals that fuel supplies are tightening up.

And they agree that the situation will probably get worse before it gets better.

The fuel shortage also is affecting Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Co. which uses fuel oil along with purchased power to meet peak demands.

William Fochtman, co-owner of Charlevoix Oil Co. says he has been allocated only 86 percent of the fuel oil he had last year and the company is moving cautiously in signing up new customers.

He reports that the cost of fuel to the customer has jumped from 23.3 cents per gallon to 26.6 cents a gallon during the past two weeks.

The fuel shortage also is affecting the sale of larger automobiles, according to Fochtman, although sales of smaller cars are holding up. The company is Charlevoix's Chevrolet dealership.

Fochtman said the large car sales dropped 14 percent in the first 10 days of November, as more and more customers elected to buy smaller vehicles that are easier on gasoline consumption.

Jack Rader, proprietor of Petoskey Oil Co., predicts that the fuel shortage is going to become "very serious" and will continue two three or even four years.

"The supply of fuel oil is becoming awfully tight," he told the Courier Monday.

Rader said his company had been alloted 95 percent of its November, 1972, allocation.

And the weatherman isn't cooperating. Although October and November to date seem exceptionally mild, daily temperatures actually have been chillier than they were one year ago, according to statistics compiled by the company. (Petoskey's official weather figures, however, show an average daily range of from 63 to 47 degrees for October, 1973, compared to a range of from 54 to 38 for October, 1972.)

A spokesman for Charlevoix's Total dealership reports that so far the company "is doing all right", although no new customers are being accepted. The company's fuel oil allocation is the same for November as it was last year.

Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Co., headquartered in Boyne City, is urging its customers to conserve electricity until the crisis is over.

The problem is keeping customers supplied with electricity during periods of peak demand.

In the past, the company has been able to meet peak demand by buying power from other companies, usually Wolverine, to the south, or from fuel oil powered generators at Northern Michigan Electrical Cooperative, Inc., at Advance.

Now, however, Wolverine, which uses natural gas, has had its fuel supply curtailed and Northern Michigan Co-op has been allocated only 56 percent of the fuel oil it needs for November.

Westenbroek said Monday, however, that the U.S. Department of the Interior had approved an emergency allocation of fuel oil for the Co-op "which should put us in pretty fair shape until Dec. 15 -- if we can find the fuel oil."

He said Wolverine also has prospects of receiving more natural gas in the near future.

More interconnections with Consumers Power Co. lines also should help alleviate the situation, Westenbroek believes.

Westenbroek says the fuel shortage promises to be a "continuing problem." He is urging his customers to conserve electricity wherever and whenever possible.

"We would like to impress upon them the urgency of the situation, without panic," he said.

Even if the current fuel shortage is resolved, Westenbroek says his company will be faced with problems resulting from the rapid and unprecedented growth in northern Michigan, resulting in increased demand for electricity power.

Council OK's Increase In City Electric Rates

The City Council Monday night approved increases in electric power rates for residential, commercial and industrial customers.

The increases average about 15 percent, according to Mayor Edward P. Hansen, and will become effective Dec. 31.

City Clerk Ida Heise reports it will take at least 30 days to have the new rate structure programmed into the city's billing machine. The reprogramming will cost several hundred dollars.

Before the council action, Hanson suggested that the city might be able to come up with a less complicated rate structure which would be easier to program. However City Attorney Norm Ance suggested that the city stick with steps established by Consumers Power Co. for its direct-service customers.

The new rates are the first increase for city customers since 1962.

The basic rate, which includes 24 kilowatt hours of electricity for residential users, was increased from $1.40 to $1.90. The next 26 kwh will cost .0435 cents per kwh; the next 50 kwh will cost .025 cents per kwh; the next 200 kwh will cost .0235 cents per kwh; and the next 400 kwh will cost .0230 cents per kwh. All additional power will cost 2 cents per kwh. Special rates for hot water and home heating were eliminated.

Commercial and industrial rates were adjusted accordingly.

In other business Monday night, the council:

--Heard a report by Norm Ance on establishment of a Building Authority to construct downtown parking lots and structures. He reviewed a suggested charter for the proposed authority submitted by the Planning Commission.

--Agreed to purchase a front-end loader from the Miller Equipment Co. (Michigan Model 45B) for $19,661.65, including a $5,000 trade-in on the old loader. Alderman Jeannine Wallace cast the only dissenting vote.

--Agreed to purchase a 50 by 100 foot pole barn building from McRae Construction Co. for $13,500. The building will serve as an annex to the city garage on Stover-rd.

--Approved bonding in the amount of $163,000 for the May-st. sewer and authorized the mayor and clerk to ratify a contract with the low bidder on the project, G and T Construction Co. of Traverse City. Ance reported that G and T has asked to have its bid increased by $16,000 because of rising costs since the bids were opened July 30. However, he said the bids were good for 120 days and the additional premium need not be paid.

--Earmarked $110 for City Recreation Director Curtis Kipke to attend a conference of the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association.

Ferry Ramps Get Nod

The County Board of Commissioners last week agreed to go ahead with rebuilding of the ferry ramps at Ironton, after Donald Foster of Williams and Works reported that no money is available from either state or federal sources to construct a bridge across the narrows of the South Arm.

The project must now be approved by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The ramps have been badly damaged by high water and vehicles sometimes experience difficulty entering and leaving the ferry.

Chester Nietupski, who owns a grocery store, lunchroom and marina adjacent to the ramp at Ironton, has objected to the rebuilding plans, since he will end up with a four-foot elevated roadway in front of his place of business.

In other business, the board:

--Sent to committee a request from Northern Michigan Abstract and Title Co. to purchase records from the register of deeds office.

--Heard a report on Civil Defense Director Alice Tunison on the ramifications of the fuel shortage on CD activities.

--Named Dale Carpenter of Boyne Falls to the County Planning Commission and Norman Struder to the Veterans Affairs Council.

WORK IS progressing on Richard Donaldson's new laundromat on S. Bridge-st. A house which formerly stood in front of the building was moved last week to Hampton Village.

Tax Bills Will Be Mailed To Land Owners Dec. 1

City and township treasurers across the county are preparing to have their tax bills in the mail on Dec. 1.

The bills will rnage from 27.75 mills ($27.75 per $1,000 valuation) in the City of East Jordan to 36.35 mills ($36.35 per $1,000 valuation) in Charlevoix Township.

The township bill is the full shot for the year. East Jordan will pay an additional 19 mills next summer, making the city the most heavily taxed governmental unit in the county, 46.75 mills.

Winter taxes for the City of Charlevoix come to 32.65 mills, with an additional 12.75 mills due next summer, for a total of 45.40 mills.

At Boyne City, the total taxes come to 46.45 mills, 29.25 of which will be billed Dec. 1.

The bills include the county's 15 mill levy, including 4.30 mills for county operational expenses, one mill for each of the 15 townships, .20 of a mill for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and .26 mills for the Cheboygan-Otsego-Presque Isle Intermediate School District. Most school districts will receive 9.5 mills, except those affiliated with Petoskey which will receive 8 mills; Vanderbilt, 8.64 mills; and Ellsworth, 8.40 mills.

The bills also will include voted school millage, ranging from 8 mills in Peaine and St. James Townships for the operation of the Beaver Island School to 15.60 mills for those served by the Petoskey School District. Boyne Falls has voted 14 mills, Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan 12.5 mills and Ellsworth and Vanderbilt 12 mills.

Also included will be millage for debt retirement in various localities, as well as voted millage for specific purposes in nine of the 15 townships.

The tax bills are payable without penalty until Feb. 15.

Area Vets Invited To Meet on Benefits

Veterans Homestead tax relief, Vietnam bonuses, financial grants from the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund and other veterans' programs will be discussed at a meeting open to all area veterans Wednesday, Nov. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the courtroom at the county building.

The meeting will be sponsored by the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund and the local Trust Fund committee.

Speaker will be Steve Selmacy, regional supervisor of the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund.

Vets seeking information about these major benefit programs are urged to attend.

On the agenda is a report by Edward K. Shanahan, chairman of the County Trust Fund committee, on disbursements since the fund was started July 1, 1946. Shanahan says the fund has made grants totaling more than $52,000 to some 725 Charlevoix County vets and their dependents.

Wartime vets and their legal dependents are eligible for grants to meet emergency needs, temporary in nature, after the applicant has made every reasonable effort to resolve his own problems.

Other members of the committee are Robert J. Wasoski and Kenneth H. Richards. They all serve without pay.

Shanahan reports that the county presently has 2,244 veterans in residence, including 101 from World War I, 1,089 World War II 377 Korean War, 265 post Korean War and 412 veterans of the Vietnam War.

On the state level, the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund is the official agency for implementing and coordinating all veterans' benefits, including the war orphans Educational Benefits Fund. During the last fiscal year, $400,000 was spent to assist 930 eligible students.

The organization also has a revolving student loan fund. More than 300 loans exceeding $64,000 were approved during the last fiscal year.

In the 27 years since the fund was established, more than 334,000 applications for grants have been approved, totaling $20 million.

There will be no school Thursday and Friday, because of the Thanksgiving Day recess.

Classes resume Monday, Nov. 26. There will be no school Thursday, Nov. 29, the day of parent-teacher conferences throughout the school system.

Unity Thanksgiving Service Scheduled

A Thanksgiving Unity Service has been scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Church of the Nazarene on Waller-rd., just off U.S. 31 North.

Where to Go & What to Do

Food, Fun Await At GG

LOCATED on Belvedere ave. in Charlevoix, Grey Gables is owned by Mr. and Mrs. David Phillips and Mrs. Mickey Pierce.

(This is the first in a series of articles on "Where to Go and What to Do" in the Charlevoix area prepared by Cheryl Galley, Courier advertising manager.)

Being relatively new in the Charlevoix area, it has been very interesting meeting the "Charlevoixans".

Interesting also is discovering the culinary treats in this city.

Many evenings have started out in Harbor Springs or Petoskey with a few cocktails with friends, but invariably we get hunger pangs about 11:30 p.m. and don't hesitate going to the Grey Gables for a luscious prime beef sandwich or snack tray prepared by Dave Phillips. Gale Phillips is always there to greet us and it isn't much of a surprise to Gale if my companions and I ask for a private TV room while we sample these lovely morsels.

One evening in the kitchen of GG I rapped with Dave about his ideas of the Inn and community interests, and all those lovely idealisms people like to hold themselves to.

I was delightfully surprised to find that the Phillips' as well as Al Breeze and the rest of the crew at GG really are active and interested in this community.

The Grey Gables is forever having parties and recently Dave prepared two gourmet dinners for the intermediate French classes so that they might be able to sample French cuisine.

Hokus Pokus night to celebrate Holloween entails complete decorations from stem to stern - which included a blond playboy bunny named "Breezy".

"Breezy", Al Breeze, has been the exclusive entertainer at the Gables for the past ten years. Saturday, Nov. 3, marked his anniversary. Al has contributed such services as having his golden locks sold to raise money for the local hospital. He also was involved in planting the "Yellow ribboned" trees in Charlevoix.

To further personify their philosophy, Grey Gables has catered several Chamber of Commerce dinner dances at the Belvedere Casino and, as a finale to summer holds "A Party for all Seasons."

Presently, a gourmet "Thank Goodness it's Friday" luncheon is prepared by Dave so that at the end of the week you can relax from noon until 2 p.m. with your friends and sample some of the finest foods in the area.

Ironton Kids Fix Feast For Friends

Students at the Ironton Trainable School held a Thanksgiving dinner for their friends Tuesday, Nov. 20.

The meal was prepared by the youngsters, with the assistance of their teacher and aides.

On the menu was turkey and dressing, candied sweet potatoes, sweet and sour relish, cranberry sauce, green beans, relish tray, pumpkin custard, hot breads, coffee, milk, tea, mints and nuts.

Ellsworth Students Visit Antrim Jail

By Anne Osterbaan

Jack Gebott's teen and law class visited the Antrim County jail in Bellaire Tuesday.

Ken Rudolph, Antrim County juvenile officer, had a question and answer session at the school Friday.

The great American War Class is sponsoring the film "All Quiet on the Western Front" which concerns World War I for grades 7-12 on Nov. 21 at 1:30 p.m.

Supt. Robert Gaunt reports that at the school board meeting held Monday, Nov. 12, the fuel energy crisis was discussed. With the possible shortage of fuel oil, the option of having a longer Christmas vacation was discussed, with lost time made up at the end of the school year when the weather is warm.

The school board voted to engage Mr. Mike Mapes, A.I.A. as its project architect for the possible school addition. This construction project will be presented to the voters in late winter or early spring. The school board feels it has gathered all information and done all the survey work that is needed in order to properly inform the architect of its needs, to design a building for our situation and economy.

Scouts Will Sell Popcorn

Boy Scouts in Troop 11 will conduct their fourth annual Pop Corn Sale Monday, Nov. 26 from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

The Scouts will be divided into three or four teams to canvass the city house to house.

The boys will sell four-pound bags of popcorn for $1 or one three-quarter pound bags for 50 cents.

Scoutmaster Val Avery says anyone wishing to order popcorn in advance should telephone 547-9868, leave their name and address and quantity of popcorn desired.

Money raised in the sale will help finance Scout projects.

Dry Storage Needed For Sickroom Items

The Charlevoix County Easter Seal Society is seeking storage for the many pieces of hospital and sickroom equipment it has on hand for loan to those in need of such equipment.

"We have been able to acquire such things as hospital beds and mattresses, wheel chairs, walkers and smaller pieces of equipment, many of which are out on loan at this time" Mrs. Arthur Thompson of East Jordan, president of the Society, said.

She went on to say that there was a serious need for a place to store the equipment when it is not in use.

"This equipment is expensive so it is necessary to find a clean, dry place where it can be stored without collecting moisture. The site of the storage area is not important. It can be in Boyne City, Charlevoix or East Jordan," Mrs. Thompson added.

If you have such a place or know of such a place please call Mrs. Thompson in East Jordan, Mrs. William Lusk in Charlevoix or write to P.O. 482 in East Jordan, 49727

Mrs. Ross Alexander

Richard Russell has been transferred from Little Traverse Hospital to Munson Hospital in Traverse City for medical treatment.

Mrs. Audrey Russell is also in Traverse City near him. They will appreciate hearing from their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Russell of Bay City were guests of Mrs. Minnie Meyers Wednesday, having come to attend funeral services for their friend of many years, Mrs. Pauline Canfield.

We have received word of the death of Mr. Fred (Ted) England in Lansing. Funeral was at the Lansing First Presbyterian Church last Friday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. England spent their summers in their cottage near Ironton and attended our community church. The family has the sincere sympathy of their many local and summer friends.

Even with the fuel oil shortage, we are better off than we used to be, burning wood and coal and carrying out ashes. Coal was dirty to handle and it always had our homes smoked up when spring arrived. The fuel oil shortage will bring back many memories to oldsters who remember sitting around the stove to avoid the chills and going to bed in unheated rooms. So keep your chins up. Uncle Sam will survive.

To wish you all the joys and blessings of a happy Thanksgiving!

Energy Crisis a Good Time to Economize

It looks as though it will be some time before Michigan knows the extent of it's fuel and power shortage this winter.

Hopefully, we won't find out until spring.

At present, no one in authority seems to know how much fuel we have on hand or where it's located.

We're in about the same predicament nationally, with some knowledgeable people calling for gasoline rationing while others, just as knowledgeable, claiming it won't be necessary.

Then there are the skeptics who insist the "energy crisis" is just another Nixon Administration smokescreen to divert attention from Watergate and attendant problems.

The two chief results to date from the energy scare are passage of the Alaskan pipeline bill by Congress, over the broken and bleeding bodies of environmentalists, and a discrediting of environmentalists generally for their efforts to clean up the air over America.

New exhaust emission standards proposed by environmentalists increase gasoline consumption in automobiles by something like 13 percent.

And some power plants which have switched from coal to fuel oil, which burns cleaner, have been given permission to switch back to coal, with its noxious smoke and fumes.

Whether real, imaginary or manufactured, the so-called energy crisis is a good time for many of us to effect economics in our homes and businesses that might have seemed penny-ante heretofore.

Insist that your kids turn off electric lights they don't need, not to save daddy's pennies but to help their country in time of need.

Fix leaky faucets, particularly hot water faucets. A faucet dripping at the rate of one drop per second will waste something like 1,300 gallons of water a year. Water isn't cheap, and hot water is downright expensive.

Close off rooms you don't use and shut off the heat.

Install storm windows to cut down on drafts.

Check your insulation in the attic. If you have less than six inches, you're wasting heat.

Keep your fireplace damper closed when the fireplace is not in use. It is surprising how much warm air can be drawn out of a house via the fireplace chimney.

Pull shades and draw curtains at night to keep out the cold.

Make sure you have enough humidity in the house. Damp air holds heat better than dry air.

Lower your thermostat. If you can stand your house five degrees cooler than you had it last winter, you can expect fuel savings of from 15 to 20 percent.

All in all, the fuel crisis, real, imaginary or manufactured, might prove a boon to Americans who are accustomed to wasting energy in so many ways.

Waiting at the Depot

By JIM FITZGERALD

Kissing her good-bye wouldn't have been the same. And where would the high school band have stood as it played me off to war?

I'm talking about romance in the railroad depot.

The Grand Trunk line is going to restore passenger service from my old hometown, westward to Chicago. But there is a problem with the ancient depot in Port Huron. It is no longer usable.

"We're looking at the possiblity of using a mobile office trailer or a prefab-type of building as a station," a state official said.

That's terrible.

Some of my greatest memories are tied to that old Grand Trunk depot. . .

Dad was a traveling salesman. Mother took us kids to the depot to meet his train. It was a swell time. There was an unspoken agreement that Mother would wait until we got home before she squealed to Dad about how many times I let the furnace go out, or forgot to haul the ashes out to the curb (I was two years old, but Mother had a whip). The depot was for enjoying.

I remember the huge window sills. A kid could stretch out full and look down the track for his dad's train. There was a magnificent, head-high urinal in the john. I could have taken a shower in it. The foor was palace-marble, the ceiling was higher than a mountain, and voices echoed like in a Ken Maynard canyon.

And there was that great lunchroom where the sandwiches were already made and wrapped in wax paper. I always wanted one of those sandwiches but Mother said I'd spoil my dinner (gruel, served in an old tomato can on my cot next to the furnace).

Mostly I remember when Dad's train screeched to a stop. I would run up and down the platform, trying to spy him through a window. Which car was he on? Which kid would see him first? There he is! And I got a hug and a quick rub against his wiskers. Mother and my sisters got big kisses on the mouth. Then, on the way through the depot, Dad might muss my hair and ask me something about the Detroit Tigers. It was a real nifty time.

In later years, the old depot was my portal to World War II and back. Several furloughs began and ended there; oh joy, oh misery. Her name was Noreen and the kisses were sweet but she married another. Glenn Miller and Frank Sinatra put it to music.

There are more memories. I also used the depot to go to college, and to go to my first newspaper job. But enough nostalgia. If you're over 40, you get the point. . .

Some things change and some don't. Dad died but I still have Mother to kid about the gruel. I'm growing old, but there is still a little boy inside of me. He is the part of me that remembers echoes in the depot and scratchy wiskers and Dad asking if Hank Greenberg hit a home run yesterday.

I'm glad that little boy didn't have to welcome his father home in a mobile office trailer, for gosh sakes.

Capital Punishment

By BOB CLOCK

The Courier has caught considerable flak since a recent editorial condemning a petition drive afoot in the state to reinstate capital punishment for murderers. The editorial insisted that there must be a better way to deal with such offenders, rather than assault the public conscience with periodic executions.

In last week's Courier we printed a letter from Robert L. Olson pointing out that, despite Christ's compassion, there is plenty of evidence in the Bible supporting capital punishment, most of it from the Old Testament.

Later we were asked to prove our statement that capital punishment has never proved a serious deterrent to major crimes. Although we don't have such statistics at our fingertips, we recall that California, which had capital punishment until fairly recently, also suffered the indignity of having one of the highest crime rates in the country.

One of our challengers insists that capital punishment, by its very nature, has to be a deterrent to the commission of other similar crimes. He pointed to the fact that one of the two Detroit policemen killed recently was gunned down by a man who already had served time for murder.

"If he had been executed, he couldn't have committed the same crime again," he pointed out quite logically, and I had to agree.

At present I am trying to round up some figures on how many murders, rapes and other serious crimes are committed by persons who already have been convicted of similar crimes, served time and were released from prison.

There was a time when society considered that mandatory life sentences for such offenders would take care of the problem. But the mandatory life sentence is a thing of the past.

Today a "life" sentence is served is 20 years, more often less, as parole boards attempt to prove that up-to-the-minute rehabilitation programs are working. Unfortunately, the success rate isn't what we could hope for.

None-the-less, I am opposed to capital punishment. In 1846, the Michigan Legislature abolished the death penalty for murder, making Michigan one of the more "enlightened" states in that far off day and age.

To return to capital punishment now would be tantamount to admitting that we have been wrong all these years. And I don't think we have been.

Perhaps it is our parole system that needs revamping. Perhaps when a person is sentenced to "life in prison" it should mean just that. Life. Not 20 years, or 15, or 10 or six. Life.

In our book, such a sentence, with years of imprisonment stretching ahead like a woeful eternity, would be a far greater deterrent to serious crime than even capital punishment.

Perhaps we should not release killers and rapists upon society until they have undergone frontal lobotomies, which tame the aggressions but leave the person physically able to function as a member of society.

As much as I sympathize with State Rep. Kirby Holmes and others who are attempting the have capital punishment placed on the Michigan ballot next November (they need 300,000 petitioners), I believe that there must be a better way to cope with severe social misfits.

It is tragic that the City of Detroit should have eight murders within 12 hours, as it did one weekend recently, boosting the city's murder rate to a new all-time record. But I don't think capital punishment would make one particle of difference, except in those cases where the murder had committed the same crime before.

There has to be a better way. Let's find it.

Why Mention Dale's Link With JBS?

Mr. Clock,

I have just concluded reading the Nov. 14 issue and the letter from Mr. Malcolm W. Dale. Subsequent to the letter there was an editor's note informing us to Mr. Dale's membership in the John Birch Society. My recollection is that you have done this before. This did not appear to me to be quite proper. After discussing the issue with several friends I found they agreed. First let me say I am not a member and do not wish to be one in the JBS, but the man evidently had a viewpoint he wished to present and while he did not deem it necessary to mention his membership, you did!

Why, then, Mr. Clock, do you not qualify all your readers' letters that are printed as to: Are they Republican or Democrat, black or white, Catholic or Jew, etc. I thought the only qualification that was needed was that he or she be a concerned reader.

I must admit I am not informed as to an editor's rights in these matters, but it appeared to me that this was a subtle way of discrediting that reader's letter to a portion of your audience who do not agree with the JBS.

Mr. Dale's point was his idea. Whether he has anything to do with the JBS or any other group was not relevant because he did not deem it necessary to include. I would appreciate a response. Thank you for your time.

Timothy M. Doan

(Editor's Note: Several times in the past we have published letters from Mr. Dale without mentioning the fact that he is a member of the John Birch Society. However, we have encountered criticism for not doing so from several quarters because Mr. Dale is a paid spokesman for the John Birch Society, which is something quite apart from merely being Republican or Democrat, white or black, Catholic or Jew.

(Perhaps a wiser course would be to run Mr. Dale's letters as paid advertisements or to relegate them to File 13. However, we believe the conservative right is deserving of a voice in American politics, as are all segments of our very segmented society. To ignore the viewpoint of the extreme right — or of any group — is simply out of the question.

(We do believe, however, that it would be unfair to our readers not to point out Mr. Dale's role in the JBS in view of his position with the organization. To his credit, Mr. Dale makes no effort to conceal his allegiance to the JBS, although he sometimes neglects to mention the fact in his correspondence.

(Mr. Dale is intelligent, well-spoken, well-read and an excellent writer. We are confident that many readers give more credence to his views because of the identification.)

COMMON COUNCIL

COUNCIL MINUTES

NOVEMBER 5, 1973
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Timms, Fochtman, Plumm, and Selph. Absent: Alderman Supernaw and Alderwoman Wallace.

The minutes of the October 22, 1973 meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Enter Alderman Supernaw.

The entire Special Assessment Board and about fifteen property owners were present for the May Street Sanitary Sewer Public Hearing.

The privilege fee of $200 and the monthly charges for the collection and treatment of wastewater were discussed, but no determination was made. Also the time limit as to when it would be mandatory to hook up to the sewer was discussed. This raised the question as to health regulations and Mr. Wexstatt, Temporary Administrator was requested to check with the District Health Department regarding regulations before the next regular meeting. It was determined that there were no objections as to the May Street Sewer Project. The property owners present registered no objection to spreading the assessment over a ten year period.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Selph.

Bids on the pole barn were discussed and put back into Committee for further consideration.

John Campbell of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission presented the Articles of Incorporation of the Charlevoix Parking Authority to the Council. He asked that the Mayor, Council and City Attorney study it and that it be discussed at the next regular meeting.

Mr. Wexstaff was instructed to write to John Holland, of McNamee, Porter and Seeley asking that the City be updated on what has transpired and the changes that have been necessary.

Alderman Fochtman asked the City Attorney what progress is being made on the following Ordinances: Administrator, Bicycle, Cemetery, Sewer and Recreational Director. Mr. Ance replied that he is working on them. Alderman Fochtman also suggested that a City policy should be established regarding the hiring and firing of supervisory personnel, not covered by the union contract. He was asked to work out a suggested policy and present it to Council.

Alderman Selph asked what is being done to amend the Ordinance on electric rates. The Committee will meet Nov. 12, 1973, for further study.

Alderman Plumm suggested that the road from Lake Michigan at the Hospital create a real hazard at the intersection with the road leading into the hospital. Mr. Wexstaff was asked to bring this to the attention of the township, since it is within their territory.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $72,640.08 find them correct and recommend they be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Selph that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. The Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Resort Owners Optimistic Despite Gas Ban

Ski resort operators, motel owners and realtors agree generally that the ban on Sunday gasoline sales which starts at 9 p.m. Dec. 1, will have an adverse effect on the northern Michigan economy.

But no one is sure how bad it will be or when it will end.

If the ban on Sunday gasoline sales continues on into the spring and summer, the effects could be devastating.

However, there are some bright spots.

Julius Gilbert, owner of the Lodge Motel in Charlevoix, reports that advance reservations are up substantially from other years. Most of the groups will travel on chartered buses, which should have no trouble making the return trip to the metropolitan areas without refilling on Sunday.

Gilbert feels that people who want to get away will find a way to do it.

"People don't let very much interfere with their pleasure," he observed.

He figures that even with a 10 to 20 percent decrease in travel, the Lodge will still be full during the prime seasons.

"We just won't have to turn away so many people," he said.

Richard Aull, co-owner of the Weathervane Inn, also is fairly optimistic.

He reports that more and more guests have been staying over Sunday nights, returning to their homes downstate Monday morning.

Furthermore, a large percentage of the Weathervane's winter guests arrive on chartered buses.

"The fellow this is going to hurt most is the skier who works five days a week and has to be back on the job Monday morning," Aull said.

He believes that the Sunday gasoline moratorium will affect Petoskey to a greater degree than Charlevoix.

Donald Fuller, manager of Colwell Realty in Chorlevoix, said his general reaction to President Nixon's energy crisis message Sunday night was "one of concern."

He said the ban on Sunday gasoline sales certainly will affect the number of persons visiting northern Michigan from downstate metropolitan areas.

The shortage of fuel oil also could have an adverse effect on the sale of "second homes" in the Charlevoix area.

"There is no question that the energy crisis will affect ouir business," he said. "I would be naive to believe anything else."

However, Fuller hopes that any decline in the sale of "second homes" will be offset by the number of persons moving to northern Michigan as permanent, full-time residents.

He said the emphasis in real estate sales is shifting from the fellow who wants a "little ski chalet up north" to customers who intend to make their permanent homes in the northern part of the state.

At Boyne Mountain, proprietor Everett Kircher and his aides held a crash meeting on the gasoline situation Monday morning following the President's address. They left the meeting considerably more optimistic than they entered it.

Kircher says his skiing complex, which includes Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands, Thunder Mountain and Walloon Hills, could experience a fairly decent winter, even with the ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

For one thing, Boyne will offer a seven-day ski week, instead of five, at a reduced price. Skiers coming from a distance will be urged to leave for home on Sunday on a full tank of gas, drive until they run out and spend the night in a motel with their savings on the special package.

"They should be able to arrive at 10, 11 or 12 o'clock Monday and still have half a day's skiing left," Kircher said.

The resort also is offering a four-day package which will eliminate Sunday driving.

Kircher says the biggest blow will be the loss of out-of-state dollars because of the fuel crunch. He is confident northern Michigan resorts will still receive their share of in-state dollars.

He also feels that the ban on Sunday driving is preferable to outright gasoline rationing, which could prove disasterous.

What bothers Kircher most is the question of whether his weekend customers will be able to buy enough gasoline in the area Saturday to get back home. He plans to conduct a survey of area gasoline station operators this week to find out.

He also anticipates more skiers staying over Sunday night, "something we've always hoped for." Furthermore, he hopes that if any businesses go over to a four-day work week during the crisis that they will pick Monday as their day off.

All in all, Kircher says he is more optimistic than he was a week ago before the President clarified the fuel situation.

"Now we know where we stand," he said.

Doris Sarns, owner of Nub's Nob ski resort near Harbor Springs, said she is "very concerned" by the ban on Sunday gasoline sales.

"But we're carrying on, hoping people can get here somehow," she said.

While she was being interviewed by telephone by the Courier Monday morning, Mrs. Sarns' secretary arrived at the office after spending the weekend in Detroit. She reported that she made the trip from Detroit in her Chrysler, using less than a full tank of gasoline.

Mrs. Sarns said the sale of season tickets among local people has been good. However, 100 percent of her houseguests on weekends and five-day ski weeks come from outside the area.

She is particularly concerned about what a bad season will do to her help. The resort employs from 80 to 85 workers on weekends and from 65 to 70 on weekdays.

She said the ban on Sunday gasoline sales "is just another obstacle for ski area operators."

Most of the people interviewed express the fear that the President's initial steps to meet the energy crisis are only the beginning. They are afraid that "blue laws" limiting recreotional activities and an outright ban on the use of gasoline for pleasure boats, snowmobiles and other recreational type vehicles may be in the offing.

School Weighs Steps To Conserve Gasoline

A NEW BOAT, the South Shore, has been purchased by the Beaver Island Boat Co. for the Charlevoix-St. James run. The South Shore formerly served island communities in Lake Erie. The 28-year-old vessel is smaller and slower than the Beaver Islander, but she is more economical to operate.

Daughter of St. Pat Joins Beaver Isle Boat Fleet

Launched at Cleveland, Ohio, on St. Patrick's Day, 1945, the motor launch South Shore was destined one day to serve the Irish population on Beaver Island, America's Emerald Isle.

And that day has arrived.

The boat, which is 60 feet long and has a 22-foot beam, has been purchased by the Beaver Island Boat Co., according to company president Fred Annand of East Lansing.

The vessel formerly plied the waters of Lake Erie, serving Port Clinton, Put-in-Bay island, Point Pelee, Ont., and Catawba island.

Annand and his crew picked up the boat Nov. 20 at Alpena and brought her to Beaver Island where she presently is berthed on the south side of the Beaver Islander dock at St. James.

Annand says the boat will go into service next April for sure, although it may make a few runs between Charlevoix and the island this fall.

The South Shore formerly carried 230 passengers, but the passenger capacity is being reduced to 130 passengers for the Charlevoix-Beaver Island runs.

She also will carry from six to eight automobiles and because of a unique breach between the pilot house and the forward deck she will be able to transport mobile homes and other vehicles requiring high overhead clearance.

Annand says the South Shore's deep rounded hull will provide a smoother ride than the Beaver Islander through northern Lake Michigan's choppy seas.

The heavy hull also gives the South Shore ice-breaking capacity that is lacking in the Beaver Islander.

The South Shore is a little slower than the Beaver Islander. The trip from Charlevoix to St. James will take between two hours and 45 or 50 minutes, compared to two hours and 15 minutes for the Beaver Islander.

However, the 30-foot smaller boat is easy on fuel. She burns only one gallon of

Mink Coat Stolen from The Argonne

Sheriff's deputies and Region 10 detectives are investigating the theft of a $600 mink coat from the Argonne Supper Club Saturday night.

Mrs. Frank Gengle, a former Charlevoix resident now living in Warren, said she left her new coat in the coat rack when she entered the restaurant at 8 p.m. When she left two hours later the coat was gone.

The coat should be easy to identify. It consisted of brown, beige, black and white mink "diamonds" with leather strips between them.

The three-quarter coat had a brown lining, with the embroidered initials RMG.

Spectator Buses May Have to Go

School Business Manager Robert Bogart told the Board of Education Monday night that the school district has been assured of receiving the same amount of gasoline it did last year to operate the district's fleet of school buses.

The only hitch is that two new bus routes have been added this year and, all things being equal, the district could end up with a deficit of some 4,500 gallons unless additional supplies are forthcoming.

The board is faced with the moral question of cutting back on transportation, probably the elimination of spectator buses to out-of-town sporting events, or trying to find additional sources of supply.

Other suggested fuel economy measures would be to limit the number of stops per mile (each stop and start consumes additional fuel) or to shorten routes and ask youngsters to walk further to their bus stops.

The board tabled the question until more information is available on the gasoline situation.

In other business, the board:

–Heard a report by Supt. James McKimmy on a proposed after-hours recreational and athletic program weekdays and Saturdays, including ping pong, volleyball, tumbling, gymnastics and skiing. Adult supervisors will be needed and the jobs will be posted.

–Agreed to retain the architectural planning firm of Manson, Jackson and Kane for the time being to assist the proposed Citizens Study Committee. Board Member Max Novak was against the move, claiming the firm came up with plans for exponsion of the high school last year when the real emphasis should have been on the Middle School.

–Approved the appointment of Don Carey as head football coach, assisted by Bruce Morgan, Dave Moyer, Norman Probert and Halbert Evans; Dennis Carr as cross country coach and Barry Anderson as golf coach.

–Heard a report on computerizing school finances by Robert Bogart. Bogart says it now takes 2½ days to prepare the school payroll, when the same job could be performed in one-half day by computer. He said going over to computerized system would forestall the hiring of additional employees for the present.

–Discussed the offering of building trades skills to high school students before they tackle the job of building a house. Students will start with the construction of small storage sheds to learn the basics.

--Heard a report by McKimmy that a recent meeting of the Indian Parent Advisory Committee revealed that 33 youngsters of Indian origin are attending Charlevoix schools. Under a federal program, funds are available for the hiring of a home-school liaison officer to assist Indian children and their parents cope with school-related problems.

RETIREMENT CEREMONIES for Lt. Cmdr. Donald Luedke, former commanding officer of Coast Guard Group Charlevoix, will be held at 10 a.m. Friday aboard the CG Cutter Sundew. Luedke and his wife, Nell, have returned to Charlevoix to make their home.

CONNIE SHORES, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Shores, shot this 185 pound eight-point buck shortly after noon Thanksgiving Day. Connie was hunting in the Barnard area. She shot her first buck two years ago.

School Study Committee Holds 1st Meet Monday

A Citizens Study Committee to investigate short and long-range school needs will hold its first meeting Monday, Dec. 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the Elementory School on Division-st., according to School Superintendent James McKimmy.

Approximately 70 residents of the Charlevoix School District have been invited to join the committee on the invitation of McKimmy and the Board of Education.

A steering committee coordinating the work of the larger group held its first meeting Nov. 25 at the Weathervane.

The Study Committee will be charged with the responsibility of reviewing all facets of the school program, including curriculum, finances and facilities, and to come up with specific recommendations by April 16, 1974.

The group will have six major committees studying all phases of school operotion, including grades K-4, 5 through 8 and 9 through 12; finances, non-academic services and buildings.

It is anticipated that each of the subcommittees will have a representative sit-in on meetings of the finance committee. The finance committee also will be represented at meetings of the other groups, supplying information on costs of present programs and program suggestions.

"The Citizens Study Committee will make a very valuable contribution to the local board of education as the local board attempts to supply a program and facilities which reflect the ideas and interests of the Charlevoix community," according to the first edition of the Charlevoix Public Schools "Newsletter."

Padded Mail Bags Now Available

Charlevoix Post Office has placed padded mailing bags on sale as an added convenience to cutomers, Postmaster Rex Davis reports.

The mailing bags are being sold in three convenient sizes by window clerks. The bag sizes are 6 by 10, 10½ by 16, and 14 by 20 inches and are priced at 20, 30 and 40 cents, respectively.

These padded bags are an ideal container for mailing gifts, books, candy, clothing and other similar size items.

Postmaster Davis said, "The Postal Service has successfully experimented in the sale of these mailing bags during the past year at selected post offices. As a result of increasing demands for this container, all first class post offices in the Central Region will now have this convenience item available to customers."

The primary objective of the bag is to provide postal customers with a convenient method of mailing and to assist the U.S. Postal Service in its continuing efforts to reduce parcel damage and insure delivery of parcels in good condition, Postmaster Davis said.

Mrs. Wieland Hails Success Of SMV Bumper Stickers

"Slow moving vehicle emblems can be real life-savers," according to Mrs. Richard Wieland of Charlevoix, chairman of the Michigan Farm Bureau Women, "and we have the statistics to prove it."

The Antrim County farm wife indicated that during the first three years after the SMV law went into effect, the number of accidents involving slow moving vehicles and high speed vehicles on Michigan's highways and roads were cut in half. The women of the state's largest farm organization were instrumental in getting the legislation passed in 1967 and followed through by selling thousands of the emblems to their farmer-members.

The bright orange, reflective, triangular emblem was designed to alert drivers well in advance that they were approaching vehicles which were traveling at 25 miles per hour or less. Mrs. Wieland warns that the SMV emblems can only be effective if properly displayed on all slow-moving vehicles.

"All farmers, and others who use slow moving vehicles, should make sure that the reflective materials of the SMV emblems are bright enough to be protective. If they have had them for a number of years, it may be time to replace the centers," she said.

She also urged farmers and others not to mount the emblems on vehicles which travel more than 25 miles per hour. If a trailer is being hauled by a pick-up rather than a tractor, for example, the SMV emblem should be removed. If motorists become accustomed to seeing the SMV emblems on vehicles traveling at normal speed, she said, the emblem will lose its purpose and value.

Club Members Study Table Place Settings

Members of the Garden Club held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Wilma Stabnick, with Mrs. Irene Graham as co-hostess.

A most interesting report was given by Mrs. Mildred Oehs on the annual migration of birds.

Mrs. Irene Graham reported from the finance committee on the sale of nature place mats and cards.

Mrs. Nancy Wood has linen 1974 calendars which would make nice holiday gifts.

Workshop for the holidays will be planned and called by Mrs. Edith Close.

The lesson was Table Settings. Ethelyn Edwards used a floral arrangement with dark red mums, dried brown grass and red and green grapes. She used white placemats with matching napkins and white china, with a deep pink flower border.

Mrs. June Couse used large green glass candlesticks filled with dried brown grass, and cultivated bittersweet berries, with orange placemats and napkins. Modern matching dinnerware completed the setting.

Mrs. Eleanor Freedman used a flat piece of bleached driftwood with a small massed arrangement of dried "Hills of Snow" hydrangeas, picked in the green stage, and three mahogany candle sticks with deep yellow candles. Decorative metal flowers provided an unusual accent.

She used yellow placemats and napkins and pewter dishes with yellow dessert plates.

Attractive and interesting table settings can make any meal more appetizing.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, Dec. 11, at the home of Mrs. Dale Glass, 203 Pleasant-st., with Mrs. John Stebe as co-hostess. Mrs. Charles Berg will have the lesson on Merican Christmas Customs.

State Pledges Support For Island Physician

The Michigan Department of Public Health has scotched rumors that the state is withdrawing its financial support of the Beaver Island doctor.

Unlike other physicians in Michigan, the island medic receives a stipened from the state to compensate for a paucity of patients on the sparsely populated northern Lake Michigan Island.

However, rumors are going around that the support is about to stop.

"I would like to assure the residents of the Island that there is absolutely no truth in the rumors which apparently are going around," said Dr. Robert S. Libke, director of District Health Department No. 3. "Dr. John L. Isbister, chief of the Bureau of Community Health, has stated that there are no plans for changes in the arrangement as far as the Beaver Island physician is concerned."

Dr. Libke said a representative of the state Health Department would visit the Island early in 1974 to discuss ways in which the department can assist residents in solving some of the problems concerning the health clinic on the Island.

Library Notes

It is not too soon to remind our patrons of our collection of records available for the Christmas holidays.

In addition to the all-time favorites for children, there is a varied assortment of music for family listening including, of course, "The Messiah," special selections sung by the Robert Shaw Chorale, the John Gary Christmas Album, Christmas with the Norman Luboff Choir, Perry Como with Christmas music, the Kate Smith Christmas Album and Jim Reeves singing the "Twelve Songs of Christmas."

There is an especially delightful album featuring the "Living Strings" and their arrangement of "The Little Drummer Boy" and another record featuring their version of "White Christmas."

To help keep your home filled with music during the holidays season, we suggest The Rochester Male Chorus in a medlay of all-time favorites including "Almighty God of our Fathers," "Ride the Chariot, I Believe," and "Climb Every Mountain. The Liebeslieder Waltzes by Brahms is delightful any time of year but especially so during the festive Christmas and New Year season.

The Longines Symphonette has a treasury of the world's most honored musical favorites. There are twelve records in a beautifully-boxed set. The music is conducted by the distinguished American conductor Mishel Piastro.

During the holiday vacation, the young fry will enjoy the music from Mary Poppins and a special collection of juvenile records called "Let's Pretend" featuring the best-loved adventures children everywhere adore. There is Alice in Wonderland, Jack and the Beanstalk, Sleeping Beauty, Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp and a dozen others.

Because the Christmas season is so short, it will be necessary to limit the special selections so that as many as possible can enjoy them.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Evans Georgl of Brussels, Belgium, announce the engagement of their daughter, Evan Ailene Georgl, to Edward Wyatt Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wyatt Bell of Holt, Mich. The wedding will be held in December.

Busy Season Shapes Up For High School Athletes

By Pam Fochtman

As do seasons change, so do Charlevoix High Schools activities.

Football has left us with a great season to remember, Girls Basketball has performed an outstanding job, Junior Varsity Football will be moving up to the 1974 Varsity position and Cross Country and Golf have long passed by.

An introduction into our pre-winter activities are: Boys Basketball, Wrestling, and Ski Team.

Varsity Basketball has the largest group in four years. Twenty-one boys from C.H.S. are representing our school. The Seniors include: Jerry Skippergosh, Steve McClellan, Brian VanLoo, Clay Jones, Randy Faust, Gary Novotny, Jim Potter, Ed Buday, Gerry Sandahl, and Randy Smith. The Juniors are: Frank Muma, Kevin Martin, Mike Streeter, Jim Sundberg, Dan Greene, Kevin Stokes, Chuck Faust, Bob Sandahl, Jim Donaldson, Dave Martinchek, Gene Drost, and Jim Pettis.

The Varsity Basketball is coached by Barry Anderson. He is an outstanding coach, as he allows the boys a sufficient amount of freedom to improve their individual skills. He drives the boys towards improvement, determination, and spirit. Anderson is respected by the boys as both a Varsity Basketball and Golf coach. The coach and boys hold practices during the week, in preparation for their games held each Friday night, at 8:00 p.m.

Stepping down from Varsity we come to the Junior Varsity Rayders, coached by Mr. Don Carey. These hard working boys include: Bob Alger, Jim Boss, Casey Culbertson, Ed Donaldson, John Greene, Mark Hosmer, Kirk Lieberman, Steve Michael, Ed Russell, Mike Skippergosh, Erik Sloan, and Steve Otmanowski.

Carey is respected by the Rayders for his drilling skills not only in Basketball but also Varsity Football. He expects from his boys honesty and determination when playing a game.

The opening of the 1973 Basketball season is November 30, against the Grayling Vikings. The game, which is to be held here at C.H.S. begins at 6:30 p.m. with the Junior Varsity. At 8 p.m. the Varsity began their first opening game of 1973.

Wrestling, which was recently introduced into Charlevoix by Mr. Norm Probert is a rather extraordinary activity. Probert, who currently teaches health and gym classes, works with his boys through the week in preparation for their meets. This sport involves concentration, eagerness, and strength.

Their first meet is to be held Thursday, Nov. 29, at 8:30 p.m. They will be host to the Grayling Vikings.

Another sport which has gotten underway is the 1973-74 Charlevoix High Ski Team. Their days have been filled with calesentics, running up the hill of Mt. McSauba, sore muscles, and exhaustion. The practices which are held through the week will prepare our Ski Team members for the upcoming ski season competition, to begin Wednesday, January 2, at Thunder Mt. They will be racing against Boyne City and Grayling.

The two coaches, Ms. Karen Hinds and Mr. William Murray are returning from last season. The members include: Ginny Eby, Camille Malpell, Sue Winchester, Faith Malpeli, Gretchen Olsen, Sandy Hufford, and terri Morris. These girls are coached by Ms. Hinds.

Del Wood, Jeff Bergman, Ted Lass, Marc Malpeli, Mark Cockfield, Chris Begrow, Scott Egler, Lee Begrow, Don Davison, Tim Moerland, Jack Tillen, Dan Engstrom, John Cinnamon, and John Osterberg are coached by Murray.

Arts Council Plans Celebrity Lecture Series at Boyne Mt.

A Town Hall Celebrity Series, sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council will be scheduled for next Spring and Fall in the new Boyne Mt. auditorium, according to Mrs. Bret Riley, East Jordan Council president.

The series includes nationally and internationally known speakers who will participate in question and answer sessions after their formal presentations.

Attendance will be by series ticket membership only and Celebrity luncheons will follow morning programs it is planned.

Committees are now being formed in area communities to handle sales and selection of celebrity speakers, said Mrs. Riley.

The Town Hall Series program was approved at the most recent meeting of the Arts Council held in the Village Tavern at Boyne Mountain.

The Arts Council also will sponsor a Jan. 8, 1974, afternoon and evening performances of the Braided Theatre at the Petoskey high school.

Composed of former Interlochen students and featuring Chris Brown who played in Jesus Christ, Super Star, the Theatre will cost students a 50 cent afternoon fee and the public $2.50 for the evening performances, according to Jack Perry, Petoskey, Performing Arts Chairman of the Arts Council, who made arrangements for their appearance.

The Braided Theatre was well received in recent performances at Ann Arbor and comprises both drama and dance, Perry said, and is touring Michigan for their first season.

Visiting guests at the Arts Council meeting and now members of the join advisory committee since Top O' The Mitt Artists and Craftsmen's merger with Crooked Tree, were Dr. and Mrs. Floyd Arnold, Higgins Lake, Mrs. Sam Titus and Henrietta Laur of Gaylord and from Lewiston, Mrs. David Shetter and Allyne Laatz. They will help plan annual Spring and Fall seminars in arts and crafts to be held somewhere in the northern Michigan area.

Directors gave recognition to Charlevoix residents author Edith Gilbert on her recent autograph session in Chicago and to metal craftsman Jim Millar for his recent success in the Lafayette Park show, Detroit.

Also discussed was the possibility of the Arts Council offering a painting scholarship sometime in the future, Mrs. Riley said.

All local Democrats are urged to attend and bring a guest.

On the agenda is a discussion of Democratic party activities on the state level and an evaluation of Democrats' chances in the 1974 election.

The meeting also should provide some organizational direction for the upcoming election year, according to local Democrats.

Mrs. Charles Duerr reports that the Charlevoix County membership drive in 1973 exceeded its goal by 169 percent.

"This represents a new high in paid memberships in the county, and considerable hard work by party members," she says.

She expects additional increases next year when the election will focus attention on political affairs.

Anyone interested in Democratic prospects and Democratic activities is invited to the Dec. 5 meeting.

Hitchhiking Is OK With State

QUESTION: Does Michigan have a general law prohibiting hitchhiking, or is it just prohibited on freeways. Is an entrance ramp to the freeway considered part of the freeway system? I want to hitch a ride to Chicago next month, but I don't want to be a lawbreaker. L.C., E. Lansing

ANSWER: There is no state law, per se, prohibiting hitchhiking other than on the limited access highways. Many cities, townships, and villages do prohibit the practice.

On freeways, (limited access highways), hitchhiking is definitely prohibited; so is all non-motorized traffic. Entrance and exit ramps are considered part of the freeway system.

QUESTION: I got a ticket for running a stop sign out at the parking lot in our local shopping mall and didn't pay any attention to it, 'cause I knew it wasn't a public thoroughfare. Now I hear that is a legal citation. Does the same hold true for all parking areas in the state? S. T. L., Marshall

ANSWER: In 1969 the State passed enabling legislation that says the governing body of any city or village, or the board of any township, may, upon the request of either the owner or the person in charge of the general operation and control of the parking area, by local ordinance, regulate and control traffic in parking lots of shopping centers; and to provide a penalty for violations thereof.

home INSULATION service

Don't delay! Our new low-cost home insulation program can cut gas heating costs up to 17%.

In just a few short weeks, many of our customers around Michigan have taken advantage of a new program to hold down heating bills and help save Natural Gas, too, The program was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. In fact, a recent government study found "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses," [which] "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution." The Michigan Public Service Commission has found that many homeowners could achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by having six inches of insulation in their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works.

First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project—and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100.

To assist you in the project, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows just how to do the job.

Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you, which can also be easy on your budget. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed—then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges.

Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

diesel fuel per mile, compared to six gallons for the Beaver Islander.

The South Shore is powered by a 300-horsepower GMC Diesel engine.

Annand anticipates using the South Shore exclusively early and late in the season when the demand for passenger freight service is not as heavy as it is in midsummer.

He said that refurbushing of the vessel will take place at St. James before she starts making regular runs.

CHS Senior Ranks High on Math Test

Mike Fochtman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Fochtman, 412 Dixon-ave., finished in the top four percent on Part 1 of the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition and is among 1,000 Michigan students to compete in the final examination on Wednesday, Dec. 5.

This marks the third year in a row that a Charlevoix High School math student has made it to the finals of the state-wide competition, according to Dr. William Ratigan, high school counselor. Foehtman is a senior.

David Graham was a finalist in 1972 and Ed Bouma, an exchange student from the Netherlands, was a finalist in 1971.

The competition is sponsored by the Michigan Section of the Mathematical Association of America and is designed to foster a wider interest in mathematics and to focus attention on the necessity for mathematical training in most professions and trades.

The 100 winners will be honored at an awards program sponsored by Michigan Bell Telephone Co. at Western Michigan University Feb. 23. Forty winners will receive a total of $7,000 in college scholarships. Contributors to the scholarship fund include the Kuhlman Corp. and the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Charlevoix High School mathematics instructor Glen Taylor has served as supervisor for students competing in the examination.

Board

–Heard a report by Mike Burnett of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, on the newly-adopted (Oct. 10, 1973) Mandatory Special Education Act. Under the Act, handicapped persons from age 0 to 25 must be provided educational opportunities. Board president Jane Lieberman expressed disappointment that so little is being done for borderline-handicapped persons. "A little disability is just as important as a big disability if you can't get help," she said.

–Learned that bids have been asked for a new school bus.

–Heard a report by Mrs. Lulu Broek, 5th grade teacher, and John Houting, 6th grade teacher, on a mathematics conference they attended recently in Flint, including observation of team teaching at the John Hannah Elementary School in E. Lansing.

–Learned from Mrs. Sandra Fassett that the First State Bank has donated a posting machine to the commercial department. The board offered thanks.

After an executive meeting, the board appointed High School Principal Vane Smith as teacher-in-charge of the study halls, with the assistance of an aide, and hired Ken Bartley as building trades aide, succeeding Frank Cook who resigned three weeks ago.

among the dollar signs all over his body and tail-that-was-the-big-whip and he was a very, very sick monster.

After we gossiped about Ed-U we pleaded with him to talk to us, to be sensitive again.

"What could help you Ed-U? Make you well enough so you can once more be the very best friend of our children?" we ask.

Between groans his weary eyes would light up just a little before closing them again, he would sign and gasp between his suggestions, and cough a little too. "Tell the people who abdicated to get back to the Royal Educators...that I need my little schools back....so do the children and the parents.

Tell them....no more buses...bicycle trails and bikes, maybe.

Tell them...let me help the smaller children...again..with fundamentals. Like truth...and building character. Then...the unions...factories...or bigger schools can have them.

Tell them...I really need that nectar from sweet clover...again.

"We'll tell them Ed-U," we promised. "But it really sounds too simplistic for them to understand," we warned. "They'll yell: provincial!" With a final thump of his tail Ed-U gasped: "Ask them to think Little. Little schools, little classes....little children wherevor they are....storefronts if necessary...while there's room...and teachers...and time. Not provincial...providential."

Soup To Nuts

JUST WHEN Charlevoix was getting used to the idea of being "a French fishing village", everyone suddenly is studying Portugese. The reason, of course, is the two-dozen plus young teachers and other professional people who have invaded Charlevoix County from Brazil, most of them from Recife. They are observing our ways of doing things in their various lines of endeavor. Next Thursday evening, the young people and their Charlevoix County hosts (there are seven in Charlevoix) will get together at the East Jordan Snowmobile Clubhouse for a potluck supper, prepared by the Brazilian women visitors. Our guests from South America should brighten what promised to be a rather drab holiday season in these days of fuel shortages. They'll be here until January...

+++

SPEAKING OF the energy shortage, most Charlevoixans apparently are doing their utmost to conserve fuel. There were very few cars on highways throughout the area on Sunday and those that were out kept under the suggested 50-mph speed limit.

+++

AND SPEAKING of the 50-mph speed limit, Ken McLean of Norwood reports that it really works as a fuel-conservation measure. He used to get 11 miles to a gallon in his big gas-burner traveling to and from Detroit. However on a recent trip to Detroit he didn't go over 50 and squeezed 19 mpg from his gas guzzler. Try it. You'll like it.

+++

AFTER THE first Soup to Nuts weather forecast appeared in mid-October, promising a rather mild winter because of super-warm water in Lake Michigan, certain readers challenged the Courier's credentials in the area of weather prediction. Now the same people are wondering how we came up with such accurate information. The almost balmy weather we have enjoyed right into December verges on the incredible. Bert Lehman of Lewis-st. tilled his garden for the unpteenth time Dec. 1. Of course, skiers and snowmobilers are pulling their hair, but a good old fashioned winter just isn't in the cards for '73-'74.

+++

ALTHOUGH doe hunters weren't exactly welcome in the Upper Peninsula during the season just ended, former Charlevoix County Sheriff Glenn Rose is back home with his trophy – a doe with a one six-inch spike, still in the velvet. Rose felled the animal in Dickinson County where doe-hunting is illegal this year. However the local conservation officer declined to issue a citation. "Another one of those things!" he scoffed. He said a couple of horned does had been killed in the area by mistake last year.

+++

HAVE YOU noticed the new look in Charlevoix's downtown street lighting? In an effort to conserve power, the city has turned off every other street light along Bridge-st. The remaining super-bright mercury vapor lamps still offer plenty of illumination.

Forces Door, Breaks Window

Crazed Deer Attacks House in Norwood

A crazed deer "attacked" the Kenneth MacLean residence in Norwood last Thursday afternoon, breaking down a bolted garage door, threatening MacLean and then shattering a big storm window in the living room.

It's actions indicated that the deer might have been rabid, the possibility was discounted by area Conservation Officer Harley Burris, who says rabies occurs most frequently during the warm months.

The animal had no horns, but Burris believes it was a buck which simply "went wild" during the mating season, which is still in progress.

MacLean, who lives with his wife in the former Roy Raymer residence overlooking Lake Michigan, said he was reading in the living room about 3 p.m. Nov. 29 when he heard a loud crash in the garage.

He rushed to the kitchen, which has a window facing the attached garage, and noticed that the door had been broken open. Seconds later a fairly large doe emerged from the garage, noticed him standing at the window and made a lunge at him.

Fortunately, the window is several feet above the ground and the animal was unable to hit the glass with enough force to break it.

MacLean, a retired Detroit Edison Co. executive who moved to Norwood from Grosse Pointe four years ago, said he was afraid the animal might actually break through the window. He grabbed his pet poodle and raced to another room in the rambling house.

Shortly he heard a loud crash from the living room. The deer apparently tried a second time to enter the house and had broken a large storm window, opening to the north. However the French window inside was not damaged.

By the time MacLean got around to inspecting the damage, the deer had fled.

"I come from the city," MacLean told the Courier later. "I'm not used to having such large animals trying to break into my house."

MacLean said he has a shotgun, but in the excitement he forgot about it completely.

School children who ride the Norwood bus were alerted Friday to give a wide berth to any deer acting in a unusual manner.

MacLean said that the animal hit the bolted garage door with such force that the brass screws holding the bold plates were snapped in two and the wooden door frame was cracked. A heavy portable heater located just inside the door was pushed into the center of the garage and a gas can and other paraphernalia was scattered about by the animal.

KENNETH MacLean, whose home was attacked by a deer last Thursday, points to smudge marks made by the animal on his garage door.

The deer has not been seen since.

Several years ago, a farm wife in the Norwood area was chased by a rabid skunk which she encountered one morning on the path leading to the family's outdoor john. She sought refuge in a shed and the animal attempted to dig a hole under the door before becoming discouraged and moving on. The skunk later attacked two dogs chained on the premises. The dogs became infected and had to be destroyed.

Kids Asked to Trim Tree

The City Council will ask Charlevoix young people to help decorate the community Christmas tree in East Park this year.

City Administrator Robert Wexstaff said he would contact art teachers at the Middle and High Schools to see if students would be interested in making unlighted decorations for the tree.

The council decided against a lighted tree because of the energy crisis.

The Santa display that normally adorns the band stand will be erected near the tree in East Park.

Judging of home decorations will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15, according to Chairman Jeannine Wallace. Judges will be Mrs. Maxine Plumm, Mary Lou Supernaw and Larry Wallace. City-wide prizes of $50, $25 and $15 will be awarded for the best unlighted displays.

CHERYL BROWE (left) of the Charlevoix County State Bank admires one and one half karat diamond cocktail ring which will be awarded in a drive to raise funds for air conditioning in the city ambulance. With her is Mrs. Rene Leutheuser, president of the Charlevoix Women's Club, which is conducting the drive. Winner will be announced promptly at 3 p.m. Friday, Dec. 21 by E.D. (Pat) Hawley, president of the County Bank where the ring is on display.

Holiday Gas Supply Critical to North

Resort Owners Worried

Availability of gasoline to skiers and other visitors over the Christmas holidays could well make or break the 1973-'74 winter resort business in northern Michigan.

That was the consensus of group of about 50 resort owners and fuel distributors who met Monday morning at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey to discuss ramifications of the energy crisis.

The meeting was chaired by State Sen. Robert Davis (R-Gaylord), assisted by State Rep. Mark Thompson (R-Alpena).

Everett Kircher, major domo of the sprawling Boyne Country ski areas, said his major concern is that skiers will come north over the holidays only to find they are unable to buy enough gasoline to get back home.

He says he figures that 3,000 additional cars will be in the area Christmas week, and they will need approximately 30,000 gallons of gasoline for the return trip to the metropolitan areas.

The fuel distributors agreed they could come up with 30,000 gallons but some thought Kircher's figures were too low.

A Standard Oil dealer from Mackinaw City said that three of the stations he serves already had used their December quota of gasoline and are closed.

Boyne Country representatives suggested that travelers to northern Michigan should be encouraged to tank up at Gaylord, Grayling and other intermediate points, easing the demand for gasoline in the northwest corner of the state.

Sen. Davis asked the fuel distributors to give a run-down on their allocations for December. They reported

Planners Call Meet On Parking

The Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission will meet with downtown businessmen and council members Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Community Room at the First State Bank to present plans for the development of downtown parking.

The commission is recommending the establishment of a building authority to create four lots or parking structures, three between Bridge and State-sts. and one on the waterfront.

The authority would have three members, one representing finance, one architecture and one a downtown businessman. They would serve staggered terms, with a new member joining every year.

Plans for the parking lots have been drawn up by landscape architect John Campbell of Charlevoix.

Dixon Residents Oppose Garage on Round Lake

After a heated debate between attorney Robert Hoffman and residents on Dixon-ave., the City Council, meeting as the Board of Review, refused to grant J. D. Goldman permission to construct a garage at the rear of his property within four feet of an undedicated roadway along the north shore of Round Lake.

Through his attorney, Goldman had asked permission to construct a 27 by 31-foot building 12 feet high on the lower level of his property at 410 Dixon-ave.

Many of Goldman's neighbors objected that the building would lend itself to commercial activity in the R-1 neighborhood.

James Elliott, who has a home at 310 Dixon-ave., charged that Goldman already is operating a marina-type operation on his Round Lake frontage, in violation of the zoning code.

Midway through the heated hearing, Hoffman asked to have his request for a waiver withdrawn on grounds that the little used roadway is not public and no waiver is required.

Mayor Edward P. Hansen said the hearing had been called at Hoffman's request and that some summer residents had traveled 400 miles to attend. He insisted that the question be brought to a vote.

Elliott questioned to what use the building would be put.

"At first we were told it was a boat storage shed. Then a storage shed. Now it's a garage," he said.

City Attorney Norm Ance said the real question was whether or not a road crosses the property.

Several residents testified that the grassy lane skirting the shore has been used as a roadway for years.

James Hiller, owner of Charlevoix Lumber Co., said the road actually is privately owned and has been closed by various property owners from time to time.

In other action as the Board of Review, the council:

--Granted permission to Jack Malpeli to raze a garage on his property at 204 Belvedere-ave. and construct a new one.

–Gave permission to Robert Camp of Dixon-ave. to construct a small storage building on his property.

–Waived the eastern side-yard set back for the Sand Castle condominium from five feet on the south (nearest Park-ave.) to eight feet on the north. Alderman Robert Timms dissented. Developer Larry Michael of Elk Rapids has agreed to trim two feet from the southernmost balcony which was constructed in violation of the side-yard setback. Mayor Hansen suggested that the city should require builders to submit a surveyors' certificate to eliminate such problems. Attorney John Michael concurred. He said such a requirement is in effect in Boyne City "and they never make any mistakes.

--Gave Holiday Station-stores, Inc., permission to retain its 42-square-foot sign, provided the sign is moved to the north end of the property on Bridge-st. Alderman Jeannine Wallace dissented. A city ordinance limits the size of such signs to 36 square feet. Stevens Oil Co., which owns the Texaco station to the south, objected to the location of the Holiday sign, which blocks visibility of its own sign.

--Tabled a request by Vida Richardson for rear and front yard variances on her property at the corner of Lincoln and May-st. until the neighbors are heard from. Mrs. Richardson plans to build a house on the property.

After the Board of Review was adjourned, the council:

–Denied a request by Paul Reed to plow Taylor-blvd. to the rear of the company property.

--Set Jan. 14 as the date of a public hearing on the requested rezoning of a tract of land 107 by 286 feet on Stover-rd. from Residential to Industrial-2. The change was asked by the estate of Myrtle 21 ways to conserve fuel and money in your home.

The energy shortage in Michigan is for real.

Our supply of heating fuel will be less this year, and we must take steps to make it last all winter. If we each cut back just a little, there should be sufficient energy for everyone.

Things you can do that don't cost money:

1. Turn down your thermostat 2 degrees every other day until you find the least temperature at which you can be comfortable (You may be surprised to find that it is below 70 degrees.)
2. Turn down your thermostat at night and during the day also if everyone is away all day)
3. Close doors and turn off heat to unused areas of home
4. Close drapes and pull shades at night
5. Change furnace air filter at least once a month to maintain efficiency
6. Balance system by regulating heat directed to each room (to eliminate a waste of heat in hot areas of home
7. Open shades and drapes on sunny days
8. Do not hold open outside doors for conversation
9. Clear all obstructions away from registers and grilles such as drapes rugs chairs etc which would restrict air movement
10. Close fireplace damper when not in use
11. Turn down your thermostat when away for the weekend or on vacation
12. Wear heavier clothing at home

Things you can do that will cost money now, but will more than pay for themselves later:

13. Have heating equipment checked, cleaned, and adjusted for top efficiency by a qualified serviceman
14. Add insulation in ceiling and walls
15. Add storm windows and storm doors to your home
16. Caulk cracks around window and door frames, or any other small openings to the outside
17. Add a humidifier Extra humidity brings a feeling of warmth at a lower temperature
18. Add weather-stripping around doors and windows
19. Insulate heating pipes or ducts where they run through unheated attics or crawl spaces
20. Modernize old heating system by replacement with newer more efficient equipment
21. Add a clock-thermostat to adjust your heat automatically

Some special conservation practices for use in commercial and public buildings:

- Turn down temperature in lobbies and other public places
- Schedule evening meetings into a single heated zone of larger buildings
- Operate ventilation to the outside on a timed schedule instead of continuously
- Open blinds and drapes on sunny days
- Install automatic door closers
- Control heat by zones and turn down heat to unused areas
- Use partitions to isolate areas open to the outside shipping area with open doors etc.)

Some estimates of how much you might save on your heating budget:

Whether you heat with gas, fuel oil, or electricity, heating experts estimate that you may be able to save anywhere from 10% to 50% on your present heating efficiency

Don't delay! Our new low-cost home insulation program can cut gas heating costs up to 17%.

In just a few short weeks, many of our customers around Michigan have taken advantage of a new program to hold down heating bills and help save Natural Gas, too, The program was developed at the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, which is seeking ways to conserve Natural Gas and hold down utility bills by the wise use of energy.

The heart of the program is installing ceiling insulation in your home. It's quick. Economical. Easy. In fact, a recent government study found "the most significant opportunity" for homeowners to conserve energy was through "improved insulation of houses," [which] "would benefit the individual homeowner by reducing winter fuel bills, summer air conditioning bills, size and capital cost of heating and cooling equipment, and air pollution." The Michigan Public Service Commission has found that many homeowners could achieve fuel savings of as much as 17% by having six inches of insulation in their attics. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and your heating habits.

To help you realize fuel savings in your home, we've designed an easy home insulation program. Here's how it works.

First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple do-it-yourself project—and the most economical way to put in ceiling insulation. Many customers can accomplish the task for less than $100.

To assist you in the project, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has even prepared a helpful booklet that shows just how to do the job.

Secondly, you can call a contractor of your choice and arrange to have the work done. Or call Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. We'll have one of our participating insulation subcontractors install it for you, which can also be easy on your budget. Many houses with up to 1,000 square feet in the ceiling area can be insulated for less than $200. And, there's a payment plan to suit most every customer. You can pay cash. Or, you can pay just 20% down at the time the contract is signed—then simply have the remaining cost included in your gas bill. Pay it off on your next three gas bills with no interest or carrying charges.

Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period at an interest rate of 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

Whichever you choose, you'll be taking an important step toward holding down your heating bills. And cutting down on the use of Natural Gas. Why not plan on doing it now. Contact us today for additional details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Customers to Get Mich. Con Refund

Michigan Consolidated Gas Company has announced that it will make a refund of approximately $2.5 million to its customers during December.

Hugh C. Daly, president of the utility, said the refund will average about $1.25 for customers who heat their homes with gas, and 25 cents for non-heating residential customers. Commercial and industrial customers will also share in the refund. He said the Michigan Public Service Commission has approved the company's proposal to return the money to its customers as a credit on their December bills.

Daly said the refund results from a temporary decrease in the rates of Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company, the utility's principal gas supplier. The pipe line increased its rates Nov. 1, 1972 under rules of the Federal Power Commission which provide for refunding if upon final order, the Commission sets lower ratos. Michigan Consolidated passed the higher wholesale costs on to its customers at that time under refund provisions established by the M.P.S.C.

On July 24 the F.P.C. ordered a slight temporary reduction in the pipe line's rates, going back to Nov. 1, generating the refund. The pipe line reduction enabled Michigan Consolidated to immediately reduce its rates about one-half cent per thousand cubic feet. However, the rates went back up to their previous level on Sept. 1 following an order from the F.P.C. to Michigan Wisconsin to alter its rate schedules.

'Swamp Tax' Increase Bonanza for N. Counties

Gov. William G. Milliken Wednesday signed three bills into law, including one which increases state payments in lieu of "Swamp" taxes to counties in the Upper Peninsula and the northern Lower Peninsula.

The bill (S-85, I.E.) increases from 20 cents per acre to 50 cents per acre the amount of money which the state pays to local governments in lieu of taxes for tax-reverted, recreation and forest land under the control of the Department of Natural Resources.

Additionally, the bill provides that counties, for the first time, will receive a share of the state payment amounting to 30 percent or 15 cents per acre. Townships will receive another 30 percent—or 15 cents an acre—and school districts will receive 40 percent—or 20 cents per acre.

"This legislation—one of my priorities in taxation reform for this session of the Legislature—is of vital importance to counties in Michigan's Upper Peninsula and the northern portion of the Lower Peninsula," Milliken said. "It represents a responsible increase in compensation for local units of government in sections of Michigan where state lands are predominant, and will provide substantial new revenues for counties, townships and school districts in northern Michigan."

The bill also provides that beginning on Dec. 1, 1975, and each two years for the next four years, the amount of money paid by the state will increase by 4 cents per acre.

Charlevoix County presently has 39,374 acres under the control of the DNR, meaning that schools will receive $7,875, the county $5,906 and the townships $5,906, for a total of $19,687.

Under the old formula, schools would have received $7,481 and townships $394.

Antrim County has 31,608 acres under control of the DNR, meaning that school districts will receive $6,322, the county $4,741 and townships $4,741.

Other bills signed by the governor will:

--Allow all counties regardless of population to name a county department of public works as the agency responsible for public improvements. Previously, only counties with a population greater than 1,000,000 could designate a department of public works. (H-4189, I.E.)

--Require that temporary license plates issued to an automobile purchaser by a dealer must be destroyed when regular license plates are purchased. The bill also limits the use of temporary plates to ten days. (H-4776, I.E.)

MRS. SAM SUPERNAW (center) had an opportunity to chat with Leslie Uggams and Michael Christian during filming of "Poor Pretty Eddie" near Athens, Ga., recently. Also in the cast are Shelly Winters, Slim Pickins, Ted Cassidy and Dub Taylor.

Mrs. Supernaw Watches Filming of 'Poor Eddie'

When you're the wife a a movie mogul, almost anything can happen.

Mary Lou Supernaw, whose husband, Sam, purchased an interest in Charlevoix's Cinema III last year, was in Georgia recently and had an opportunity to visit the set of the forthcoming movie "Poor Pretty Eddie."

Mrs. Supernaw watched the actual filming of one of the scenes and had a chance to chat with Leslie Uggams, formerly on TV and Michael Christian who played Joe Rossie in the televised "Peyton Place."

The movie is being filmed near Athens, Ga., close to where "The Deliverance" was filmed. The main locale is a local establishment called Pine Crest Lodge which has been converted to "Big Bertha's Oasis" for the movie.

The place is operated by a former stripper, played by Shelly Winters, and her rough-hewn husband, played by Ted Cassidy.

Miss Uggams is cast a professional singer who has car trouble near "Bertha's Oasis". Being black, she doesn't find a great deal of sympathic assistance from the denizens of the local roadhouse.

Michael Christian plays a neophyte country singer named Eddie who is the catalyst who triggers a mood of suspense that has been likened to Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho."

Other scenes in the movie take place at the county jail and the American Legion Hall in Lexington, Ga.

The producers are using local talent to play some of the bit parts and a few sizeable roles.

The GP movie will be released next April. Mrs. Supernaw hopes it won't be too long before it appears at the Cinema III.

You May Order Stamps by Mail

Postmaster Rex E. Davis says he anticipates a big increase in the number of stamps sold by mail order as the Christmas mailing season approaches.

Davis anticipates most of the orders will come from shut-ins, the inform and small businesses.

"However we expect people of all ages and situations to write in for stamps during the Christmas rush," he said.

Davis said a 100-ct. roll or sheet of 8 cent stamps costs $8; two books 8 cent stamps cost $4; one book of 11 cent stamps and two books of 8 cent stamps cost $5; 50 stamped eight-cent envelopes (6 and three-quarters inches long) cost $5; and 50 stamped 8 cent envelopes (10 inches long) cost $5.

A 40 cent fee is charged to defray the cost of postage, internal processing of checks and other costs associated with the service, Davis said.

Bridge Executive State Week Aide

New Michigan Week deputy general chairman for northern Michigan is Walter H. North of St. Ignace, comptroller of the Mackinac Bridge Authority.

North's appointment is announced by Richard M. Gillett, general chairman for Michigan Week 1974 and chairman of the board, Old Kent Bank and Trust Co., Grand Rapids.

"Walter North did an admirable job as Michigan Week chairman for Mackinac County over a period of several years," Gillett said. "Now he will oversee Michigan Week activities in Section A, the 27-county area which includes the entire upper peninsula and the northern tip of the lower peninsula."

North graduated from Battle Creek Central High School and Western Michigan University, and served in the U. S. Air Force. He was chief auditor for Federated Publications, Inc., and administrative assistant to State Treasurer Allison Green, before taking his present post.

He served on the Calhoun county board of commissioners and is past treasurer of the Michigan State Jaycees. He chaired the Mackinac County chapter March of Dimes for several years and has headed the county chapter of the American Red Cross for the past four years. North is married and has four sons.

May 18-25, 1974 are the dates of the 21st annual Michigan Week observance.

Ruppe Wants Ford Approved Quickly

By Cong. Phillip Ruppe

The events of the past few weeks in Washington have demonstrated the absolute necessity of quickly confirming Gerald Ford as vice-president.

The 25th Amendment was designed to provide for the selection of a new Vice-President when a vacancy exists. I believe we have a duty, not only to the Constitution, but to the American people as well, to act now upon the President's nomination of Mr. Ford to be the new Vice-President.

I applauded the President's choice for Vice-President. Gerry Ford has been a diligent, creative, and extremely capable legislator. We may not always have agreed on issues, but I have always respected his views, and I think he has respected mine. His reputation for openess and fair play will surely enhance this Administration's relationship with the Congress and the people.

Much is known about Gerry Ford as a man, as a legislator, and as a political leader. In the eyes of a vast majority of the people, I think he measures up to the tasks he will face.

The paramount problem is to fill the vacancy. Any delay in the process of confirming a new Vice-President will, regretfully, be viewed by the public as serving narrow partisan purposes. To avoid public cynicism, it is imperative that the Congress act now on the confirmation of Gerry Ford as Vice-President. The Senate Rules Committee began hearings last Thursday, and there is some speculation that they will be concluded this week. I have written the Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, which has jurisdicton over confirmation hearings, to begin those hearings without further delay.

RANDY FAUST has a clear shot at the basket in Friday's game with the Grayling Vikings. Charlevoix won the nip and tuck battle, 62-60. Faust was high point man for Charlevoix

CLAYTON JONES takes a shot at the basket in Friday's game with the Vikings. Jones, who stands six feet, two inches, is a senior this year.

CHS JUNIOR MIKE Streeter adds another bucket to Charlevoix's tally in last Friday's game with Grayling.

Rayders Squeak Past Vikings by Two Points

It was nip and tuck all the way, but the doughty Rayders managed to come up with a win in their first conference basketball game of the season against the Grayling Vikings Friday night.

The score was 62-60, with the lead changing a dozen times or more during the game.

At the end of the first quarter, the score was 17-11, with Charlevoix leading by six points.

During the second quarter, Grayling picked up steam, scoring 22 points to Charlevoix's 14, leaving the Vikings in the lead, 33-31, at the half.

In the third period, both teams scored 14 points, giving Grayling a two-point lead, 47-45, at the whistle.

However in the final stanza, Charlevoix chalked up 17 points to the Vikings' 13, giving the Rayders the win with a two-point margin.

Spectators agreed generally that seldom has a team improved so greatly in only three days. On Tuesday, the Rayders lost 93 to 55 to Harbor Springs in a non-conference game. (See story elsewhere in the Courier.)

High point man in Friday's game was Randy Faust, who sank 12 field goals for 24 points. Steve McClellan scored 14 on 7 field goals and Jerry Skippergosh 13 on 6 field goals and 1 free throw.

Clayton Jones scored 6 on 3 field goals and Mike Streeter 3 on 1 field goal and 1 free throw.

Four-year varsity veteran Wayne Westervelt was high man for Grayling, with 25 points on 11 field goals and 3 free throws. Mark Hanson was credited with 18 points on 9 field goals; Bert Kaiser, 8 (2 and 4); Doug Hinkle, 4 (2 field goals); Cliff Bonamie, 2 (1 field goal); and Tobin, 1 on a free throw.

The Rayders were scheduled to play at Onaway Tuesday, Dec. 4. The next home game will be Friday, Dec. 7, against Rogers City.

JV's Lose Opener To Vikings 57-47

Charlevoix JV's lost their Michigan-Huron Shores Conference opener to the Grayling Vikings Friday night, 57-47.

Charlevoix actually led at the half by one point, but the Vikings piled on points in the closing stanzas, outstripping the young Rayders.

Grayling led by one point, 10-9, at the first quarter; Charlevoix led by one point, 21-20, at the half; Grayling picked up a two-point lead, 33-31, at the three-quarter mark and rallied in the final stanza to win by 10 points.

High man for Charlevoix was Mark Hosmer with 15 points on 7 field goals and 1 free throw. Ed Russell scored 11 points on 5 fieldgoals and 1 free throw and Bob Alger scored 11 points on 4 field goals and 3 free throws.

Also on the board were John Greene, 6 on 2 field goals and Steve Michael and Casey Culbertson 2 each on field goals.

Scoring for Grayling were Potter, 19; Kinkle, 16; Hall, 6; Doty and Good, 4 each; and Hoffman, 2.

Varsity and JV's Lose Non-Conference Openers

The Red Rayders lost their first game of the season Tuesday, bowing to Harbor Springs in a non-conference opener 93 to 55.

The game was moved from Charlevoix to Harbor because of repairs being made to the arches supporting the CHS gymnasium roof.

It was Harbor's game all the way, with quarter scores of 32-15; 54-25; 78-39; and 93-55.

High point man for Charlevoix was Jerry Skippergosh who rang up 16 points on 7 fieldgoals and 2 free throws. He was the only CHS player who scored in double figures.

Randy Faust was credited with 9 points on 3 fieldgoals; and 3 free throws; Mike Streeter, 8, 4 fieldgoals; Clayton Jones, 6, 3 fieldgoals; Steve McClellan and Dan Greene, 4, 2 fieldgoals; Dave Martuchek, 4, 2 fieldgoals; and Gary Novotny, 4, 2 free throws.

Scoring in double figures for Harbor were Bodzick, 20; Ketterer, 18; Morse, 15; and Clare and Tony Morse, 10 each.

Charlevoix JV's also went down to defeat, bowing to Harbor 66-28.

Once again, it was Harbor's game from the start, with quarter scores of 17-8; 34-14; 51-19; and 66-28.

Bob Alger was credited with more than half of Charlevoix's total points, scoring 15 on 6 fieldgoals and 3 free throws. Mark Hosmer scored 7 points, 3 fieldgoals and 1 free throw; Craig Culberson, 3 on free throws; Ed Russell, 2 on one fieldgoal; and Kirk Lieberman, 1 on a free throw.

High men for the Harbor JV's were Morse with 20, Reeves with 16 and Kebel with 14.

Defeat Vikings

Charlevoix Freshmen defeated their Grayling counterparts Thursday night, 51-34.

Charlevoix had a four-point lead at the end of the first period, 14-10, but dropped behind two points at the half.

A 13-point rally in the third period gave the Rayders 39 to Grayling's 29 at the end of the third period. Charlevoix cinched the victory with 12 points in the final period.

High point man for Charlevoix was Bud Klooster, 17. Matt Doan scores 12 points.

CHARLEVOIX'S Dan Key lost an 8-1 decision to Carl Partello of Grayling in wrestling match Thursday night at the High School gym. The Rayders emerged victorious on total points, however.

Rayder Matmen Defeat Grayling Vikings 45-17

Assisted by three forfeits, Charlevoix wrestlers defeated the Grayling Vikings last Thursday, 45 to 17.

The Rayder matmen chalked up three pins, three forfeits, one superior decision (more than 10 point spread), one decision and one tie.

Grayling had just three winners in the 12 matches held in the Charlevoix gymnasium.

This week, the wrestlers will travel to Onaway Wednesday, Dec. 5, and will host Rogers City in a home meet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 6.

On Saturday the team will travel to Cadillac for the Northwest Michigan Invitational. Fourteen schools from throughout the area will compete.

Against Grayling, Tim DeYoung (98 pounds), Bill Belfy (105 pounds) and Doug Smith (167 pounds) won on forfeits when the Vikings were unable to come up with competition in the various weight classes.

112–Dan Key lost an 8-1 decision to Carl Partello.

119–Ed Olach was pinned in 2:59 by Joe Ockerman.

126–Pat DeYoung won by a superior decision, 18-8, over Grant Byce.

132–Terry Drew won by a pin in 2:28 over Curtin Robinson.

1338–Terry Mol was pinned in 3:24 by Dean Molnar.

145–Tom Mort won by a 13-10 decision over Bernie Larson.

155–Pat Whitley won by pin, 1:23, over Todd Mead. (The pin was the fastest of the meet.)

185–Brian Goss tied 7-7 with Larry Bayman.

Hvy–Phil Christ won by a pin, 2:58, over Don Vollmer.

For the JV's, Don Trost, 112-pounds, was pinned in 1:09 by Don Kehr and Greg Grubaugh, 185-pounds, was pinned in 1:53 by Bruce Horton.

Coach Norm Probert predicts that next Thursday's meet with Rogers City will be a close one.

"Our squad needs more conditioning, but overall I am pleased with how well the boys have wrestled this early in the season," he said.

The Hurons lost to Petoskey last Thursday, 31-28, but the Rayders are still looking forward toward their first victory over the husky Rogers City matmen.

Bandsman Dons Kilts

Swirling kilts and stirring martial music make Alma College's Kiltie Band one of the nations' most colorful marching units.

One of the B-flat clarinet players of this spectacular 75-member band is Maurine A. Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wallace of 301 Clinton, Charlevoix. A 1973 graduate of Charlevoix High School, she is a freshman at Alma.

Attired in brilliant kilts of Royal McPherson tartan, the band plays at Alma's home football games and at numerous other festive events in Michigan including the annual springtime Highland Festival in Alma. One of the highlights of last season was a performance in Detroit during a Lions football game.

Alma College's first band was formed in 1922 when a dozen musicians toted their instruments to a football game and began to play. The group continued to function informally until 1924 when a faculty director took over the baton.

A subsequent director of the Band, Dr. Sam Jones, is author of the Alma College Fight Song.

Director of the band now is Jack Bowman.

Gal Cagers Lose In Tourney Finals

After defeating East Jordan 59-40 in the semi-finals last Wednesday night, the Charlevoix High School girls' basketball team lost a heartbreaker to Kalkaska in the Class 'C' tourney finals Saturday, 36-33.

It was the first loss of the season for the team, which is coached by Miss Toni Felter.

Although both teams appeared to be having an off-night, it was Charlevoix's game from the start with quarter scores of 9-4; 17-13; and 27-24.

Then, with 5 minutes and 21 seconds left in the final period, the Kalkaska team moved ahead and Charlevoix was unable to overcome the slim margin.

Members of the team were Tori Alger, Dona Bellows, Denise Boss, Maureen Cudd, Heidi Dove, Beth Egler, Joel Alger, Teri Morris, Terri Novotny, Tiller Otis, Cheryl Pence, Tammy Penny, Gail Powell, Coleen Russell and Lee Steelman.

How Schools in Area Are Meeting Fuel Crisis

By Tammy Wieland

A two-month winter vacation? A four-day school week?

These are some of the suggested solutions to the problem of the fuel shortage in the schools.

The fuel shortage does not seem to be as severe here in Northern Michigan, at the present time, as in some other places. But Michigan probably will be one of the states hardest hit by the crisis this winter.

To find out what the effect of the shortage will have on area schools, area educators were interviewed about the crisis and asked what they are doing to conserve energy.

Most schools do not anticipate closing unless directed to do so by the government.

When asked what their tentative plans would be if there were forced closings, the reply was mainly they would follow state and district suggestions. All the Charlevoix schools use natural gas, supplied from Chicago, so there is no anticipated shortage in this area.

Gasoline is supplied on a full year contract. If gasoline runs short, it will be purchased at local stations.

To conserve the fuel now available, all thermostats have been turned down too 68 and all unnececsary bus trips have been eliminated.

Alanson-Littlefield Schools use fuel oil for heating. This oil, and also gasoline, have been promised to them for the year. To help use available oil more wisely, the school has discontinued early morning practices to save heat, and has turned thermostats down to 40 on weekends.

The Boyne Falls School, which uses natural gas, has contracts for natural gas and gasoline. To conserve, they have lowered the thermostat and will lower it further on weekends.

Harbor Springs schools also use natural gas for heating. However the school does not have a guaranteed contract for gasoline and all trips other than those already scheduled have been dropped.

The building temperatures have been lowered and all night school classes have been moved into one section of the building to save heat and electricity.

Pellston expects shortages of both oil, which is used in heating, and gasoline. These problems have been pointed out to the board and it is expected that a solution, such as the possibility of a four-day week, will be decided soon. Because of a loss of millage all bus runs besides students pickup and team buses have been stopped, which has helped cut gasoline consumption. Thermostats also have been turned down.

Petoskey schools use natural gas and do not expect any shortages. To cut down on energy use, the drapes are shut at night and all buses are driving at a maximum of 50 mph. The heatings systems also have been checked to improve efficiency.

Twin Valley schools use two diffierent types of fuel, oil in Boyne City and natural gas in East Jordan.

C-E Board Backs Vote On Twin Valley Split

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District has gone on record as favoring "self-determination" by residents of the Twin Valley School District in a move to break up the consolidated district into the former Boyne City District and the East Jordan District.

Five years ago residents of the two districts voted to join forces. However, the new Twin Valley District has had problems ever since deciding on a site for a consolidated high school and school construction projects in the two communities.

At its Nov. 26 meeting, the Intermediate board approved the following resolution:

"The Intermediate School District Board of Education supports the basic concept that the public should have the right of self-determination; and, therefore, should have the right to vote to dissolve the Twin Valley School District along the original district boundary lines."

The resolution was presented by Richard Dubin of Boyne City and supported by Maurice M. Taylor of Ellsworth.

The Twin Valley Board of Education also is in favor of the split.

In other business the Intermediate Board:

–Heard a report by Mrs. Judith Juilleret of Harbor Springs on the current status of Board Policy Committee proposals relative to the relationship between the board the superintendent, communications with the public and the role of the superintendent.

Supt. James Shepard reported that the energy crisis could have an adverse effect on schools within the district.

Shepard said that when fuel is short, schools have priority, after homes and business and industry.

However he pointed out that with the exception of Pellston schools, all schools in the district are heated with natural gas which apparently is in more plentiful supply than fuel oil. Pellston schools use fuel oil.

Gasoline supplies also pose a problem, he said, pointing out that the state may require longer vacations at Christmas and Easter, extending the school year into June when heating will not be a problem. Another possibility is a four-day school week.

Superintendents throughout the district were to meet last Thursday to attempt to arrive at a unified approach to the energy crisis.

Priorities for gasoline consumption are: Special Education transportation and Fourth Class Districts which have voted to transport students (this includes all schools in the district except Petoskey); Regular Instructional programs, K-12 and vocational schools; and field trips.

Before adjourning, the board voted to borrow $50,000 against anticipated revenues.

Coping With Fuel Crisis

Area Forester Jcak Lockwood of Boyne City reports that many area residents are attempting to beat the fuel shortage by cutting wood available on state-owned land.

Lockwood said that through November of last year, only 23 permits had been issued by his office for the cutting of firewood from lands under his jurisdiction. This year, 60 permits had been issued through the end of the month.

Lockwood says the permits allow persons to take fallen trees from state forests. He said there also are areas recently logged where the tree tops have been left behind.

For information on securing a permit, call Lockwood at 582-6681.

LIBRARY NOTES

By Eleanor Raligan

This is not the best time in the world to tempt our patrons with news of new books, because everyone is so busy knitting mittens or making Christmas cookies. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, some of our new titles are so worthwhile and so entertaining that the cookies will probably burn in the oven, completely forgotten.

"Dutch Uncle" is the new novel by Marilyn Durham who gave us "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing", which became a national best seller and a first-rate movie. We have yet to talk to a patron who didn't love every page of "Cat Dancing", and "Dutch Uncle" is just as delightful. It has a never-fails, can't-miss plot -- Jake, a mean, rough, 45-year-old man with a wide reputation as a card shark and gun slinger, is suddenly saddled with two small children. They upset all of his plans, cause him more trouble than anyone deserves and, although he tries every way in the world to get rid of them, he ends up – well, you'll have to read the book to find out!

"North Dallas Forty" was written by Peter Gent who, at 31, has already had an extraordinary career. He attended Michigan State University where he played basketball and was chosen the Most Valuable Player. In 1964 he joined the Dallas Cowboys. His book concerns eight harrowing days in the life of a professional football player. In some of the most shocking scenes in recent fiction, Peter Gent tells the truth about the world of a pro ballplayer – a world of drugs, pain, sex and incredible savagery. The novel also deals with a tender, tragic love affair, and there is a marvelous vein of humor which reminds us of "Catch 22" and "MASH."

"You and I and Yesterday" is a book about a woman's nostalgic reminiscences of a small-town childhood. The author, Marjorie Holmes, tells us: "The good in the good old days" seems to me that there was more love than hate, more kindness than cruelty, more decency than dirt, more peace than violence. It was a time of being safe, being sheltered, being loved. A time when the American dream still beckoned, when everything hadn't been invented yet, a time of looking excitedly toward the future". Marjorie Holmes is too well-known and too popular to need any introduction. We will simply say we're delighted to have her newest book on our shelves.

Energy Crisis Matter Of Survival for Many Area Resort Owners

Richard Aull, co-owner of the Weathervane resort complex, was miffed last week -- and rightfully so -- when only one representative from Charlevoix showed up in Lansing last Wednesday for a meeting on the energy crisis called by the state Tourist Council.

The Petoskey Chamber of Commerce had five representatives at the meeting. Boyne Mountain sent a carload of executives. A gas station owner attended from Gaylord. And even communities in the far reaches of the Upper Peninsula saw fit to have a spokesman at the meeting.

Yet Charlevoix, which depends so greatly on the tourist dollar, had only one voice at the meeting -- that of Robert Sell, manager of the Weathervane Terrace.

Sell said he entered the meeting confident that the so-called energy crisis would pose no more than a temporary inconvenience to Charlevoix resort operators. Now he is not so sure, because there appear to be no ready answers to the dilemma.

The use of trains to bring resorters into the area seems to be out of the question, at least for several years. Roadbeds between metropolitan areas to the south and northern Michigan communities have fallen into such a state of disrepair that it would take years and millions of dollars to put them back in shape.

Furthermore, there is a scarcity of railroad passenger cars and modern diesel engines that haul freight cars are not equipped to heat passenger cars, as they once were.

The problems, of course, could be overcome -- but they won't be resolved this winter, next summer or even the following year.

Bus travel can offer only token assistance. With the present rolling stock, only 2,000 skiers could be transported to northern Michigan on any given weekend. And 2,000 is only a drop in the bucket, compared to the hordes of skiers who make weekend treks to northwest Michigan by automobile every Friday night during the skiing season.

The present presidential ban on the sale of gasoline on Sundays is bad enough. But Sell left the meeting convinced that outright gasoline rationing will be upon us before too many months pass.

There are those who claim that the energy crisis is a "good thing" for the American people, that we have been wasting too much of our irreplaceable fossil fuels for too long. And in a sense, they are right. We must learn to conserve our remaining fuel supplies.

Yet such theoretical assertions about what is good for the American people hold little weight with the new businessman who has a heavy mortgage on his northern Michigan resort property.

Or the snowmobile dealer who has gone deeply in debt to build up his inventory of machines and spare parts.

Or any of us -- and that includes us all -- who are affected either directly or indirectly by the resort industry.

Ironically, the fuel crisis hits both of Michigan's two major industries -- auto production and tourism.

A second meeting on the energy crisis was called for Monday morning at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey and several Charlevoix businessmen said they planned to attend. Hopefully, the group will be able to come up with some new ideas on how to cope with the impending shortages.

For many of them, it is a matter of survival.

Says Capital Punishment is 'God's Will'

Dear Mr. Clock:

In your Clockwise article concerning capital punishment, you mention my letter pointing out evidence in the Old Testament supporting capital punishment. In the paragraph where you mention my letter you have three words, "despite Christ's compassion", which leads one to believe that Christ didn't approve of capital punishment. Christ in the New Testament not only supports capital punishment but also gives countless warnings concerning eternal punishment or everlasting condemnation.

Christ's compassion is an eternal compassion which promises eternal life to whosoever believes in him. Read John 3:16.

Murder is mentioned often in the New Testament. In Luke 13:1-5, we read the teaching of Jesus on this subject. "There were present at that season some that told him of the Galilians, whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices, and Jesus answering said unto them, Suppose ye that these Galileans were sinners above all the Galileans, because they suffered such things? I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

"Or those eighteen, upon whom the tower in Siloam fell, and slew them, think ye that they were sinners above all men that dwelt in Jerusalem? I tell you, Nay: but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.

"Those Galileans, murderers, were put to death by Pilate, and Jesus said that was the will of God. God himself permitted others to be killed by letting the Tower of Siloam to fall on them and that was counted just."

We are told, "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer; and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3:15). And in Revelations 21:8 and 22:15 we are told that murderers are kept outside the Heavenly Jerusalem. And in Romans 13:1-7, we are told that the ruler is the minister of God, that he bears not the sword in vain but he is a revenger to execute judgement on the sinner. That teaches that when a government executes a murderer, it acts as the agent of God.

Thank you,
Robert L. Oison

Clockwise The Energy Crisis

(The energy crisis isn't something that "just happened." More than eight months ago, State Sen. Robert Davis gave an ominous warning of what was in store during an informal meeting with Charlevoix civic leaders at the Weathervane Inn. Following are "Clockwise" comments on the meeting which appeared in the March 28 Courier. Sen. Davis' observations are as true today as they were then. And they are even more pertinent.)

By BOB CLOCK

There is no doubt about it. The energy crisis is upon us.

Sen. Robert Davis reported to Charlevoix civic leaders Friday noon at the Weathervane that the fuel shortage is "very real." He said the East Jordan Co-op has received word from Sunoco that it no longer can supply fuel oil for the co-op's customers – both residential and industrial — after the end of the present heating season.

This is a blow not only to the co-op, which distributes about four million gallons of fuel oil a year, but also to the co-op customers who are waiting in limbo for a solution to the problem.

Davis is hopeful that "something can be worked out," but he hastens to add that Sunoco is a privately-owned company and cannot be dictated to by government.

He said he understands that Gulf Oil Co. is anticipating a similar move at the end of the 1973-'74 heating season, but there is nothing definite on that yet.

It seems that the profit on fuel oil is marginal at best, and it is reduced even more by the high cost of transporting oil from the refineries to the wilds of northern Michigan.

Gasoline is a different story. The markup on gasoline apparently is sufficient to offset transportation costs.

Like Davis, we are confident that "something can be worked out" before the deep chill moves in again next November.

Although other fuel suppliers are reluctant to take on new customers, it is inconceivable that any northern Michigan residents will be left without fuel for their furnaces next winter.

Things like that just don't happen in this land of plenty.

Sen. Davis lays the fuel shortage on three factors:

–Increased use of fuel of all kinds.

--Growing concern for the environment, and

–Failure to anticipate our future needs.

Certainly it is no secret that we are using more fuel, notably gasoline. The one-car family has suddenly become the two car family. We have more different types of vehicles than ever before, witness the emergence of the snowmobile, the increased number of motorcycles and all-terrain vehicles and the proliferation of power boats, garden tractors, power lawn mowers and you name it. The number of gasoline-operated gadgets on the market stuns the imagination.

Furthermore, the federal government has decreed that the gasoline engine has befouled the atmosphere long enough and has insisted on the development of no-lead gasolines. Which is fine. Our cities, must have relief from noxious auto fumes. The only hitch, according to Sen. Davis, is that it takes far more crude oil to make a gallon of antipollution gasoline than it does a gallon of the stuff we are used to. And the fuel shortage worsens.

Environmentalists have further complicated the fuel picture in other ways. The pipeline which was to siphon an untold wealth of crude oil from the Alaskan wastes into the domestic economy is at a virtual standstill because of objections raised by the environmentalists.

Sen. Davis says the United States can't even benefit fully from oil reserves elsewhere in the world, since there is not a seaport in the country capable of accomodating the new super-tankers, which are three times larger than their predecessors.

Even if we could secure more crude oil, we couldn't refine any more than we do today. Sen. Davis said that because of concern for the environment there is not a single new refinery under construction in the United States.

"No one wants to live next door to a refinery," he said.

Of course it is no secret that Americans waste more fuel than they actually need. Our big five-passenger automobiles roam the highways more than half empty. More often than not only the driver's seat is occupied.

We seldom perform a task by hand when there's a power-driven appliance handy to do it for us.

We use more starter fuel when charcoal grilling a hamburger than an Asiatic family uses in a week for all of its cooking and heating.

We equip our houses with every labor-saving device that comes down the pike, unmindful that the electricity to run them is further depleting our dwindling supplies of fossil fuel. To date, only from one to two percent on the energy produced in the United States comes from nuclear reactors. And unless we can find an adequate method of disposing of radioactive waste, the atomic era could just die aborning.

I don't pretend to have any answers to the present energy crisis. But like the high cost of living, I'm afraid it is going to be with us for some time to come.

To Whom It May Concern...

By Doris Huckle

Here we are on the eve of another most charitable season, times of remembrance past and one ponders the expectations.

A number of us are still around who recall when money only was the absolute scarcity during the Great Depression of the '30's. Not Watergate tapes. Not anticipated shortages of products bearing the algebraic unknown "X" in their names, now so highly touted on national TV.

No one remembers any better than our Uncle Jim.

As a child, his parents brought the family through the 1893 economic panic with the aid of one cow and buckwheat cakes three times a day.

As a young man already in the ditching machine business, a careless druggist sold him and his brother deadly poison, instead of the requested cold remedy of that time, epsom salts.

Uncle's younger brother died that night, but Jim was saved when the old country doctor gave him enough strychnine to kill a horse. The dosage became one of medical history.

Recuperation took a full year or more, income was nil, but his new little family made do.

Uncle Jim was told he might live a day, a month, a year, with no promises when his now extra-slow-beating heart might quit. So he lived his life accordingly and recently celebrated his 90th birthday.

During the great dollar depressions, parents had to make do. Some of their children learned the lesson well. Others refused any continuance of such continence in their daily lives and became today's crop of Agnewistics.

How to keep the minds of the young occupied, and hence out of trouble and fulfilled, wasn't the problem for parents then. It was the little critters stomachs that needed filling.

Uncle listened, learned, and coped. He still does.

When the banks closed in 1929 he, like many others, was financially ruined. Still, some new product might be saleable, or tradeable at least, along with personal service, and while Uncle's lifetime inventions have been numerous, he has always been a door-to-door man. That's the way he marketed his first depression invention "Fluid Solder". Mixed up in an old washing machine, packaged in medicine bottles with a paper label, sales of it kept body and soul together for many of the previously unemployed, turned salesmen.

The fluid solder helped mend everything that broke, including Uncle's considerable fortune. People used it to repair everything from false teeth to cracked cylinder blocks on their old Model T's. It was a great help to the household make-doers.

When competition came from big manufacturing chemists, Uncle was ahead in solder production. So he thought up another depression type product and soon the old washing machine was swishing again, mixing up huge batches of rat poison.

Hungry salesman who believed in helping save all the human food possible for their fellowman, sold the stuff in typical Jim style, from store to store in several States. They also remained loyal to his solder. It came in handy if the rat poison packages came loose on the counter display cards, or they needed new soles on their shoes.

Ingredients became scarce and the government frowned on Uncle's homemade poison formula. So he stored his washing machine, quit the fluid solder and rat bait business and invested in vacant real estate and paying-crop farmland.

Times and people became more affluent. Social Security was definitely in. Uncle Jim was only biding his time to get back at the chemists and governmental policies, able to cope admirably due to his timely investments.

He always could see ahead of the times, especially so after the 1930's depression. So he began to make all the money possible as a self-employed man while in his 70's. If he paid the limit in, then if and when he retired, he'd get the highest returns in Social Security checks.

Uncle Brought up a bankrupt southern rug business, cut the yards of high quality, pure and properly woven, cotton shags into throw-size rugs and got back at the chemists.

He used one of their products to coat the rugs for non-slippage, put selling crews out door to door and swelled store inventories before the Bigs perfected their post-World War II rug-coating and cheaper weaving-method machines. Uncle's machines were big brushes.

Finally, he invested in excellent insurance policies for businessmen underwritten by a Chicago man named Stone. While his wife kept the books in hotel rooms all over the south, Uncle sold the bankers first, then the merchants. Hundreds of them.

Now, with his bookkeeper gone on before him, he keeps their Ohio home spotless in summer and haunts the wintertime shuffleboard courts in Florida. He kind of likes the Social Security checks. He cooks most of his own meals, for today's women are, he says, too wasteful in the kitchen. His mind keeps on inventing and coping.

He says any new schools in the nation should be built mostly underground. They would be warmer in winter, cooler in summer and provide tornado and bombshelters for every community.

Some of the dug-out earth should cover them, making nice miniature hills for kids to climb. The rest could be used for gardens so the kids could grow some of their own food.

Our last letter from Uncle came before the recent Thanksgiving holiday and we haven't heard what his coping plans are for the Energy Crisis.

We think he might have made a trip to Washington.

He's down there calling door to door, insisting everyone go refine his own manure pile.

He's laso urging President Nixon to issue a nationwide edict that every city build its own refinery and turn garbage and sewage into fuel.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

The automobile, by extending the radius of the family circle, has unravelled the closely knit family to the point where many homes have become gathering places for the exchange of polite pleasantries during the TV commercials.

Today's family records hinge on the instamatic camera which proliferates color photos that blur into abstract art before Aunt Hettie can jet in from L.A. In comparison, the old box camera created masterpieces as clear in detail and enduring as the faces on Mt. Rushmore. Thanks to this primitive photography, later generations are becoming increasingly curious about the fashions and customs of 1900.

Dig those little misses with ridiculous lace trimmed bonnets covering their ears, and those wild baby buggies the size of a golfer's cart. All this because of the old wives tale that a child's ears and head should be protected and that baby should lie in comfort while mother shops or visits.

Since tradition dies hard, grandmothers today are appalled to see a bareheaded baby barbecueing at disjointed angles in a stroller while being provided its daily migroine headache. Headaches and earaches were merely words to Grandma who could hear a pin drop at age 75, an irrelevant fact to the childless authorities expounding proper rearing in our enlightened age.

Observe Gramps shoes, always purchased a stylish half size larger his growing feet. At 50 he strolls happily for miles while men half his age complain of feet that are killing them after three blocks.

Ye gods, how about those barbaric suspenders! They were decreed by the univeral misconception that human machinery be free to adjust naturally to different positions; a heresy so ingrained that, even today, Gramps insists backaches can be eliminated by restoring suspender buttons to men's trousers.

We are still vaguely familiar with another old fashion which may be folklore by the year 200. In most instances, the girls are lovingly cradling dolls in their arms; those make-believe babies symbolic of women's servitude to men.

Dolls are being abolished by militant women who bristle at the term 'weaker sex' except; when by inept driving, they become lodged in a snowbank. Grandma enjoyed this newly espoused liberated equality from the day of her marriage. In deference to her new status Gramps allowed her to eat herself–on the milk stool. She opened her own doors–to the barn or chicken coop, and even the back door when carrying in an armful of wood.

She enlivened her 'career' by raising children to be a comfort to her in later years, in accordance with her pet theory which bordered on inescapable fact. She reasoned that unless women raised families, men would disappear from the scene. This would leave the fair sex as equals only to each other, an absurdity they themselves have disputed even more heatedly ever since Cleopatra went trolling on the Nile and hooked that fish, Anthony.

Let us return briefly to those fem libbers burning their tempers and tires in the snow. Though not diplomatic, it might be pointed out that Grandma would not have sat there spinning her wheels. She would have declined the proffered assistance of her male equals with a polite, "No, thank you."

With an encouraging "back Nell" she would have proceeded on her way with a flick of the reins and a "gid-yap" which commanded the respect she never saw need to demand.

My Neighbors

"I'd like to ride with you, Harry. The only thing that holds me back is a little common sense."

Mighty Combine Unseats The Threshing Machine

The combine is king in the wheat belt, but the memory of the threshing machine lingers on.

Huge combines will harvest most of this year's record wheat crop, but farmers of a certain age still say they are "as hungry as a threshing crew" or that a noisy old car "sounds like a threshing machine," the National Geographic Society says.

Threshing once was the high point of the harvest season. After the wheat was cut and stacked in fields, "thrashers," as the word was pronounced, separated the grain from the straw and the wheat from the chaff. It was hard work.

SMOKE AND BELTS

The day began as a great steam tractor, belching black smoke into the prairie sky, puffed and rumbled into the farmyard. Broad leather belts ran from engine to thresher, slapping and wobbling ominously as the engine picked up speed.

Sweating, dust-streaked men pitched sheaves into wagons, fed wheat into the spiked throat of the clattering thresher, packed the rain of straw and chaff into neat pyramids, and carried plump grain sacks to storage bins.

At the stroke of noon, the dinner bell rang. Threshing crews were prodigious eaters, and it was a point of pride for cooks to have the year's biggest feast on the table exactly on time and to have "plenty more in the kitchen."

A Kansas farmwife recalled the days early in the century "when we had 25 to 35 threshers and loaded tables for three or four weeks. There were special iron and granite kettles and big pans we used just for the threshing cooking."

Crewmen crawled into bed at dark "thrashed out." Even blacksmiths who volunteered to pitch wheat sheaves ended the day with their calloused hands blistered again from pitchforks.

WINTER OF FLAILING

The first threshing crews wielded flails, devices almost as old as agriculture itself. Later, oxen trod out wheat on a threshing floor. Until well into the 19th century, many American farmers spent the winter months flailing and winnowing wheat.

By 1825, horse-powered machines successfully threshed wheat. With steam power, threshing machines came into their own, though some farmers distrusted them, fearing that blowers expelled good grain along with straw and chaff.

reductions in their allocations of gasoline and fuel oil of from five to 15 percent. Most said they expect further cutbacks.

Sherman Thomas of the East Jordan Co-op said his company was passing on the reduced allocations to its customers across the board.

Only one distributor, Louis McKenzie of Charlevoix, who handles Total Leonard products, said he was receiving 100 percent of his 1972 allocation.

"We've already made our 15 percent reduction because of the warm weather," he said.

Complicating the gasoline picture in the Boyne Mountain area is the fact that two independent stations undersold major line dealers last year, reducing total gallonage sold by the major line dealers. Now the independents have had their fuel supplies reduced and the major line dealers are being allocated fuel on the basis of their reduced gallonage last year.

Another factor affecting Boyne Country is the fact that the ski business was down 40 percent because of the poor skiing after last Jan. 15. As a result, stations sold far less gasoline than they would normally, yet most present allocations are based on 1972 sales.

Merle Lutz, manager of the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, asked Sen. Davis if it might be possible for northern Michigan to be allocated more gasoline, "not for ourselves but for our visitors."

Davis said he wasn't at all optimistic, but that he would ask Gov. William Milliken to see what he could do.

Little comment was made about President Nixon's suggestion that gas stations close at 9 p.m. Saturday and remain closed until midnight Sundays. More important, apparently, is whether or not area stations will have enough fuel for visitors, regardless of when they travel.

Chuck Mol of Boyne Mountain suggested that local chambers of commerce send several station operators to Florida for the month of December, providing they return Christmas week to supply skiers.

Davis said that legislation probably will be passed this month making it mandatory for dealers to supply new residents.

A second meeting of chamber of commerce representatives and fuel distributors has been tentatively scheduled for Thursday in Lansing to work out details of a program to encourage gasoline station operators to limit their hours during the week so that they will have enough gasoline for weekend and holiday visitors.

Of course, the problem of supply skiers with gasoline is academic, with no snow on the ground the first week in December.

Kircher says his ski areas probably will have their latest opening on record because of the unseasonably mild weather.

CONTEST WINNER

Sour Cream Twists A Holiday Treat

First winner in the Courier's cooking contest of Paula Thomas of Charlevoix. Ms. Thomas will receive a $10 prize for her recipe for German Sour Cream Twists, entered in the Fruit Cake and Christmas Cookie category.

Next week's recipe has to do with turkey – turkey leftovers, that is. Submit your favorite recipe on what to do with turkey leftovers to the Courier before 10 a.m. Friday, Dec. 7 and you may have an additional $10 to add to your Christmas shopping money.

GERMAN SOUR CREAM TWISTS

3½ C. sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 3 C. vegetable shortening
1 3 C. butter or margarine
1 pkg. active dry yeast
¼ C. warm water (105-115 degrees)
¾ C. dairy sour cream
1 whole egg plus 2 egg yolks, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 C. sugar
1½ teasp. ground cinnamon
¼ C. finely chopped nuts

Sift flour and salt into mixing bowl. Cut in the shortening and butter. Dissolve yeast in water. Stir into flour mixture along with sour cream, beaten eggs and vanilla. Mix well. Cover with damp cloth and chill 2 hours or longer (e.g. overnight).

Mix sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle part of it onto a board. Roll out half of dough into an oblong 8 x 16". Fold ends toward center, ends overlapping. Sprinkle with sugar-cinnamon mixture and roll again to same size. Pat on 1 Tblsp. nuts, sprinkle with more sugar and cinnamon, and fold ends to center again. Roll out to 8 x 10" rectangle, about ¼" thick.

Cut dough into 1 x 4" strips. Twist ends in opposite directions – stretching dough slightly – and dip in sugar-cinnamon mixture. Put in shape of horseshoe on greased baking sheets – pressing ends to keep shape.

Bake about 15 minutes – or until delicately browned – in a moderate (375) oven. Take from baking sheet immediately.

Repeat with second half of dough. Makes about 40 twists. These keep well in closed tins. The recipe also freezes well.

Death Claims Kit Carson, Retired Lumber Dealer

Charlevoix businessman and civic leader Kit Carson, 78, died unexpectedly at his home on Michigan-ave. Saturday evening of an apparent heart attack.

The funeral was scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 11, at the Winchester Funeral Home, the Rev. Raymond Giffin of the Congregational Church officiating. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

The son of Hannah and John Carson, Mr. Carson was born on the family farm near East Jordan Feb. 22, 1895, the 10th of 11 children. The only surviving member of the family is his younger brother, Delbert Carson, of East Jordan.

Mr. Carson attended East Jordan schools and was a storekeeper and road builder in East Jordan before becoming a building contractor.

He built many homes in the area, including the Ethel Wiesinger home on Petoskey-rd., the former Floyd Brown home near the corner of Park and Antrim-sts. and the Hans Wiemer home on Michigan-ave. and the remodeled Winchester Funeral Home. He also built many cottages and resorts.

On Aug. 2, 1926, he was married to the former Eleanor McBride, who had moved to East Jordan from Hamilton, Ont., and was working as a schoolteacher.

In the late 1930's, Mr. Carson decided to go into the lumber business and was on the verge of buying a business in Traverse City when he and Mrs. Carson decided they just wouldn't like living in the big city. They preferred the clean air of Charlevoix and established the Kit Carson Lumber Co. here in 1938.

"Kit always thought Charlevoix was a healthy place to live," Mrs. Carson recalls. "He told the story about encountering a very old man on the beach at Charlevoix one day. The old man was crying and Kit asked him why. 'They bawled me out for throwing stones at grandpa,' the old man said."

Mr. Carson sold the lumber business to Glenn Kenney in 1959.

Shortley after moving to Charlevoix, Mr. Carson joined the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and was an active member until the time of his death.

He was particularly interested in the Kiwanis' maple syrup project, proceeds of which went to the youth of Charlevoix.

He assisted in tapping the maple trees that line Charlevoix's residential streets and worked night and day for several weeks each spring boiling the sap into syrup at the Kiwanis "sugar shack" on Carson-ave.

Although he held almost every office in the local Kiwanis Club, he refused to serve as president, according to Ralph Hamilton, perennial secretary of the organization.

"Kit said the club had 'enough damn chiefs'," Hamilton recalls. "He was always more interested in working."

When Ivan Phillips retired from the County Board of Supervisors in April, 1962, former Charlevoix Mayor E. D. (Pat) Hawley appointed Mr. Carson as First Ward supervisor, with the approval of the council.

The role of supervisor (later commissioner) was to Mr. Carson's liking and he was re-elected to the post in 1964, 1966, 1968, 1970, and 1972.

The commissioners, who held their December meeting Tuesday, planned to attend Mr. Carson's funeral as a group.

Before moving to Charlevoix, Mr. Carson served as mayor of East Jordan and was secretary of the Charlevoix County Fair Board for several terms.

In addition to the Kiwanis Club, Mr. Carson was a member of the First Congregational Church.

He is survived by his widow; one son, Kit Carson jr. of Lansing; and five grandchildren.

Santa Due Saturday; Lions to Show Film

Charlevoix Lions and the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department have a big day planned for Charlevoix youngsters Saturday, Dec. 15.

Kids will be treated to a special motion picture at Cinema III for only a slight holiday donation, starting at 12:30 p.m.

Lions Club President Gordon Wellman says each child will be admitted by donating a can of food to the Lions' Christmas Food Project. The food will be donated to needy families before the holidays.

"A can of soup, beans, vegetables or fruit is all it takes," Wellman said.

Kids will see the movie "Billie," starring Patti Duke. Cartoons are also scheduled.

The movie is starting one hour earlier than usual so that kids will be out at 2:30 in time to meet Santa in East Park.

Santa's visit aboard a fire engine has been arranged by the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department. Kids who visit the old gent will receive a box of candy.

Courier Collecting Gifts for Baxters

Charlevoixans who would like to share their Christmas with the Don Baxter family which lost all of its possessions – including Christmas gifts – in a fire at their Boyne Falls home last Thursday may donate gifts at the Courier office.

The gifts will be delivered to the Baxters next Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Baxter, 34, said what hurt most was watching her childrens' Christmas gifts go up in flames. She had completed her shopping just before the fire at their 14-room home.

Baxter, 33, who expects to be laid off shortly from his $140-a-week job, says he can't afford to buy new presents for the kids.

The Baxters have eight children: Tim, 15; Lorie, 14; Don, 13; Rhonda, 12; Jim, 11; Terry, 9; and Chris and Ellen, 8.

The Baxters are staying with Mrs. Baxter's mother, Mrs. Ben Evans in Boyne City.

The fire apparently started when a space heater ignited a basket of laundry, pushed near it to dry. Volunteers fought the pre-dawn fire for five hours but were unable to save a thing.

Larry Crawford

Builder Joins Colwell

Larry Crawford is the latest addition to the sales staff of the Charlevoix Colwell & Co., real estate office, according to Donald Fuller, manager.

Crawford, his wife Debbie and two-year-old daughter Erin moved to Ironton from Owosso last summer.

Before entering the real estate business, Crawford owned his own contracting business in southern Michigan.

Mrs. Crawford is a Registered Nurse and works at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey.

The Crawfords are avid sailors and have been coming to Charlevoix for several summers in their sailboat, "Boson."

This summer and fall, Crawford has been active in local sailboat racing.

Fuller says he is pleased to have Crawford on his sales staff.

A-Leak Closes Big Rock

William Wilson, public information spokesman for Consumers Power Co., reports that a small low-level radiation leak at the Big Rock Point plant was detected by monitoring equipment early Saturday morning.

He said the leak had been contained within the sphere and that there was no danger to the public.

The leak occurred in valve packing on a steam line, Wilson said. The packing is being replaced.

The plant, which feeds electricity into Consumers' power pool, was shut down as soon as the leak was discovered.

Wilson said the plant will remain down until repairs are made and a number of safety checks have been completed.

He said the plant should be back in operation this weekend.

Yule Cantata Scheduled This Sunday

The Christmas cantata "Night of Miracles" will be presented by the enlarged choir of the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix Sunday, Dec. 16 at 7 p.m. at the church.

The choir is directed by Mrs. James McAlister. Mrs. Frances Boss is organist and Thom Mansen is pianist.

Cost of Hot Lunches To Jump 10¢ Jan. 1

Hot lunches at the Elementary School and the Middle School will cost more starting Jan. 1.

At its regular meeting Monday, the Board of Education agreed to hoost the cost of the Elementary School lunch from 35 cents to 45 cents. Weekly tickets will cost $2 instead of $1.50.

At the Middle School, the cost of lunches was increased from 45 cents to 55 cents. Weekly tickets will cost $2.50 instead of $2.

Adult meals at both schools will cost 70 cents.

Robert Bogart, school business manager, said the increases will put the hot lunch program in the black by the end of the year.

In other business the board:

–Accepted chassis and body bids on four new school buses. Charlevoix Oil Co. was awarded the chassis contract at $6,828 each, including a five-speed transmission. Hoekstra Truck and Equipment Co. of Grand Rapids was awarded the body contract at $5,085. Each bus will cost a total of $11,913.

–Hired Kathleen Lewis at Title 1 pre-school aide. She will succeed Mrs. Diana Phail who has resigned.

–Increased the salary of Mrs. Eleanor Ratigan, assistant downtown librarian, to $3 an hour.

–Agreed to hire an additional clerk-typist for the central office, but denied a request to hire a parttime attendance clerk-secretary for the high school. Administrators agreed informally that the new clerk-typist will be shared with the high school.

--Learned from Middle School Principal Miss Geraldine Stanko that the school has purchased a trampoline for $1,037.50 with funds from the malt machine. She said youngsters will be thoroughly checked out on trampoline safety before they are allowed to use it. She added that Middle School youngsters are helping to decorate the downtown Christmas tree, at the request of the city council.

--Heard a report by Fortin on how the high school reports and handles cases of excessive absenteeism.

–Endorsed the work of the North Central Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning Council, which serves an 18-county area.

JOHN CAMPBELL of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission, presented a plan for increasing Charlevoix's downtown parking to businessmen and council members Wednesday at the First State Bank. The commission proposes that a building authority be established by the city to build four downtown parking lots or structures. The council will consider the proposal at next Monday's meeting.

Residents Launch Drive To Find More Doctors

A group of Charlevoix residents has launched an all-out campaign to attract more doctors to the area, according to Mrs. Jeffrey Porter, 109 Prospect-st.

The group was to make a formal presentation on its efforts to date at a meeting of the Charlevoix Hospital Board of Directors Tuesday evening at 8 p.m.

The organization was formed after it was learned that Dr. Rodolfo Lorenzo plans to close his office in Charlevoix this month and move to the West Coast.

Dr. Lorenzo says that a warmer climate will be more agreeable to his wife. Both the Lorenzos come from the Philippines.

The group is busy writing letters to medical schools and hospitals the country over in search of doctors who might wish to locate in Charlevoix.

Members are especially interested in securing specialists in internal medicine and pediatrics.

Mrs. Porter says she feels that the conventional methods employed by the hospital board to attract more doctors to Charlevoix have insufficient. She also believes the hospital has done a poor job of public relations.

Members of the group include Mrs. Jack Uhrick, Bill Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wright, Mrs. David Roebuck, Mrs. Curtis Kipke, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. Donna McGerry, Mrs. Paul Stephan, Mrs. Paula Thomas, Mrs. Pat Hawley, Mrs. Michael Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pace, Tom Merta and Robert Lieberman.

First Snow Probably Won't Last

The first bonafide "snow storm" of the season arrived in Charlevoix Sunday night, dumping about three inches on the city and as much as seven inches on inland areas.

But the first fall won't be too helpful to area ski resort owners, because temperatures in the 30's and 40's are forecast for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, which should take most of it away before the weekend.

Rader Fire Called Arson

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol reports "a crude attempt at arson" in the remains of the Rader house on E. Dixon-ave. last Friday evening.

Mol says an unidentified male telephoned the fire department about 8:35 p.m. Friday to say the house was on fire.

Firemen discovered one support of the house burning. They also discovered gasoline-soaked rags and a gasoline can stolen from the Lodge storage shed next door on the Rader lawn.

The century-old house, formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rader, is being razed by the C. H. Smith Co.

Mol said attempts to locate the person who reported the fire have been futile.

TOM MERTA, general manager of Village Graphics at 111 Antrim st., examines huge camera which is used in offset printing process. The new business will hold open house Friday from 2 until 7 p.m. For story and more pictures, please turn to Page 7.

Onaway led at the half, 39-36 and widened its margin in the third period, 55-48.

Charlevoix turned in 21 points in the finale to Onaway's 16, but the last minute drive fell short of the mark.

CHS Cheerleaders Lead Busy Lives

By Pam Fochtman

Cheering on our athletes, planning the Friday Pep Assemblies, attending camps to improve their skills, are our smiling 1973-74 Charlevoix High Cheerleaders.

These girls devote much of their time to plan for the games and assemblies. They spend many hours a week practicing new cheers, reviewing, and preparing for games.

Our Varsity Cheerleaders are: Tori Alger, Nancy Berg, Marge Carey, Sue Fowler, and Shelly Warner. The two alternates are Ellie Carey and Ann Buday.

The Junior Varsity girls include: Jodi Alger, Donna Bellows, Denise Boss, Lynn Bradley, and Shelly Wood. The J.V.'s have no alternates.

Freshman girls, who by the way cheered for our 1973 Girl's Basketball team in the tournament, are Terri Hufford, Debbie Monteith, Gail Powell, Rita Wasoski, and Julie Wimmer. Kay Currie and Donna Jones are alternates.

Mrs. Janet Langeland is the 1973-74 cheerleading advisor.

Fuel Story Misunderstood

Sherman Thomas, manager of the East Jordan Co-op, says misunderstanding has arisen from the "Clockwise" column which appeared in last week's Courier.

The column was a reprint from March 28, 1973 and pointed out that public officials were aware of the worsening energy crisis even then. The East Jordan Co-op was mentioned as one of the area businesses affected by shortages of fuel oil.

Thomas reports that since then, the firm's contract with Sun Oil Co. has been renewed and that fuel allocations are running 95 percent of what they were for the same month last year. Gasoline allocations are 90 percent of what they were one year ago.

Some area residents have contacted the Co-op fearful that the company was running low on fuel. Thomas says this is not the case.

Former Chamber of Commerce Manager Thomas Merta is general chairman of the new business, which will specialize in quick print and quality print orders and all kinds of graphic arts services.

The company plans open house at its new quarters this Friday, Dec. 14, from 2 until 7 p.m.

Visitors will be offered a tour of the premises. There also will be coffee, cookies and other refreshments.

New Printing Shop Located on Antrim

Partners in the business with Merta are Sam Supernaw, who also will maintain an accounting practice in the building, and William Supernaw, associate and partner.

The three men purchased the former Palace Theater in Charlevoix last December and reopened it as the Cinema III.

Village Graphics originally was organized as a subsidiary of Cinema III but will become a corporate entity in the near future.

Other members of the staff are salesman Peter Pace, who will become a partner after Jan. 1; salesman Larry Wallace, pressman Harold (Sonny) Lang, bookkeeper Yvonne Archambault and receptionist Suellen Totten.

Miss Totten also will handle calls coming into the Charlevoix Answering Service which has been purchased by the corporation. The service presently has 12 clients in the Charlevoix area, but is capable of handling up to 30.

New equipment purchased by Village Graphics includes an IBM composer-justifier for the setting of body type, a Varitype headliner with 30 different fonts, a Nu-Arc platemaker for the processing of printing plates, a small quick-print press and a larger Hamada Star press capable of running up to four colors at 9,000 impressions an hour.

The shop also has a large wall-mounted camera in the darkroom, a binding machine, a drill press for orders requiring binding perforations and a folder.

The quick-print operation is set up for the rapid processing of printing orders — four minutes from camera to press.

Before his appointment as manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce almost three years ago, Merta was an advertising salesman for the Petoskey News-Review, the Gaylord Herald-Times and other publications.

He also has sold automobiles, owned and operated Indian Totem Village in the Upper Peninsula and ran a restaurant in Kegomic while a student at North Central Michigan College.

Sam Supernaw is a CPA who maintains his own practice in Charlevoix. William Supernaw is a radio announcer for station WJML in Petoskey.

HAROLD (Sonny) Lang is pressman for Village Graphics. Here he operates four-color Hamada Star press which is capable of making 9,000 impressions an hour.

SAM SUPERNAW is treasurer of Village Graphics, Inc.

SALESMAN Larry Wallace works on layout on light table at Village Graphics.

YVONNE Archambault is bookkeeper and office manager.

SUELLEN TOTTEN is receptionist. She also handles calls to the Charlevoix Answering Service.

PETER PACE has joined the staff at Village Graphics as a printing salesman.

Fairbanks and Devine: Their Paths Still Cross

(Following are excerpts from a story about Charlevoix's Chuck Fairbanks and Dan Devine, former coach at East Jordan, which appeared in a recent issue of the Green Bay Press-Gazette prior to the recent game between the Green Bay Packers and the New England Patriots. Devine now coaches the Packers and Fairbanks the Patriots.)

By Lee Remmel --

For them (Dan Devine and Chuck Fairbanks), Sunday's session will be another in a long series of reunions, both personal and professional.

Devine and Fairbanks, it develops, go back a long way. It all began in 1948, the year the Packers' diminutive leader, then fresh out of the University of Minnesota-Duluth, launched his coaching career in East Jordan, Mich.

"East Jordan's big rival is Charlevoix, which is located 12 miles away," Devine explained in fond reflection. "When I came to East Jordan, Charlevoix had a long winning streak going in football, 50 some games, and another unbeaten string in basketball which I also coached at the time.

"And Chuck Fairbanks was the big star for Charlevoix in both sports. In my first year at East Jordan, we broke both of those streaks. We tied Charlevoix in football, 0-0, and beat them in basketball.

"Chuck and I have been crossing paths ever since," Devine said. "In fact, he married a girl who was the head cheerleader for East Jordan, a firl named Puddy Thompson. She also was our baby sitter.

A twinkle in the eye, he added, "I had Puddy in three classes in school, too. I once gave her a 'B' when she should have had a 'C'. I even remember the class — it was international relations.

"Chuck and I got together again a little later on when I was an assistant coach at Michigan State. He was on my freshman team along with Rollie Dotsch (Packer offensive line coach) and Hank Bullough, who is now Chuck's defensive coordinator with the Patriots."

Even though Devine moved on to become head coach at Arizona State, the association shortly was to resume in somewhat poetic fashion.

"When I left Arizona State for Missouri," Devine reported, "Frank Kush, who was my line coach, succeeded me as head coach and he hired Chuck Fairbanks as his assistant.

"So Chuck came to Mesa on his own immediately just as I was moving out. But my family was still there when ho came. Chuck was taken ill with some kind of virus and my wife, Jo, took care of him – nursed him back to health. I've always kidded him about that."

For a time thereafter, their paths diverged as Devine was building a national coaching reputation at Missouri and Fairbanks was moving on to the University of Houston.

Fairbanks, however, subsequently joined the University of Oklahoma and he and Devine once again became coaching rivals, this time in the Big Eight Conference.

Devine later was sufficiently impressed with Fairbanks' constricutions to the Scooners' success that he offered him a position on his Missouri staff.

"Oklahoma offered Chuck a promotion, however, and he took it," Devine said. "And, the way things turned out, it proved to be the right decision for Chuck."

We Were Fortunate He Lived Among Us

How characteristic of the late Kit Carson that he seldom if ever had his picture taken staring into a camera lens.

When the editor of the Courier secured the files Sunday night for a picture of Kit to be used in connection with his obituary which appears on Page 1 this week, we could not find a single "head and shoulders" photo of him.

Kit Carson

There was a picture of Mr. Carson breaking ground for the new County Jail on Garfield-st.

And another of him drilling a hole in a sugar maple tree on Dixon-ave. for the Kiwanis Club's annual maple syrup project.

And yet another of Kit manning the big syrup boilers at the "sugar shack" on Carson-ave.

We didn't have a single picture of Mr. Carson "doing nothing."

All of which is a pretty fair comment on the man and the life he lived. He was always busy "doing something", usually for the benefit of somebody else.

And those somebodies invariably were the children of Charlevoix, who have benefitted for years from his efforts to raise money for the Kiwanis Youth Foundation.

It is also typical of Mr. Carson that he repeatedly refused the presidency of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, claiming there already were "enough damn chiefs." He preferred to work.

And work he did, whether tending the immaculate flower beds around his home on Michigan-ave., serving on the County Board of Commissioners, boiling sap at the "sugar shack" or, in his younger years, building roads and homes and selling lumber.

Mr. Carson's unexpected death Saturday night came as a shock to most Charlevoixans. Although he had suffered several heart attacks, he always sprang back seemingly with renewed vigor.

Although we will sorely miss his wit and his wisdom, the people of Charlevoix and East Jordan are fortunate that he lived among us.

Save Energy, MS Students Urge Us All

Charlevoix Middle School
7th Grade Social Studies
Current Issues Class
Teacher: Mr. Pierce

Dear Mr. Bob Clock:

We, the 7th Grade Social Studies Class, are writing this letter to you because we are working on a project in Mr. Pierce's 2nd hour Current Issues Class so that we may save energy in the homes as well as in industry.

We were thinking if we could put something in the newspaper we might be able to encourage people to save energy right in their own homes or just get people to try to save energy.

Would you put this in the newspaper? Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mr. Pierce's
7th Grade SS Class

STOP!

You're wasting all that energy! How about it?

Can you try to save some of our energy?

Instead of using that dishwasher, do it by hand. This way you can save energy. Don't use your lights so often. Turn them off when you don't need them.

Don't use all those electrical things. This way you're saving energy.

Don't drive the car that one block. Walk instead.

Try it. You'll like it! Please give it a try!

Please, if you have tried things like this, notify Mr. Pierce or a member of his 2nd hour Social Studies Class, Charlevoix, Middle School. Thank you!

Mr. Pierce

The Santa Story

By BOB CLOCK

If I had my way kids would go right on believing in Santa Claus until they are ready for Social Security. Realization that the old man with the white beard is not all he's cracked up to be can be a traumatic experience for many youngsters.

And it's not so easy on their parents, either.

With four kids at our house ranging in age from one year to nine years, we have more than our share of Doubting Thomases.

Katie, the oldest, has smelled a rat for years, but she won't really commit herself and cut herself off from a good thing.

Several years ago, when she first publicly questioned the reality of Santa Claus, Judy came up with what I consider a superb answer.

Santa is the one who loves you most," she said.

Katie's eyes grew big and brimmed with tears.

"I thought you and daddy loved me most," she said.

"We do," Judy answered.

But if Katie made the connection, she hasn't let on to date. All of which goes to show you can believe what you want to believe.

Jennifer, age seven, is non-committal but she is testing us this year by not telling us what she wants for Christmas. She plans to give her list to Santa the first time she goes to see him. If she gets all the requested loot, Santa is for real. If he fails to come through he's a cheap fraud.

All of the kids except Danny are a little suspicious of the old man who shows up at the County Bank once a year to shower candy on youngsters and pose with them for pictures. Somehow in their little minds they've got that particular Santa Claus all mixed up with Dr. Walter Hoffmann. It has something to do with Santa's faint German accent and the fact he calls Katie "Kathy." Dr. Hoffmann is the only person who calls Katie "Kathy" in the length and breadth of Charlevoix.

Apparently Katie has passed her suspicions on to her little sisters.

The other day, Judy and the kids were trotting down Bridge-st. when four-year-old Allison spotted a big stuffed Santa Claus in the Portside Sports window.

"Oh look!" she squealed. "There's Dr. Hoffmann!"

And nobody corrected her.

I can't really remember when I stopped believing in Santa Claus, if I ever did. I do know that I was terribly concerned about the fact that we didn't have a fireplace in our house on Larchmont-ave. in Detroit and I was always worried about Santa having to plummet down our chimney into the coal furnace in the basement.

I wanted to douse water on the fire Christmas Eve so he wouldn't burn himself, but I was always voted down by my parents who preferred warmth to any closing of Bobby's credibility gap.

However they never objected when I left milk and cookies on the kitchen table for our nocturnal visitor, along with a few carrot sticks for his reindeer. The milk, cookies and carrots were always gone in the morning, and there was a polite "thank you" note from Santa in their place.

My kids also leave little snacks for Santa and his reindeer. However, I have convinced them that Charlevoix is one of Santa's last stops and the old man is pretty tuckered out when he gets here.

"What Santa would really appreciate is a nice martini," I tell them.

I also have them convinced that reindeer like nothing better than blue cheese and garlic toast.

"It tastes like tundra," I explain.

There will come a time, I suppose, when all of my tribe will have joined the ranks of skeptics. But I'm not looking forward to the day. Because of the Santa story, we all have a chance to be kids again once a year – for those, few magic fleeting moments when the children spill into the living room on Christmas morning.

Sorgum May Hold Key To World-Wide Nutrition

For millions of the world's poor, the next decade may bring famine–or the end of chronic malnutrition.

Some authorities have predicted growing population will outstrip food supplies in the 1980's and lead to mass starvation. Now, scientists think discovery of protein-rich sorghum may avert the crisis.

One of the oldest cultivated grains on earth, sorghum is the staple food of more than 300 million people, principally in the poorer nations. But though it quells hunger, it provides little nutrition, the national Geographic Society says.

BUT THERE'S HOPE

Now Purdue University scientists who analyzed more than 9,000 varieties of sorghum have found two that do offer adequate nutrition. Both strains contain a protein-making chemical the researchers believe can be transferred to other types of sorghum.

Dr. John A. Hannah, administrator of the Agency for International Development, which supported the studies of the grain, says that "improving its protein quality will amount to a gift of life...."

Annual grasses that grow from 3 to 15 feet tall, sorghums are coarse plants with extensive, shallow roots and leaves that roll up in dry weather to minimize the loss of water.

Able to flourish in arid soil or where the growing season is too short for other cereal grains, sorghum is harvested throughout much of the world.

It is known by many names, including kafir corn, Egyptian corn, Quinea corn, great millet, and Indian millet. In Indian it is called jowar, cholu, or jonna, while in China it is kaoliang.

Millet, or sorghum, was harvested in Egypt as early as 2200 B.C., and some agricultural scientists believe it may have been man's first cultivated crop, long before there were written records.

Millet, or sorghum, remained the principal food of millions of Europe's poor through the Middle Ages. In the 19th century it was gradually replaced by wheat, rye, corn, and potatoes.

Chest Drive Falls Short of Goal

The Charlevoix Community Chest has only reached 85 percent of its 20,000 goal for 1973, according to Gordon W. Wellman, president.

Wellman said that unless additional donations are received, the community health, recreation and service agencies which receive assistance from the chest will have to be cut back in their allocations across the board.

He said collections in recent weeks have slowed to a "near standstill."

At the bottom of the collection list is the profesional division which has reported donations of only $355 to date -- about 22 percent of the division goal.

Also far off the mark is the commercial division, which has collected $1,578, or slightly more than 56 percent of its goal.

The residential division stands at 85.2 percent, with collections of $2,567. The industrial division is at 89.9 percent, with collections of $5,757.98.

Making the best showing to date is the summer residents division which has reached 95 percent, for a total of $5,900.

"We wish to appeal to all individuals and business organizations who have not forwarded their contribution to do so as soon as possible," Wellman said. "Records show that if all who contributed last year would give a similar amount this year, the 1973 campaign would go over the top."

Wellman said checks should be made payable to the Charlevoix Community Chest, P. O. Box 532, Charlevoix, Mich., 49720.

Soup To Nuts

THE AMERICAN people have added their share of words to the English language. But no one to date has come up with a word for a phenomena which has been with us for more than 70 years – those ungainly chunks of frozen slush, sand and motor oil that collects on the bottom of automobiles during winter driving. They sometimes grow to tremendous proportions and are the next thing to being hideous. No matter how often you kick them off, they always grow back. C'mon, now. There must be a name for them. Any suggestions?

REMEMBER DAISY, the cow on the Neil Jones' farm that gave birth to a two-headed calf several weeks ago? Daisy has recovered from her caesarian operation and is doing nicely, but it is unlikely that she will ever be able to have another calf. The two-headed calf, incidentally, wasn't an entire loss. It was sold to an East Jordan taxidermist for $25.

DICK LYONS reports that the Mackinac Islander, the little cargo boat that used to ferry logs from Hog Island to Charlevoix for the Manthei Veneer Mill, sank off the Aleutian Islands several months ago with the loss of all hands. After leaving Charlevoix, the sturdy little craft joined the Alaskan crab fleet, known for its high mortality of ships and sailors.

IF YOU'D like to take a look at the South Shore, which will make runs between Charlevoix and Beaver Island next spring, you'll find her docked on Round Lake, near the Charlevoix Lumber Co. The ferry formerly served ports in western Lake Erie.

NEXT TIME you remove a staple from a sheaf of papers, dispose of it carefully. Fran Martin was enroute to the Charlevoix School Board meeting last Monday in her electrically operated chair when she had a flat tire. The fellows from Muma's Sunoco wheeled her inside, put the chair on a jack with Fran still in it, removed the wheel and found a large staple imbedded in the tire. Fran's new chair, by the way, has arrived in Charlevoix but is being modified to suit her needs.

City Office Petitions Are Due Dec. 31

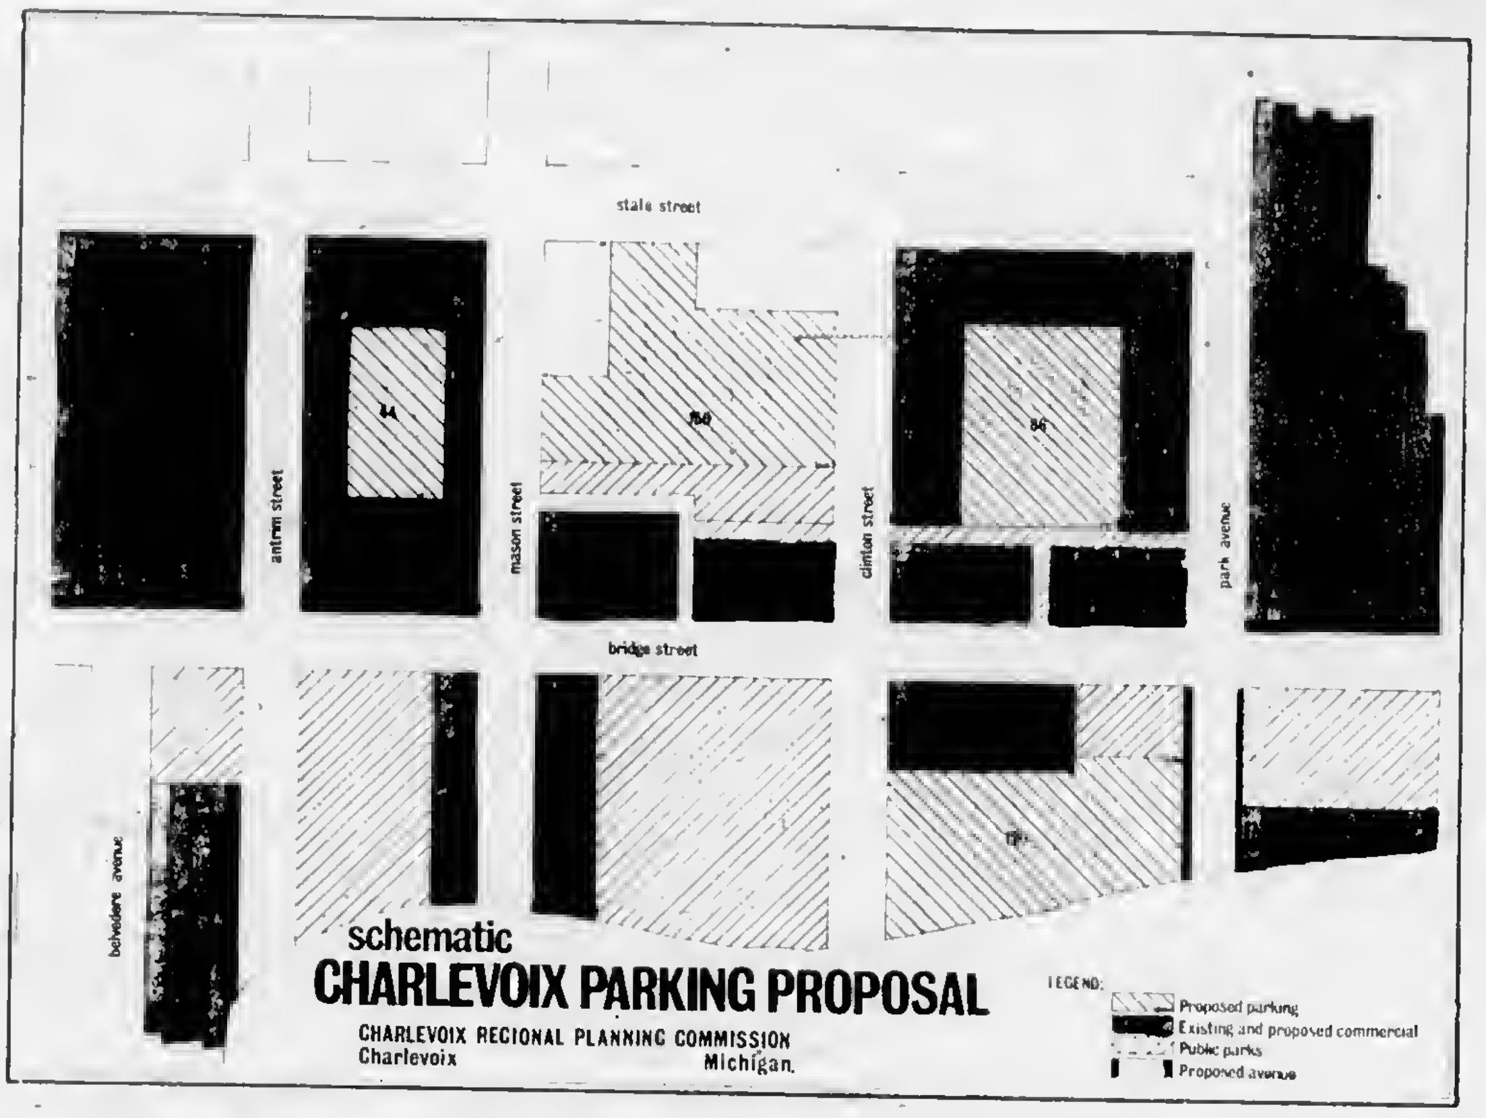
Deadline for filing petitions for city offices is Dec. 31, according to City Clerk Ida Heise.

The terms of First Ward Alderman Sam Supernaw, Second Ward Alderman Robert Timms and Third Ward Alderman Gerald Selph are expiring.

Supernaw doesn't intend to run again, but Timms and Selph said Monday that they probably will file petitions.

The terms of Mayor Edward P. Hansen, Mrs. Heise and City Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham also are expiring. All three plan to file for re-election. The primary election will be in February.

City Mulls Parking Plan



DRAWING by John Campbell shows location of proposed parking lots in downtown Charlevoix. Campbell, a member of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission, has suggested that the City Council establish a building authority to buy land and construct the lots.

Building Authority Weighed

Although only two members of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission attended the city council meeting Monday night, the commission's new plan for the establishment of a building authority to solve the city's parking problems was the chief item on the agenda.

The commission has suggested that the city OK a building authority and adopt a set of by-laws as the first step in acquiring more downtown land for parking.

Specifically, the commission has recommended three sites between Bridge and State-sts. and one site at the present parking lot near the city dock.

Only members of the commission present were Alderman Richard Fochtman and John Haggard.

Oscar Ward and Bill Peters attended the meeting to object to establishment of a building authority on grounds that such a group would usurp powers which rightfully belong to the council.

When it was pointed out that members of the council simply don't have the time to work on the details of a parking project, Ward and Peters suggested that a committee of local businessmen take on the project and report back to the council.

One of the staunchest supporters of the building authority concept was Max Novak, who praised the Planning Commission for the work it has devoted to the project. He said he has talked to businessmen in Gaylord who are enthusiastic about the results of their Parking Authority.

He said that increase parking is "a necessity" for Charlevoix, "something you have to do."

He added that he would be willing to "pay my share."

The council discussed

Last Rites Held Tuesday For Attorney Norm Ance

Funeral for attorney Norman D. Ance, 59, was to be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Winchester Funeral Home, the Rev. Raymond H. Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiating. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Ance, who was appointed Charlevoix city attorney last August, died Sunday morning at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey where he had been a patient three days.

He formerly served as city attorney for 17 years in the 1940's, 1950's and early 1960's.

Born in Charlevoix Oct. 4, 1914, he was the son of the late Peter and Alice Ance. He attended Charlevoix schools and graduated from Charlevoix High School, receiving his law degree from the Marquette University School of Law in Milwaukee.

He was admitted to the Michigan Bar in 1938 and served as county prosecutor from 1939 to 1941.

After serving in the U.S. Navy during World War II, he returned to Charlevoix to open a law practice.

Mr. Ance was instrumental in forming the Charlevoix Development Corp. and the Mt. McSauba Recreation Corp. He also wrote the charter for the Charlevoix Area Hospital and served as the hospital's legal counsel.

He was a member of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association and served as president of the organization. He also belonged to the Michigan Bar Association.

He attended the First Congregational Church.

He is survived by his widow, the former Mrs. Eileen Duty whom he married in 1970; two sons, Peter D. and James M., both of Charlevoix; and two brothers, Dr. Lysle D. Ance of Charlevoix and Roy Ance of Milwaukee.

Persons wishing to honor his memory are asked to contribute to the charity of their choice in his name.

County Buys 3 City Lots

Charlevoix county has purchased three parcels of land adjacent to the present county building and annex.

The property will be used eventually for parking and expansion of county facilities as needed.

Commissioner Kenneth Staley of the Building and Grounds Committee said details of the transactions were finalized early this week.

Staley said cost of the three parcels comes to $76,000.

The property includes the home of Mrs. Ingma Pontious at 204 Mason-st., the Jack Fels property at 206 Mason-st. and the Dan Steelman property (the former Dutcher property) at 205 Antrim-st. The lots are 66 feet wide.

150 Wrestlers to Take Part in CHS Tourney

Approximately 150 northern Michigan wrestlers, accompanied by their coaches, parents and friends, are expected in Charlevoix this Saturday, Dec. 22, for the first annual Holiday Invitational Wrestling Tournament to be held at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

The tourney will be sponsored by the Charlevoix Police Officers Association in cooperation with the High School Athletic Department, according to CHS wrestling coach Norm Probert.

Schools which have accepted invitations to attend are Elk Rapids, Frankfort, Gaylord, Glen Lake, Grayling, Hillman, Kalkaska, Mancelona, Marion, Roscommon and Whittemore-Prescott.

All of the schools are Class C or D which have had wrestling teams for about the same length of time, Probert said. He added that most of the other tourneys involve schools with larger enrollments and wrestlers from smaller schools seldom get beyond the first round.

Probert has a busy day lined up for the visiting wrestlers, who will compete in 12 different weight classes.

Weighing-in starts at 8:30 a.m. and will last about one hour and 15 minutes. After a breakfast break, preliminaries and quarterfinals are scheduled to start at 11:30 a.m. and will continue until about 4:30 when the dinner break has been scheduled.

Consolation bracket finals will start at 6:30 p.m. (third and fourth place) and championship finals at 7:30 p.m.

No meals will be served at the high school, but a map will be posted indicating the many restaurants in town.

Council Lauds Carson, Ance

The City Council Monday night passes resolutions lauding Norman D. Ance and Kit Carson for their services to the community.

Mr. Ance, city attorney, died Dec. 16. Mr. Carson, First Ward commissioner, died Dec. 8.

Winter May Be Here To Stay

It looks as though winter is here to stay.

The promised warming trend last week never materialized. Charlevoix had another three inches of powder on Saturday and most ski areas have opened for the winter.

Temperatures in the zero range were reported throughout the area over the weekend and early Monday, although it was slightly warmer Tuesday morning.

Prospects are good for a White Christmas.

A-Plant Takes Advantage of Shut-Down

Consumers Power Co. is taking advantage of the emergency shut-down at its Big Rock Point nuclear plant to perform other maintenance chores.

R.A. Lamley, vice president for bulk power operations, reported last week that the plant would remain down several days longer than anticipated to allow for additional maintenance work to be carried out.

The nuclear plant was shut Dec. 8 after monitoring equipment revealed a leak of radioactive steam from a one-inch valve in the drum-water level instrumentation.

The company reported that all of the radioactive material was contained within the sphere.

The leak developed in the packing around the valve.

Moose Jaw Safari Scheduled Jan. 12

History has a way of repeating itself and the veteran of all snowmobile events - the Moose Jaw Safari - will be held at Harbor Springs, Saturday, Jan. 12, 1974

Leonard Ward, Trailmaster for the event, says trail conditions should be perfect for the 300 machines which are expected to make the 40-mile safari.

Registration and parking will be at the City Warming House at the ice rink off Hoyt Street starting at 8:30 a.m. and free coffee and rolls will be served. The Safari will start at 9:30 a.m. sharp, and a coffee break at Larks Lake Bar at 11:00 will provide a "warm-up" prior to heading for the famous Moose Jaw bean pot at Johnston's Park.

For the 9th year, the Moose Jaw Safari will follow the same basic pattern, but will have several new innovations to add interest for the old-timers. Various stops will be staged during trip - an "after glo" at the Larks Lake Bar and four bonfires at Johnston's Park will be some of this year's highlights.

The MOOSE JAW SAFARI is recognized as the first sponsored Safari in the state. Started in 1965 with 16 snowmobiles, it has grown to where 300 machines follow the trailmaster. A free shoulder patch is given to each driver. The event is a project of the Harbor Springs Chamber of Commerce.

Intramural Sports At Middle School

By Pam Fochtman

The Middle School has something new: Intramural athletics.

During January, February and March, the school will offer after-hours instruction in basketball, volleyball, ping-pong, gymnastics and calisthenics.

Either cross country or downhill skiing may be offered, depending on which is the most popular.

The after-school activities have been scheduled for Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays.

Anyone interested in working with the youngsters in the various activities should contact Mr. Evans at the Middle School.

Bell Co. Officials Trace Growth in Charlevoix

Business and civic leaders and government officials from Charlevoix Dec. 6 were given a consumer report on the problems and successes of Michigan Bell in providing communications services.

Warren B. Alexander, Michigan Bell general manager, presented the report to the group at a company-sponsored Town Meeting during a luncheon held at The Shed.

Michigan Bell manager Kenneth T. Harrold introduced Alexander and other telephone company people present. Harrold also discussed local telephone growth and progress.

Alexander said his responsibilities included not only quality service for the Charlevoix area, but also a sharing of information about phone service with local customers.

"Part of our service job has been to ensure that we have the people and equipment to provide needed service and avoid shortages of communications in this state," Alexander said.

He added that while Michigan Bell has been working to ensure an abundance of communications, the company also has made significant progress in improving the quality of communications.

"Back in 1969, with our financial ability seriously impaired, we made the decision to protect the basic quality of our service–and to do everything we could to improve it," he said.

"At that time, our service was fairly good throughout most of the state, and when we compared ourselves with 20 other Bell System companies on a number of internal quality controls, we were generally around the average," Alexander said.

Every Bell System company uses these same internal quality controls to measure that most intangible of products – service.

"Since we don't have a car rolling down the assembly line that we can inspect, this is our best means of trying to ensure that every customer gets high quality courteous service," Alexander explained.

"So, we set ourselves the goal of being in the top fourth of all Bell System companies in every major quality measurement of service," he said. "We've reached that goal in three-fourths of our service measurements."

Other methods the company employs to keep abreast of service quality are customer surveys; company service action teams, which give special help to more than 60,000 customers a year, and an annoyance call bureau which aids customers who have problems with abusive, obscene or annoying calls.

On the equipment side, Alexander pointed out that calls need switching machines to reach the network. Four of these machines, at a cost of $30 million each, already are in service in Michigan. Two more will be added by the end of the year, and eight more will be installed by 1978.

These are in addition to the 82 microwave towers that also help to get calls into and out of Michigan.

Included in annual construction monies, which will total more than $350 million this year, is a rural improvement program.

Michigan Bell has a $45 million four-year program to improve rural service. Nearly 40,000 customers will have received a better grade of service by the end of this year.

Alexander said that although the company had its share of equipment problems, "we continued to think enough of our product to guarantee to repair it without charge not for just 90 days, or two years, but for as long as the customer cares to keep it."

Alexander said in this era of inflation and continuing rising costs for almost everything, most people are unaware of how little telephone rates have increased.

He said, for example, the cost of living had gone up nearly 50 percent in the 12-year period from 1960 to 1972. But, he added, considering both the increases in phone rates and the six rate decreases in that same period, Michigan rates today are only 4.4 percent more than they were in 1960.

He said if the company receives the total amount of its current request for a rate increase from the MPSC, telephone rates will have increased about 9 percent since 1960.

Alexander explained the company's request to charge for excessive calls to Information.

He said that Michigan Bell learned from a recent three-month study that more than 33 percent of telephone customers don't call Information at all in a given month; that 75 percent of them make less than five calls a month, but that 10 percent make about 60 percent of all calls to Information.

"It would be much fairer to all our customers to give every one an allowance of five calls a month, and then charge 10 cents a call for those who use the service more than the allowance.

"In this way, those who use the service will pay more – instead of imposing those costs on all customers," Alexander said.

Alexander commented on the statewide energy saving program Michigan Bell has enacted. It has restricted company vehicles to 50 miles per hour, urged employees to form car pools, cut down all unnecessary lighting and reduced temperatures in company buildings.

Humidity Key to Comfort At Low Temperatures

If lowering your thermostat to a fuel - conserving 68 degrees has left you feeling chilly, try boosting the humidity.

"Lack of moisture in the home means loss of moisture from the skin," says Ceel Van Den Brink, National Weather Service meteorologist at Michigan State University. "That makes a person feel colder than the thermostat says he should feel. So he tends to keep pushing room temperatures a little higher and gradually increases fuel consumption."

By increasing the air's water vapor content, you reduce the loss of moisture from the skin and feel warmer, he explains.

The amount of water vapor in the air is usually expressed as "relative humidity." This is the ratio of water actually in the air to the amount of water vapor the air at that temperature can hold. The capacity for air to hold water vapor nearly doubles for every 20-degree rise in temperature, Van Den Brink explains. Therefore if we bring the cold outside air into our homes and heat it without adding moisture to it, the relative humidity drops drastically.

"For example," he says, "if the outside temperature is 30 degrees and the relative humidity is 50 percent, the same air brought into the home with no moisture added would have a relative humidity of only 12 percent at 70 degrees."

Though cooking, washing, bathing and growing plants add some moisture to the air, the amounts are generally insignificant. To avoid drying skin and nasal membranes, the buildup of static electricity, the loosening of furniture joints and that familiar chilly feeling, you have to find some way to put some moisture into the air.

You could use a humidifier built into your heating system or a separate unit. Your choice depends on the size of your home, how well it is insulated, whether there are storm windows and how much cooking and washing take place.

The level of humidity you can maintain depends in part on the outside temperature, Van Den Brink notes.

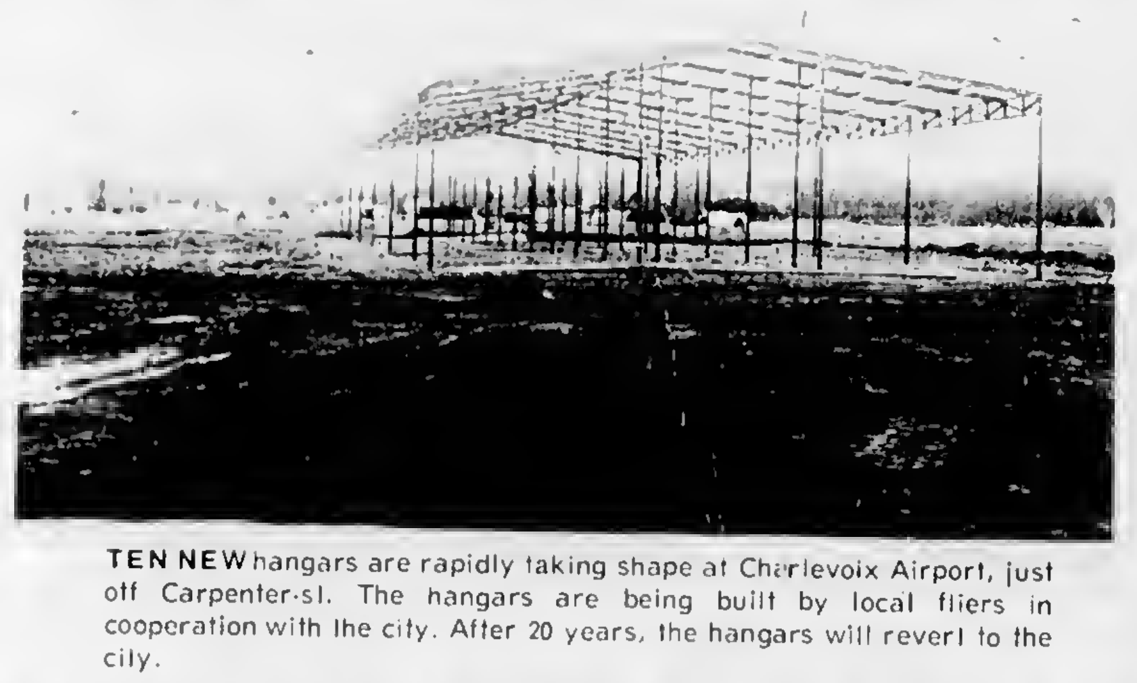
"A 35 to 40 percent level is usually adequate," he says, "but during very cold weather you may have to accept 25 percent, because condensation on windows may take moisture out of the air as fast as the humidifier adds it."

To avoid excessive condensation that may damage window frames, sills and walls, humidifier controls should generally be set at lower levels during extremely cold periods, he suggests.

"Watch the windows in your home," he advises. "If they are free of all moisture, chances are you can turn up the controls. If they're running with water, your controls are probably set too high."

Storm windows will cut down condensation and permit you to maintain higher humidity levels.

"Protect your health, provide for your personal comfort, keep the furniture from falling apart, but don't make the place dripping wet trying to cut down on fuel consumption," he urges.



TEN NEW hangars are rapidly taking shape at Charlevoix Airport, just off Carpenter-st. The hangars are being built by local fliers in cooperation with the city. After 20 years, the hangars will revert to the city.

Motion was made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderwoman Wallace that the City waiver the West side-yard requirement from ten (10) feet to one (1) foot and also waiver the rear-yard requirement of twenty-five (25) feet to allow John Malpeli of 204 Belvedere Avenue to tear down an existing garage and to erect a new garage attached to his house according to building permit No. 192. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Fochtman and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

Motion was made by Alderwoman Wallace and supported by Alderman Plumm that the City waiver the West sideyard requirement from ten (10) feet to five and one-half (5½) feet to allow Robert Camp to construct an addition along the western boundry of the existing garage, for purpose of storage of lawn mowers and tools in general, at 308 E. Dixon Avenue, according to building permit No. 170. Motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote: Yeas: Aldermen Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Fochtman and Plumm. Nays. None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

Attorney Hoffman was present to represent J.D. Goldman, in his request for a variance of the City Zoning Ordinance to build a storage building at 410 Dixon Avenue within three (3) feet per request of the Northern boundary of a common useage road running through his property. Attorney Hoffman asked to withdraw the request for variance to the City Ordinance, and asked that no action be taken until Council resumed its regular meeting.

Attorney Berlage was present to represent the adjoining property owners and neighbors - L.L. Elliott, Robert Camp, Frank Rothchild, Eugene Weston and the James Reis Estate.

Mr. Elliot and Mr. Camp voiced their objection to the City allowing the structure to be built.

City Attorney Ance suggested that they adjourn the hearing and study the legal matters and then make a determination. He offered to make the legal findings for the Council.

Motion was made by Alderwoman Wallace and supported by Alderman Plumm that the variance requested to construct an accessory building within four feet per Goldman drawing, of the northern boundary of a common useage road, running through the Goldman property be denied. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Fochtman and Plumm. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Supernaw.

Attorney Hoffman asked if his request to withdraw the request for a variance had been acted upon.

Mayor Hansen informed Hoffman that the Board of Appeals had only acted on the specific variance and appeal as incorporated in a notice to property owners within 300 feet of the Goldman property, dated November 8, 1973.

Attorney Michael was present to represent the owner of the Sand Castle on Park Avenue. He requested a waiver on the two overhanging balconies on the East side of the building, stating that Mr. Michaels, the owner, had agreed to reduce by two feet the balcony closest to Park Avenue.

Motion was made by Alderwoman Wallace, supported by Alderman Fochtman that Mr. Michaels request for a variance of five feet for the South Balcony on the East side and the variance of two feet for the North balcony on the East side of the building be granted as shown on a sketch presented. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Selph, Timms, Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Fochtman and Plumm. Nays: Alderman Timms. Absent Alderman Supernaw.

Motion was made by Alderman Timms and supported by Alderman Selph that the Board of Appeals will allow the present excess of six square feet of sign of Holiday Station, Inc., at 1402 South Bridge Street, if the sign is moved to the north side of the property from its present location by March 1, 1974 The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Selph, Timms, Fochtman, and Plumm. Nays: Alderwoman Wallace. Absent Alderman Supernaw.

The request of Vida Richardson for a variance on her property on the corner of May and Lincoln Street was put into committee for further study.

The Board of Appeals adjourned to the regular Council Meeting.

LIBBY Maynard, vice chairman of the State Democratic Party, was introduced by County Chairman Martin Paul of Boyne City.

Dems Thank Nixon For New Members

Charlevoix County Democrats voted at their December meeting Dec. 5 to send a letter of appreciation to President Richard Nixon for his assistance in the party's 1973 membership drive.

Party members figure that without Watergate and other scandals surrounding the president they would have had considerably more trouble exceeding their 1973 membership quota.

Principal speaker at the meeting was Ms. Libby Maynard, vice chairman of the Michigan Democratic Party.

Ms. Maynard said that Watergate has hurt the image of both political parties and will not be the deciding issue in the 1974 elections.

Instead, she said campaign issues will be the economy, crime, lack of planning for the energy crisis and the alienation of people from the government.

Next meeting of county Democrats will be Jan. 15 in Boyne City.

Ironton

Thomas Nielsen has returned home after being a medical patient several days in the Charlevoix Hospital.

The freighter Fred A. Manske unloaded crushed stone at the old company dock for Hodgkiss and Douma last week. This will no doubt be the last trip in for it looks as though winter is here to stay.

Diane Alexander is home for the holiday vacation from Grand Valley. Virginia Saunders is home from Mt. Pleasant for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Klon Johnstone of East Jordan were guests Sunday at the home of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kemp.

The Ferry has closed until further notice.

Our community wishes all its friends and neighbors both far and near A Merry Christmas.

DNR Completes 1973 Trout Stocking

Fall stocking of lake trout in Lakes Huron and Michigan was completed during October and November with a total release of 684,000 five-inch fingerlings and 240,000 three and one half inch fingerlings.

These fish were reared by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife at the Jordan River National Fish Hatchery near Elmira, Mich.

The total numbers of fish stocked by location were: Lake Michigan -- Grand Haven, Michigan 100,000; Kewaunee, Wisconsin 100,000; Sheboygan, Wisconsin 100,000; Lake Huron -- Hessel - Cedarville 75,000; Cheboygan, 209,000; Hammond Bay 100,000 and RockPort 240,000.

Combined with spring stockings, the total number of lake trout stocked by the Jordan River National Fish Hatchery during 1973 was 2,349,000 in Lake Michigan and 1,114,000 in Lake Huron. In addition to these, the Bureau's Pendills Creek National Fish Hatchery near Brimley, Mich., stocked a total of 160,000 in Lake Michigan and 1,233,000 in Lake Superior. All fish stocked during the spring ranged from 5 to 6 inches in length. These fish should be catchable size by 1974.

The Jordan River and Pendills Creek hatcheries are currently rearing five million fingerlings for release during 1974. During October and November the Jordan River Hatchery received ten million lake trout eggs from the Marquette, Michigan State Fish Hatchery. These eggs will provide about five million fish for release in Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron during 1975. The Great Lakes lake trout restoration program is a cooperative program between the Federal Government's Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, the states bordering the Great Lakes, and the Province of Ontario, Canada. The program is directed by the Great Lakes Fishery Commission.

The continuing restoration program began in 1952 in Lake Superior, 1965 in Lake Michigan and 1973 in Lake Huron following a successful sea lamprey control programs in each lake by the varions agencies. Since initiation of the program the Bureau's two lake trout hatcheries have stocked a total of 20,135,000 lake trout in Lake Superior, 20,571,000 in Lake Michigan and 1,114,000 in Lake Huron. Future plans are to expand the stocking program to include Lake Ontario.

Lake trout once provided the highest annual income to commercial fishing of any species in the Great Lakes. But the population declined to the point of near extinction during the 1940's through early 1960's in all lakes except Lake Superior. By the early 1960's natural reproduction had ceased in all lakes except a limited amount in Lake Superior because of a scarcity of mature fish. Some reasons for the population decline were predation by the sea lamprey, deterioration of water quality, and over fishing.

As a result of sea lamprey control and the restocking program, excellent lake trout sport fishing has now been restored to Lake Superior and Michigan. Survival and growth rate of hatchery reared and stocked fish have been excellent and in some areas lake trout are as abundant as in pre-lamprey days. The ultimate goal of the program is the re-establishment of spawning population that will support the highly popular lake trout fishery in the Great Lakes.

Girls Trim Patio Tree

By Regina Borths

The High School FHA Club has decided that Christmas is "for the birds."

The club recently sent out an appeal for a Christmas tree for the school patio, but there were no offers.

So at their meeting Dec. 11, members agreed to decorate the cherry tree now growing in the patio with strings of popcorn and cranberries and morsels of suet---"for the birds."

They figure they'll be doing their part in the energy crisis by not hanging any lights.

Club members also are working feverishly to complete the dolls which they will donate to needy children come Christmas.

Local Lodges Contribute $1,000 to Jackson Home

A contribution of $1,000 to the memorial fund of the Odd Fellow-Rebekah home at Jackson has been made by Round Lake Lodge No. 293, I.O.O.F., and its auxiliary, Rebekah Lodge No. 293, Sims Baker, District 56 Deputy Grand Master, has announced.

The local lodges which made this contribution boast memberships of approximately 28 members each and are among the smallest in the state.

"It is commendable that so few people can join together to raise this amount of money. I know it has meant hard work and sacrifices on your part," Philip Blalock of Midland, president of the I.O.O.F. - Rebekah Home Association told the more than 40 members and guests who gathered at the American Legion hall for a dinner and presentation ceremony.

Also on hand were Mrs. Doris Warren of Jackson, superintendent of the home which has facilities for 60 senior members of the two organizations.

Jerry Ford: Right Man at Right Time

(The following assessment of Vice President Jerry Ford of Michigan was submitted to the Courier by Sen. Robert P. Griffin. We would like to share it with you.)

These are difficult times for the American people, the Congress, and the President. The needs of the nation call for the right man in the right office at the right time, and Jerry Ford is the right-man for the country at this time in the Office of Vice President.

Jerry Ford is a man of character - at a time when the people of this country want assurance that those who held leadership responsibilities are men and women of integrity and principle.

Jerry Ford is a man of candor and sincerity - at a time when people are looking for openness and frankness in their leaders; when they want nothing so much as the plain, unvarnished truth.

Jerry Ford is a man of consistent commonsense and steady judgement - at a time when the people are looking for stability, stamina, and levelheaded strength for the long haul ahead.

Jerry Ford is a man of the Congress - at a time when the people are looking toward Congress for help in restoring confidence in our government and its institutions.

And Jerry Ford is a man of the center, respected across the whole broad spectrum of responsible political opinion - at a time when the people are looking for common ground and a basis for unity.

I look foreard now to working with Vice President Jerry Ford as he assumes his new duties as President of the U.S. senate.

This a good day for America. Let us hope it is a new day that will usher in a needed spirit of unity and cooperation.

State Woodlots May Ease Energy Crisis

Despite nationwide shortages of many consumer goods, there is still plenty of firewood for fireplaces and wood burning stoves -- at least in Michigan.

Lester E. Bell, Michigan State University extension forester, says Michigan woodlots contain an abundance of crooked, defective trees that make excellent fuelwood. He says the removal of these trees could help ease the energy crisis and would improve growing conditions in the woodlot.

"For years our extension forestry program at MSU has encouraged timber stand improvement by removing logging remnants and hollow, crooked or otherwise defective trees, as well as species of low value.

This leaves more growing room for healthy, straight trees of higher value," Bell explains.

Promoring these practices has been difficult, however, because there has been little or no market for low grade wood. Now, with the nation facing an energy shortage, fuelwood is in much greater demand, and Bell feels there is an excellent opportunity to improve timber standy by removing cull trees for fuel.

Hickory, white oak, sugar maple, yellow birch, beech, ironwood and black locust produce the greatest amount of heat per unit of volume. Elm, soft maple, cherry and pine are of medium value; aspen, basswood, cedar and cottonwood give the least amount of heat.

"Trying to evaporate water out of green or wet wood is a wast of energy," says Bell. "The best way to prepare wood for fuel is to cut it, stack it, and let it dry for three to six months in the open air before using."

Norman Ance Leaves Void At City Hall

The death of City Attorney Norman D. Ance Sunday came as a shock to most Charlevoixans.

Although Mr. Ance had been beset by personal and health problems for some time, his regular appearance at council meetings since his appointment as city attorney last summer indicated that the worst was over.

The old fire, the old precision that marked Mr. Ance as one of the finest legal minds in Charlevoix County were increasingly in evidence.

And he tackled city problems with an enthusiasm that has been sorely missing in recent years.

His death leaves a void in city government that Mayor Hansen and the council will find hard to fill.

Boater Finds Fault With Our Harbor

Dear Sir:

This article was in the December, 1973, issue of Rudder. It really disturbed me to read something like this about my home town – especially in a nationally read magazine.

Sincerely

Rona Harrison
1922 W. Hill-st.
Long Beach, Calif. 90810

(Editor's note: The article (letter) in question also was called to the Courier's attention by Rod Stebbins of the Irish Boat Shop. The text of the letter, which appeared in Rudder Magazine, follows:)

MADDENING MARINA

Sir: I'm writing just to sound off about the inadequate service my husband and I received at the city marina at Charlevoix, Mich., this past summer. I'm sure the delightful town and its people have no idea how inadequate their marina is.

Every boatman we've spoken to had a similar unpleasant experience there. It was quite apparent that the marina was not trying to promote return visits since the majority of its slips are not for use.

Most Michigan harbors had very high water, but most went out of their way to accommodate boatmen. Charlevoix was the one exception. It's truly a shame because I'm sure the townspeople want visitors.

Park Ridge, Ill.

Senator Bob Davis

DIRECT LINE

We have received many questions with regard to the new property tax relief act and over the next few weeks, we will try to explain various sections of it.

In May of 1973 the Legislature passed Act 20 providing for increased property tax relief and Act 19 which reduced the Intangibles Tax.

The Property Tax Relief Act 20 of 1973 sets up four categories under which a homeowner or renter may find homestead property tax relief. They are:

1. Senior Citizens, 2. Eligible Veteran, 3. Blind person, and 4. All other homeowners or renters.

In this edition of "Direct Line" we will only deal with the senior citizens portion of the property tax relief act.

The senior citizen will receive relief on their 1973 homestead property taxes in the same manner as in prior years. They will also receive additional credit on their 1973 Michigan income tax return, filed in 1974, for property taxes actually paid on the homestead. In the event there is no income tax due or the property tax credit exceeds the income tax, a refund will be made.

Before explaining how to compute the credit allowed under the various categories, the term "household income" needs explanation since it is a factor in determining the credit for all eligible taxpayers except disabled veterans and the blind. Household income means all income received by the claimant and spouse. It includes all income subject to Federal income taxes plus all other income. Following are some examples of the tupe of income, not subject to Federal income taxes that must be included in household income.

Social security and railroad retirement benefits.

Veterans pensions and disability payments.

Other pensions and annuities.

Interest on state and local obligations.

Unemployment insurance benefits.

Workmen compensation benefits.

Cash public assistance.

Child support payments.

Gifts in cash or kind in excess of $300.

A senior citizen is defined as a person 65 years or older and includes a husband and wife if either one has reached the age of 65 and the unremarried surviving spouse of a person who died after reaching the age of 65.

The senior citizen's property tax property taxes or 17 percent of rent paid for a homestead exceeds a certain percentage of income computed from the following table:

Household Income	Percent Not Refundable
Not over $3,000	.0 percent
Over $3,000. but not over $4,000.	1.0 percent
Over $4,000. but not over $5,000.	2.0 percent
Over $5,000 but not over $6,000.	3.0 percent
Over $6,000.	3.5 percent

Clockwise

Surprise! It's Christmas!

By BOB CLOCK

You'd think once---just once---Christmas wouldn't take the Clocks by surprise.

The kids, of course, have been aware of the big holiday for 365 days. In fact, they have been crossing off the days on the calendar since last July.

But Judy and I have been blithely ignoring the impending holiday with an indifference that would do credit to Marie Antoinette.

We didn't complete our out-of-town shopping until late, late Saturday. And although the gifts are wrapped, we can't find a box to mail them in. That may take another week or two.

The dining room redecorating that I had planned to have completed in September is still waiting. But I bought the paint Saturday and plan to apply it sometime this week. I hope it won't be too tacky on Christmas morning.

Judy has been planning to make fruit cake for months, but the ingredients were hard to come by. Have you looked for raisins recently? Particularly raisins at a price you can afford? We finally found some, but the cakes won't have time at this late date to age properly in their wine-soaked wrappings.

For the first time in years, Judy hasn't lined up any wood-working projects for me in the few scant days left before Christmas.

But she has a job lined up for herself - - a doll that requires turning on a lathe, which we don't have, plus no little amount of wood carving, painting and dress making.

As of last weekend, the wood was purchased and the wood-carving tools had arrived from grandma in Muskegon.

But the doll still looks more like kindling than anything a child would want to cuddle on Christmas morning.

Sometimes I grow weak when I drive past homes where the Christmas tree has been up for two weeks. Our tree is still growing somewhere.

And I am learning to hate everyone who mails his Christmas cards early.

Our cards were purchased last summer at the Art Fair, but they didn't come with envelopes.

Over, the weekend, I finally got around to picking up envelopes, only to discover they were the wrong size. We need square envelopes of a size I have never seen before.

But if our cards don't get in the mail on time, it won't be a first for the Clocks. Last summer Judy came across a stack of cards we had set aside last Christmas so we could write personal notes to distant relatives. The notes never got written, and the cards never got mailed.

We may just send them this year, if we get around to it.

Needless to say, the week before Christmas is going to verge on the chaotic at the Clock household. The only bright spot is the fact that Katie and Jenny will spend all week in school and won't be around the house inquiring about the tree and poking into mysterious bags and boxes stored all over the premises.

But I guess we're not alone and even those well-ordered souls who do their shopping early are having their problems.

Mrs. Bill Brady told me recently that her shopping is completed but she can't remember where she has hidden everything.

In some cases she can't even remember what she bought but she knows she bought something. She is going to have to go through her house from stem to stern before the holidays to find whatever it is she has hidden.

So the Clocks are not alone, thank goodness. And no matter how hectic the days before the holidays may be, Christmas always arrives on schedule and somehow everything — or almost everything — gets done.

If It Fitz

Another Crisis Passed

By JIM FITZGERALD

Foolish questions sometimes get brilliant answers and Bingo, a great problem is solved. Thus, thanks to Jim Campbell, you can quit worrying about the energy crisis.

Campbell is general manager of the Detroit Tigers. Usually his main job is hiring 2nd basemen that no one ever heard of except their mothers who are ashamed. But the other day he took a swing at the fuel shortage and hit a home run. Someone asked him if it wouldn't be a good idea to eliminate night games, thus saving all that electricity.

Campbell said no. In fact, he said the Tigers save electricity by playing under the lights instead of the sun. "If we've got 20,000 people in the ballpark at night," he explained, "that's 20,000 people who aren't using electricity at home."

Why didn't Nixon think of that?

There should be a night game in every town every night. Attendance should be mandatory. The 9-inning limit should be waived for the duration of the fuel emergency. Games should begin at dusk and end at dawn. No one should be allowed to leave the ballpark during the game without written permission from Hank Aaron.

What about ballparks with no lights? Campbell is working on that. When last seen, he was making a pitch to two fireflies.

Incidentally, seeing this space isn't filled yet, Jim Campbell is not the only one with brilliant ideas to save energy. I have some, too. Mostly for husbands. You'll probably want to clip these and tack them to your nose:

–Turn your thermostat down two degrees every day until you find the least temperature at which you can be comfortable. Also turn your wife out into the snow and lock the doors so she'll quit turning it back up again.

–Close doors and turn off heat in rooms that are almost never used. Such as the kitchen. This will steam your wife, and you can use the steam to melt the TV dinners.

–Close drapes at night. Open them when the sun is out. Close them when clouds appear. Open them again when the clouds pass. To make this a more constructive use of energy, you and the neighbor across the street could learn semaphore.

Change your furnace air filter once a month. Then come over to my house and change mine.

–Do not hold outside doors open for conversation. This is good advice for when guests are leaving. It is better advice for when they arrive. Just holler through the door: "It was nice of you to come. I would let you in but I can't spare the energy." This is not rude, it is patriotic. Unless, of course, it is July.

–Clear away all obstructions that might block the flow of hot air from registers and grills. Such as dirty sox, peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, dust balls, stupid cats and teenage daughters drying their hair. The finders keepers principal should be applied to all debris, unless the teenager is a neighbor's daughter.

–Close fireplace damper. Take a bath.

–Turn the thermostat way, way down when you are leaving town for a few days. Tell your wife you're sorry she can't go with you.

–Repeat after me, with warmth: Onward and Upward.

Stumping the Woods

...With Ollie O. Stump jr.

New math has long eluded many of us old fogies whose mental closets are cluttered with memorized multiplication tables and rules for casting out nines. As this unique numbers game is being interred, we patient taxpayers are at long last being told what it is all about. Simply stated, in the language of the elementary student 'the commutative and associative properties' of numbers means that 9x8 equals 8x9.

Ten years ago when 9x8 was 72 eighth graders scored 8.8 on state wide math tests. Today they score 7.8 on the same exam, which indicates that this Pilgrims Progress type of numbers manipulation creates problems rather than solves them.

The term 'old math' is more than a phrase. It brings back memories such as our math teacher in 1934 who was a shell shocked war veteran who never heard the increasing volume of his voice as he hammered theorems into our thick skulls with the dedication of a sculptor chipping away at marble.

Many of us algebra students were reminded to multiply both sides of an equation by the same factor in Mr. Fisher's unforgettable fashion. Starting on the left hand edge of the blackboard he would write B O T H across the full thirty feet of its span, all the while screaming both! both! both! We got the point as did everyone else in that three story school, including the janitor in the basement.

With no intent to be unkind, it must be pointed out to the exponents of new math that their brainstorm was in existence 75 years earlier. New math was invented at the turn of the century by a Popeye-featured lumberjack of French Canadian descent named Bobo Maschmail who migrated to the U.P. from Chicago where he lost his pants in the construction trade.

To us classroom mathematicians, pi expressed the relationship of the diameter of a circle to its circumference as being 3.1416, but to Bobo pi meant only one thing-dessert! He may have been stupid by our standards but he did know that a tree is about three times around as it is across which is far closer than the estimates of millions of math students and double the number of befuddled parents.

Poor Bobo was unable to capitalize on his tote road trigonometry due to another literary handicap. He couldn't read or write. According to Webster he was illiterate.

This poses the question of the children we are now uneducating back to 2 plus 2 equals four. Will they be uneducated in the illiterate sense?

Not if the English departments follow suit.

Many Iceboats Clock Speeds Over 100 MPH

The gasoline shortage won't slow down many of the nation's fastest speedsters.

Iceboats, whose torpedo-shaped hulls flash over frozen lakes and rivers at speeds of 100 miles an hour or more, have no motors. Devotees of hardwater sailing need only enough gas to haul their lightweight craft to the nearest stretch of clear ice.

But the energy crisis could fuel domestic dissension for ice-boaters. With lowered thermostats in homes, family members may not share the view that winters can never have too many freezing days.

BEFORE AIRPLANES

Long before the airplane, iceboats were the fastest means of transportation devised by man, the National Geographic Society says.

An iceboat named "Scud" was clocked at 107 miles an hour in 1885 on the Navesink River at Red Bank, N.J. Early planes were slower than some iceboats. In 1907, four years after Orville Wright's pioneering flight, Commodore Elisha Price's "Clarel" hit 144 miles an hour on the ice of New Jersey's Shrewsbury River.

Though "sail skating" and wind-powered ice sleds probably were tried earlier, the Dutch are credited with designing the first iceboats in the 17th century. When ice blocked Holland's canals, merchants fitted runners under their barges and carried freight and passengers at the unbelievable speed of about 50 miles an hour.

Father Claude Allouez, a missionary to the New World, astonished Indians by attaching a small sail to his canoe and traveling on Lake Michigan ice in 1678.

The first iceboat in the United States probably belonged to Oliver Booth, who in 1790 mounted a wooden box on three skate runners, ran up a spritsail, and sped down the Hudson River.

Others followed. Long Island farmer Samuel Hildreth noted in his diary on Jan. 17, 1837: "Finished our iceboat, the first one ever built in Southhampton. Sailed to beach on Mecox Bay. Wind blew a gale. She works fine. Went part of the time a mile a minute."

By the 1850's ice yachts as large as Icicle, which spread 1,000 square feet of canvas, were sailing the Hudson. The big craft, steered with a movable runner fastened to a stern tiller, often had professional crews, but belonged exclusively to the wealthy.

Less affluent hobbyists took up the sport in the 1930's when sleek one-man boats that could be built at home made their appearance. Today, thousands participate in annual regattas in the United States, Canada, Europe, Scandinavia and the Soviet Union.

The low-slung craft are steered by a movable runner at the bow. Two more runners are mounted on the ends of a beam fixed at right angles to the hull. Skimming the ice four times faster than the wind, racers will "hike" up onto two of their three runners, much as sailboats heel in a strong breeze.

Hoping for a long, cold winter in spite of the fuel shortage, one enthusiast explains the appeal of iceboating: "You really take off. The acceleration is fantastic. And you're out in the open, enjoying the winter, instead of hibernating in your house."

Mrs. Warren showed a series of slides and spoke of the facilities available at the home at Jackson which was opened five years ago to replace an older structure which had been in use many years. The new structure was built to meet today's state specifications.

Baker, who served as master of ceremonies at the dinner, added his praise to that of Blalock and Mrs. Warren for the generous contribution.

The contribution will be added to those from other lodges for use in purchasing equipment and financing building costs.

'BAD PRESS' RAPPED

Group Gets Go-Ahead In Drive for Physicians

THE MOST popular guy in town last Saturday was Santa Claus when he made his annual appearance at the foot of Clinton-st., courtesy of the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department. Santa distributed boxes of candy to his young admirers.

A citizens committee formed to attract more physicians to Charlevoix was encouraged to continue its efforts by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors last week, although the board pointed out that it has been in the doctor-recruiting business for years.

Dr. Robert Martin, a member of the hospital staff, said the hospital is particularly vulnerable to bad publicity, an oblique reference to an article on the citizens committee in an area newspaper two weeks ago.

He told the group that unwarranted criticism of the hospital makes it all the more difficult to attract physicians and suggested that all information regarding the hospital should be cleared by the administrator before being released to the press.

Mrs. Coleen Wright said the group did not have an opportunity to see the article before it was published.

"Somebody goofed and it does the hospital no good," Dr. Martin said, pointing out that the hospital has had a continuing program of doctor-recruitment for "many, many years."

He added that Dr. Rodolfo Lorenzo and Dr. Harry Custer are two of the doctors attracted to Charlevoix under the program.

The citizens committee was particularly critical of emergency treatment at the hospital.

Julius Gilbert, a long-time member of the hospital board, said a hospital the size of Charlevoix Hospital simply cannot afford a full-time emergency staff.

Dr. Custer suggested that a new doctor in town might wish to establish evening office hours at the hospital so that he would be on hand when emergencies arose.

Jack Grubaugh, a member of the board, said that part of the problem in doctor recruitment is the fact that many doctors today prefer a "group practice" rather than a "solo practice".

The citizens committee said it would continue to recruit new doctors through hospitals, universities and placement services and would report back to the board.

Chief Mol Will Attend FBI School

Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol will leave early in January for three months of highly specialized police schooling at the FBI Academy at Quantico, Va.

The course is the same one Petoskey Chief Ernest Kraus attended this fall.

Classes start Jan. 7 and will continue through March 29.

Among the required courses are Forensic Science in Law Enforcement, Education and Communication Arts, Management for Law Enforcement, Soci-Psychological aspects of community behavior and Criminal Law.

Chief Mol served with the Military Police during the Korean War and studied police work at the Soo Branch of Michigan Technological University.

He owned a plumbing business and served as a police deputy in Charlevoix for many years before being named chief of police June 8, 1971.

Soup To Nuts

THERE ARE plenty of good reasons for not leaving your keys in your car. Norm Perkins of Ellsworth discovered a new one Dec. 17 when the temperature dipped to 16 degrees below zero. Perkins left the keys in the ignition overnight. In the morning he attempted to start his car and turned the key mightily with his bare fingers. Nothing happened, so he kept the key turned while the starter cranked away. When he tried to let go, he couldn't. His hand had frozen to the key. He ended up with a nasty freeze burn on his thumb and index finger.

EXTREMELY cold weather last week sent the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew on its earliest ice-breaking assignment in living memory. The cutter was called to the Straits to assist car ferries encountering problems with drift ice.

WHAT WOULD Christmas be without potato sausage? Bob Neff, manager of The Market, whipped up a batch Saturday, most of it ordered far in advance by regular patrons who consider the Swedish delicacy as much a part of the holiday season as Santa Claus and Christmas trees.

DID YOU buy icicles for your Christmas tree early enough? By Saturday afternoon there wasn't a box for sale anywhere in town. Betty Bader, women's editor of the Petoskey News-Review, suggests you save this year's icicles for next year, when, because of expected shortages of plastic goods, they could be mighty scarce.

Jungle Paradise Thrives Amid Barnard Drifts

While wintry winds howl and snow lies deep in the woodlands of northern Michigan, a tropical jungle is flourishing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William VanLoo of Barnard-rd.

Mrs. VanLoo has created the effect with her collection of tropical fish which thumb their noses at winter from the cozy confines of their heated tanks in the VanLoo's kitchen and parlor.

Nearby more than 100 houseplants, including orchids, festoon the windows and create a steamy, jungle atmosphere throughout the house.

And for appropriate sound effects there is Mary, a large, green monk parakeet which dines on strawberries (frozen) even in the dead of winter.

If you squint your eyes, Mrs. VanLoo's 12-year-old sealpoint Siamese cat stretched out near the front door can easily become a sinewy panther, waiting for the kill.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gibelyou, Mary Lou VanLoo has loved animals as long as she can remember she began collecting tropical fish about 15 years ago.

Today her collection includes pugnacious Jack Demseys, Egyptian Mouth Breeders, Silver Dollars, Red-Tailed Sharks and striped Convicts among others.

One of her favorites is a Polka-Dotted African Catfish which she says "doesn't bother anybody."

School Building Plans In Works at Ellsworth

Ellsworth School Supt. Robert Gaunt said his board of education are busy making plans for a special election -- probably in March – which could result in a virtually new school plant come September.

The election will be held to approve a bond issue to finance new school buildings.

To date, the amount of the issue is uncertain, but it could be in the neighborhood of $750,000," Gaunt says.

Working with Traverse City architect Mike Mapes, the board has agreed on pre-engineered steel frame buildings which not only are economical to build but also go up rapidly.

The project includes the construction of a new elementary school on a 10-acre tract the school board has an option to buy in a new plot southwest of the present school.

Also planned is demolition of the original school building constructed in 1917 and construction of new facilities adjacent to the present elementary school.

The downtown school would then become the high school exclusively.

Gaunt says the building program is necessary for a number of reasons.

Renovation of the 1917 building to meet state fire laws would be extremely costly. One estimate pegged the figure at $1,600,000.

"The wood-frame interior is unacceptable to the fire marshal," Gaunt says.

He added that sometimes as many as 120 students are housed on the second floor of the ancient structure, which has only one open stairway leading from the basement to the second floor.

"The fire marshal won't let us put in a fire escape, which is considered a major structural change, without going through and making the whole building fire-proof," Gaunt says.

Furthermore, the roof of the building will soon be in need of major work and the 56-year-old structure is difficult to maintain and heat. It has no ventilation system, which the district Health Department finds objectionable.

New state laws making it manditory that all schools accommodate handicapped youngsters also pose problems, Gaunt says.

For one thing, the school would have to install an elevator from the basement to the second floor, which is an extremely costly undertaking.

The school also lacks lavatory facilities for the handicapped.

The present lunchroom also is inadequate. Youngsters eat their lunches in a basement corridor which is furnished with tables.

"The fire marshal considers the tables obstructions," Gaunt says.

To satisfy fire requirements, the school would have to cordon off a section of the hallway as a cafeteria, leaving a hallway with at least two jogs in it.

Another factor which makes new construction almost mandatory is the growth of the school district, which is adding new students every year. Present enrollment is 335, up eight from the 1972-'73 school year.

"And our long range forecasts call for additional growth," Gaunt says.

The school already has erected two portable classrooms on the property, but they have proven very difficult to heat. The fuel bill for each comes to about $50 a month during the winter.

"The question residents of the Ellsworth School District will have to answer in the upcoming election is whether or not they want to continue to maintain a community school, Gaunt says. "We certainly can't go on using the present building much longer."

The only alternative would be annexation to a neighboring school district.

In 1967 voters turned down a proposal to join the Charlevoix School District and sentiment in favor of a community school continues to run high.

Rayders Lose Another To Petoskey Northmen

The Red Rayders lost another one to Petoskey Friday night, 55 to 42.

The Charlevoix team scored 15 fieldgoals and 12 freethrows out of 18 attempts.

The Northmen scored 21 fieldgoals and 13 freethrows out of 23 attempts.

Charlevox was charged with 23 personal fouls, compared to only 17 for Petoskey.

The Northmen led from the start with quarter scores of 12-6; 24-21; and 36-31.

For a while in the second period it appeared that Charlevoix might be able to pull the game out of the fire when Randy Faust scored 4 fieldgoals and Clayton Jones, Dave Martinchek and Steve added buckets of their own, plus a free throw by McClellan.

But the drive lost steam after the half, dwindling to 4 fieldgoals and 2 freethrows in the third period and 1 fieldgoal and 9 freethrows in the final stanza.

Petoskey was consistent throughout, scoring 12 points in each of the first three periods, then frosting the cake with 19 points in the finale.

High man for Charlevoix was Randy Faust with 12 points on 5 fieldgoals and 2 freethrows.

Close behind were Mike Streeter with 10 (3 and 40); Steve McClellan, 9 (3 and 3); and Kevin Stokes (2 and 2).

Clayton Jones and Dave Martinchek scored 2 points each on fieldgoals and Jerry Skippergosh, who had an off night, remained scoreless until the last period when he added one point on a freethrow.

Scoring in double figures for Petoskey were Hilton with 16, Thompson, 11; and Weston, 10.

JV's, Too

Charlevoix JV's lost to Petoskey Friday night, 51-41, although the young Rayders led at the end of the third period, 32-29.

The prosecutor, treasurer and sheriff now will receive $10,325; the equalization director $11,400; the county planner, $13,000 and the friend of the court $8,100.

Supplements of $1,200 were approved for the circuit judge and $600 for the district judge. The probate judge will receive $2,500 (Charlevoix County's share of his salary) plus a $600 supplement.

Commissioners will receive $140 a month, plus $35 per diem.

Road Commissioners will receive $1,100 a year, plus $35 per diem.

New Radio Station Is One Step Closer

The Board of Review of the Federal Communications Commission has unanimously turned down an appeal by Harrington Broadcasting Corp. (WJML - AM and FM) to block establishment of a new AM radio station in Charlevoix.

Terry Edger, president of the NEW Broadcasting Corp., said he has received the go-ahead to start the station, but will wait to see if an additional appeal is forthcoming.

The Courier Corp. originally applied for a license to operate the station in 1967, but was turned down by the FCC because the corporation would be in a monopoly situation in so far as Charlevoix news coverage is concerned.

Harrington Broadcasting still may appeal the granting of the new license to the full Federal Communications Commission, Edger said.

If the commission decides against Harrington, the broadcasting company still can appeal to the federal Court of Appeals, which could take years.

ENDURANCE and determination are musts for Nordic or cross-country ski racing. Clothing is much lighter than used in downhill skiing.

40 Cross-Country Skiers Will Compete at Gaylord

Cross-country, or Nordic Skiing, one of the country's fastest growing sports, will get a major boost in Michigan late this month when approximately 40 World and Olympic class skiers come to Gaylord to compete in the Michaywe-Samsonite Classic Dec. 27.

Drawing the skiers to Northern Lower Michigan, the only midwest cross-country race on the U.S. Nordic Ski Team's winter tour, is a special race course designed around Lake Michaywe, which is located about seven miles south of Gaylord, off Old U.S. 27.

"The course has been laid out with the spectator in mind," said Gene Kotlarek. "The exciting gang starts, almost all of the actual race and the finish line are in full view from the clubhouse area."

Races, which will be 10 kilometers for men and five kilometers for women, will have skiers pitted against each other as well as against the clock during the competition. The event is open to spectators at no charge and food and refreshments will be available.

"We're also planning a pre-race clinic on cross-country skiing or ski touring," Kotlarek continued. "The sport is really catching on fast because it's one that's healthy, is less expensive than downhill skiing, can be done by almost anyone who can walk, and can be participated in when little snow is on the ground and in almost any area."

Clinics begin at noon and the Michaywe-Samsonite Classic at 1:00 p.m., Dec. 27.

Tax Relief Meeting Jan. 3 in Boyne City

Are you familiar with the Michigan Tax Relief Act of 1973? Do you understand how the Act will affect you? Have you heard conflicting reports about tax relief? Do you need help with the new forms? Do you have suggestions for improving the equity of the new Act?

State Rep. Mark L. Thompson (R-Alpena) and Dan Stevens, a member of the House Staff, will stage a number of meetings in Northern Michigan during the first week of January to discuss the new tax relief program with interested citizens. Six such meetings are planned for Jan. 3, 4, and 5.

Says Thompson, "I believe that good government requires a continuing dialogue between officials and citizens. I invite everyone with questions or suggestions about the new tax program to attend one of these meetings. If you will bring your income and property tax information to the meeting, we can help you fill out the forms necessary for a tax rebate or credit."

The meetings are planned for Gaylord at the Sugar Bowl Restaurant for Jan. 3, 1974 at 10 a.m.; Boyne City at the high school cafeteria for Jan. 3, 1974, at 3:45 p.m.; Cheboygan at the B & C Supermarket Community Room on Jan. 4, 1974, at 10 a.m.; Rogers City at the Brooks Hotel at 3 p.m. Jan. 4, 1974; Atlanta at the high school home economics room on Jan. 5, 1974 at 10 a.m.; and Alpena at the Senior Citizens Center on Jan. 5, 1974 at 3 p.m.

Clockwise
Bright Lights Abound This Holiday Season

By BOB CLOCK

In these troubled times in this dark and troubled world of ours, there are still so many glimmers of hope flickering in so many corners that they are almost blinding.

For the first time in more than a decade, the United States is not beating anyone's brains out anywhere in the world. This alone should make for a brighter holiday season the country over regardless of the energy crisis.

One year ago, the United States was still embroiled in that unholy war in Vietnam, which ended only last January. Thousands of American fighting men were putting their lives on the line every day and other thousands were held captive by the enemy.

Today our direct involvement in Vietnam is over for all practical purposes, although the terrible bloodbath continues without let-up in that beleagured country. Perhaps before another Christmas arrives, the combatants will follow our good example and lay down their arms.

There is always hope.

The Arab-Israel war, which could have turned into a global holocaust, has been contained. Although the issues are still very much alive there is increasing hope with every passing day that ancient antagonisms between the Arabs and the Jews, some of them dating back to the dawn of history, may be resolved successfully within our lifetime.

As grave as it seems at this time, the energy crisis which has been developing on a broad front for several months (and even years, if you listen to the experts) may also have its beneficial effects. We certainly know that the earth's supply of fossil fuels is limited and that alternate sources must be developed to keep the world in business:

From here it appears that in the future we may not travel as far, as fast or as frequently as we once did. The railroads must be resurrected, even if it is under the umbrella of nationalization.

Shipping by water, which has long been held the most economical means of transporting large cargoes, certainly will be given added impetus.

The era of cruise ship-which is just about over on the Great Lakes-may be born again as an alternate means of recreational travel to the automobile. And if the boats come back, it will be a happy day for those of us who remember how much fun it used to be to visit Great Lakes ports aboard a floating palace with broad, carpeted stairways, glittering chandeliers, luxurious dining rooms and attractive shops.

The old days that we have traded for the eight-cylinder engine and endless ribbons of interstate highway weren't all that bad.

Watergate also offers proof-positive that the American system is alive and well and is flourishing in Washington, D.C. Although the scandal is distressing on the surface, it is heartening to know that the legislative branch and the courts are still capable of fulfilling their traditional roles in the system of checks and balances.

Furthermore, Watergate has focused attention on shortcomings in American politics that need correcting, principally the financing of political campaigns. After Watergate we trust that powerful corporations and powerful individuals will no longer be able to buy favors from their elected representatives with campaign donations.

Although a new format for election financing is yet to be decided, the people have agreed that the old system is unfair. They will demand a change, regardless of whose ox is gored.

The resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is not without its beneficial ramifications. It has proven once again that no man – regardless of his station – is above the law.

So there are bright spots on the Christmas horizon this year that bode well for us all.

Stumping the Woods
Do Fish Pollute? The Judge Decides

By Ollie O. Stump jr.

A routine day for many of us is often a different kettle of fish for others as in the case of the angler recently caught scaly handed cleaning his catch in the AuSable river.

This confirmed the convictions of nature lovers that fishermen are the prime polluters, Reserve Mining notwithstanding. Clutching this creel of damning evidence the DNR hastened to initiate legal action which promises to become a landmark case, Iosco County vs Fish.

Ironically, the defendant helped finance his prosecution with the license he purchased for the privilege of catching, but not cleaning, fish. Casting about for a defense he quoted a noted TV outdoors host as saying that fish should be cleaned immediately. This allegedly misquoted authority wriggled neatly off the hook by explaining that his statement was purely advisory and not intended as a recommendation.

Fighting gamely, the victim wrote a 'sincere' letter to the county prosecutor asking clemency for a layman unable to distinguish advice from recommendation. After due deliberation of applicable law and local custom the charge was scaled down and the ticket dismissed.

A somewhat similar case in our area, Emmet County vs Manure Spreader was litigated years ago and may have served as a precedent. This particular stink involved a farmer practicing what he had learned from his great granddad. Each spring after fertilizing his fields he would back the manure spreader into the lake on his property for a wash job.

Late in life the old gentleman, recovering from a heart attack, was caught in the net and issued a summons by the newly assigned man in green responsible for maintaining Mother Nature's status quo.

The officer insisted on pressing charges despite the pleas of the county judge who was concerned about the possible shock effects on the farmer who was his life-long friend.

Rather than embarrass this fine young dedicated public servant in court, the judge resorted to a legal tactic befitting his thatch of silver gray hair. He joined the waiting crowd in the hallway and focused attention on the man in uniform by saying,

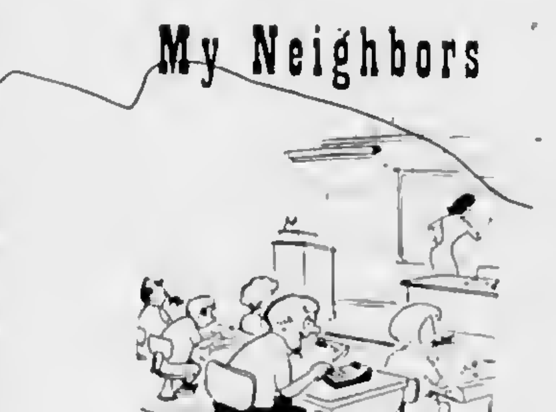
"Young man, you arrested this man for putting manure in the lake."

"Of course," came the reply with obvious irritation.

"Well son," remarked the judge in fatherly fashion, "I've never seen fish come ashore to answer a call of nature. Are you going to arrest them too?"

The closing of the outer door behind the complaining witness rendered the verdict.

Case dismissed!



"All right pocket pal, let's get one more 'A' for Joey."

Reader Says Kit Carson Also Artist

Dear Mr. Editor:

Your front page article on the passing of Mr. Carson was very nicely written but one thing worth mentioning was left out.

About half a century ago I stepped into Carson's Meat Market in East Jordan and what I saw there I never forgot. There a young man sat painting. I couldn't take my eyes off the beautiful scene on that canvas: Sheep at a watering trough!

Two years ago when I worked at the Carson home on Michigan-ave. I had a chance to admire more of Mr. Carson's beautiful paintings. I then asked him if he still had that painting I saw him working on so many long years ago.

"No," Mr. Carson answered me. "A man admired that picture and asked to buy it. Thinking to discourage him I named a fabulous figure. However, the man was willing to pay it and I had to sell seeing I had said I would."

In other words, Bob, Kit Carson, among his other accomplishments, could and did paint some very fine canvases.

I know there are many, many people who appreciate all that Mr. Carson did for Charlevoix, for Charlevoix County and for the young of this community. May others arise and thus follow in his footsteps!

Respectfully signed,
Frank Kubicek

Incas Scaled Impossible Mt. Peaks

The ancient Incas have astonished modern mountaineers.

Climbers who thought they were making the "first assaults" on the hemisphere's highest peaks along the Chile-Argentina frontier found that sandal-clad Incas had beaten them to the top by 500 years.

"On some 30 ascents," says Loren McIntyre in the December National Geographic, "climbers have found mountaintop Inca shrines and evidence of pilgrimages: offerings of gold and silver figurines with headdresses of jungle-bird plumes, Inca pottery, llamo droppings and bundles of wood for beacon fires."

Boy in Deep Freeze

One of the most interesting relics - the frozen body of an Inca boy 8 or 9 years old - was found at 17,712 feet on El Plomo peak in Chile, near the southern end of the Inca Empire. Probably sacrificed to the sun - an honor in Inca eyes - the youthful victim now rests in a deep-freeze showcase in a Santiago museum.

One explorer carried down another centuries-old Inca, shrunken to 40 pounds, from the windswept 20,644-foot level of Chile's El Toro peak in 1964. The Indian, about 20, was no peasant. He had delicate hands and feet. He had been stripped to his breechcloth to quicken death by freezing. His accouterments indicated that he had been sacrificed about 1480.

The march of the Inca empire set forth from the valley of Cuzco. Beginning in 1438 with the mighty Pachacuti-"he who transforms the earth"–Inca emperors extended their rule over much of the Andean region.

Pachacuti's son, Tupa Inca, who took the title Yupanqui, meaning "unforgettable," is forgotten today in comparison to Alexander the Great, Genghis Khan, and other conquerors who overran vast territories, but they rode horses. Tupa Inca, soldiering on foot, vowed not to stop until he reached the uttermost sea.

Won Through Guile

Winning through Inca prestige and diplomacy as well as in open battle, he thrust north from Cuzco through the Andes to Ecuador, then south along the Peruvian coast to capture Chan Chan, capital of the Chimor Kingdom, and other powerful cities after years of siege.

He forayed into Amazon headwaters, then turned to quell the fierce nations of highland Bolivia. In Chile and Argentina, an area larger than Spain yielded to his armies.

Finally, forest guerrillas stopped Tupa Inca at the Rio Maule, 2,400 miles south of the Equator. He had plunged deeper into the Southern Hemisphere than any other conqueror in history.

Dreams of treasure lured the Spaniards under Francisco Pizarro to the realm of the Incas. By a daring stratagem, he ambushed and captured the Inca Emperor Atahuallpa in 1532. The emperor's execution brought to an end the glory of the Inca Empire, through it took another 40 years before Spanish domination was complete.
